Congressmen Fight British Loan

SCOFF AT IDEA U. S. WILL REAP GAIN BY GRANT

London's Need of Cash Questioned

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9—The 4 billion 400 million dollar loan to Great Britain was under attack today on a wide front in congress.

Rep. Knutson [top] and Rep. White

Rep. Knutson [R., Minn.], ranking minority member of the house ways and means committee, in an interview today, assailed the argument that the United States by making this loan will gain an incalculable amount of foreign trade thru Britain's agreement to lift commercial restrictions now compelling the British empire and other countries in the sterling bloc to buy in the British instead of the American market.

"If it is shown," said Knutson, "beyond a reasonable doubt that it is necessary to make a loan in order to prevent the financial collapse of Great Britain, the loan should be placed on a business basis. Britain should be required to contract to deliver to the United States tin, rubber, chrome, and other essentials we need in such quantities as will fully protect the loan and amortize it in from 5 to 10 years. With such materials we could build up our stockpiles against emergency.

"Wholly Illusory"

"The argument that it is necessary for us to make this loan in the interest of promoting our export trade is wholly illusory. We do not need to subsidize export trade which normally never exceeds 8 per cent of our production. The consumption demands of our own people will absorb our entire production for years to come. It will be at least six, possibly 10, years before we will have an exportable surplus."

Rep. White [D., Idaho], in a statement, cited voluminous statistics he had collected to show Great Britain has nearly 50 billion dollars' worth of assets, a small fraction of which would provide security for the contemplated loan or, if liquidated, would make borrowing unnecessary. The British were not asked to give security for the loan.

Lists British Assets

The principal British assets listed by Mr. White are:

[In millions of dollars]

Unmined gold reserves	24,500
Unmined diamond reserves	8,800
Foreign investments	14,000

The British decline to reveal the amount of the British government gold reserve which is reported to have increased enormously during the war. As to unmined gold reserves White cited this report by the United States Bureau of Mines:

"Total commercial reserves for the British empire, that is, total ores which are economically work-

USE OF LEASED BASES FOR AIR TRADE SOUGHT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—The United States has proposed commercial use of air fields leased to us by England in Newfoundland, Bermuda, and the Caribbean for military purposes, a state department official said tonight.

A reply from London is expected shortly, the official told a reporter. It was understood this country looks for a favorable attitude.

The fields were involved in the 1940 swap of 50 American destroyers for 99 year leases on air and naval bases.

The United States suggested that the fields be opened to authorized air lines of this country and Great Britain and others approved by both nations.

Already, the official said, the 99 year bases in Newfoundland are in use on such a basis provisionally, together with the Gander military base which was not involved in the destroyer deal.

In addition to Bermuda, the other air fields are in the Bahamas, Jamaica, Trinidad, St. Lucia, Antigua, and British Guiana.

Curtail Paris' Heat in Midst of Cold Wave

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 9—Paris and all France tomorrow will begin a grim week of coal and electricity restrictions and possible labor troubles at the same time. The nation is suffering from the first rigorous cold snap of the season.

With the temperature in Paris from 10 to 12 degrees below freezing and with some parts of the country reported even colder, householders prepared to do without electric current tomorrow for five hour periods daily.

The current will be cut off in some sections from 7:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. on three days and from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m. on alternate days.

Coal Shortage Hurts

Many rely on current for heating, with coal rationed at a quarter of a ton per household and selling on the black market at $240 per ton. Restrictions are likely to last for a couple of months due to shortages resulting from insufficient coal stocks.

Thousands of French factories tomorrow will go on a three day week for lack of power and the subway will close down an hour earlier.

People who had fires huddled around the stove in only one warmed room of their apartments today, for there is no central heating, and others who had no fires went to bed to keep warm.

Face One Hour Strike

Adding to the cold wave and restrictions on electricity, the country faces a one hour strike of 2,000,000 public service workers Wednesday, unless Finance Minister Rene Pleven digs up another 32 billion francs [$640,000,000] to pay them an extra thousand francs monthly cost of living indemnity. The budget deficit already is estimated at 240,000,000,000 francs.

The strike will affect railways, street cars, the subway, and school teachers. Gas, water, and electric and street maintenance services will be involved.

Public service workers average about 4,000 francs monthly, or $80.

Germans Failed to Block French Wine for Britain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 9—Statistics released today by customs officials of Bordeaux show that in 1943, in the middle of German occupation of France, 360,000 francs [$7,200] worth of cognac was sold to English importers. How delivery to England was accomplished was not explained.

7 CARS OF CENTURY DERAILED AT ALBANY; NO ONE IS INJURED

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—Seven cars of the New York Central's westbound Twentieth Century Limited were derailed tonight about a mile west of the Albany union station, but the chief dispatcher said no one was injured and the train continued on after a delay of about an hour.

The dispatcher said passengers in the derailed cars were transferred to the section of the train which remained on the tracks.

The dispatcher said none of the cars overturned. He added that cars would be added at points along the line to accommodate those who had been assigned to the derailed cars.

BOY, 3, IS ILL AFTER 28 HOURS IN TIMBERLAND

Waynesville, Mo., Dec. 9 (AP)—Donald Lee Holder, 3, who spent 28 hours in the cold and darkness of the Ozark timberlands surrounding his father's farm, was in a hospital here tonight suffering from cold, exhaustion, and exposure.

Finding of the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holder, ended a night and day search by more than 300 Waynesville townspeople and soldiers from near-by Fort Leonard Wood.

The lad was found by Leon Cummings, 24, of Waynesville, who said he saw him late this afternoon about a mile from his home walking around looking up into the trees.

Wife Kills Vet After Quarrel; Tries Suicide

Edward Warren, 27, of 4155 N. Greenview av., recently discharged from the army, was fatally shot yesterday by his wife, Lovina, 22, after she told Town Hall police, he told her he was leaving her. Mrs. Warren then slashed her left wrist with a razor. The couple has a daughter, Lovina, 2.

The shooting took place in a front bedroom at the Greenview av. address, the home of Mrs. Warren's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Belcher, with whom the Warrens had been living.

Mrs. Warren told Lt. Thomas Lyons and Detective William Nolan of the Town Hall station that her husband, a special agent for the Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy railroad, had been drinking heavily since his discharge from the army last October.

Says He's Getting Out

Yesterday, she said, he refused to go for a walk with her. She went to their bedroom and started dressing. He followed and also began to dress, but refused to tell her where he was going.

"You can get your divorce any time," she said he told her. "I'm getting out of here."

She said he started toward the dresser on which lay a .45 caliber automatic pistol he used in his work. She leaped to the dresser, seized the gun, and told him to get back.

"Go ahead and shoot," Mrs. Warren quoted her husband as saying.

Belcher, who was shaving in the bathroom, heard a shot. He ran to the bedroom and wrested the gun from Mrs. Warren. Warren was on the floor, shot thru the liver. He died a short time later in Ravenswood hospital.

Disarmed by Her Father

Mrs. Warren darted past her father into the bathroom, where she slashed her left wrist with a razor before she again was disarmed by her father.

She told police she did not intend to shoot her husband, but that the gun went off while she was pointing it at him.

Their daughter was not in the house at the time. She was at the home of a sister of Mrs. Warren. The Warrens were married Aug. 12, 1941, and Warren entered the army shortly afterward. He was overseas as a military policeman nearly two years.

Mrs. Warren, an attractive brown-eyed brunet, showed no signs of emotion as she discussed her married life with Warren.

"It was four years of hell," she declared.

She said her husband frequently beat her and threatened her with the same gun which was involved in the shooting.

"He never went anywhere without that gun strapped to his side," Mrs. Warren said. "And not long ago he told me 'If you do just one thing I don't like you'll find a hole in your head.'"

1 KILLED, 9 INJURED IN HOTEL BLAZE IN PARKERSBURG, W. VA.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Dec. 9 (AP)—One man was killed and nine persons were injured when fire broke out tonight in the four story Grand hotel in Parkersburg, forcing some of the guests to leap into a life net.

Fire starting in a tiny lobby swept up a stairway, the only way of exit from the 70 year old building, but most of the guests succeeded in making their way out by the steps, suffering burns and other injuries. No estimate of the number forced to flee was available immediately. Three persons jumped from the upper stories, one a woman clad only in a night gown, when they were trapped by the flames.

The dead man was identified tentatively as a Mr. Law from Elizabeth, W. Va. An examining physician said he died from an electric shock. Most of the injured were Parkersburg residents.

DRIVER OF TAXI IS FATALLY SHOT AND TOSSED OUT

Harry Thomassen, 40, of 220 W. 31st st., a Yellow cab driver for 10 years, was tossed out of his cab, fatally shot in the back, in front of 5522 Kimbark av. last night. He died en route to Illinois Central hospital.

Harry Thomassen

Robert Druyan, 15, and Kenneth Keats, 15, both living at the Kimbark av. address, saw Thomassen tossed from the cab as they stood on a third floor porch. The cab was driven rapidly away. It was later found abandoned in an alley behind 959 E. 62d st.

The two boys called police, who took Thomassen to the hospital. Police said he was still alive when they arrived at the scene. Police discounted a robbery theory after they found $20 in his pockets and his revolver in the cab.

Thomassen, divorced, lived with a sister, Miss Hazel Thomassen, 52. She told police he left for work yesterday shortly after 2 p. m., and stopped at the house for a cup of coffee about 6:30 p. m. Thomassen, convicted of robbery in 1930, served five years in Joliet, police said.

SPINE INJURED WHEN CAR AND TRUCK COLLIDE

Taken to Hospital in Heidelberg

Wife Flies to Side

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9—Mrs. George S. Patton Jr. and Col. R. Glen Spurling of Louisville, Ky., noted neurosurgeon, left Bolling field by special army plane tonight for the bedside of Gen. Patton. Col. Spurling, former chief of surgery at Walter Reed General hospital in Washington, will possibly operate on Gen. Patton. He and Mrs. Patton will fly to Paris, then take another plane to Heidelberg, where Gen. Patton is in a hospital. Mrs. Patton lives in Washington. Col. Spurling flew here from Louisville.

Gen. Patton

An eyewitness said Patton's face was covered with blood from cuts sustained when he was thrown violently forward by the impact.

Maj. Gen. H. R. Gay, chief of staff of Patton's United States 15th army, the only other passenger, and the sedan's driver were found outside the car by a combat engineering unit headed by Maj. Charles Tucker of New Hamburg, N. Y. They said they found Patton reclining in the back seat. All the general said was: "My neck hurts."

An ambulance was rushed to the scene and made the 20 mile trip to the 130th station hospital in Heidelberg in 25 minutes.

Two Trucks Enter Road

The accident occurred when two half ton army trucks came out suddenly from a side road into the highway, cutting in front of the Patton car. The front end of Patton's machine was smashed and the back seat, where he was sitting, was covered with blood.

The driver, Pvt. Horace Woodring, escaped injury, and Gen. Gay was only shaken up. The driver of the truck was Robert Thompson.

Hospital attachés said Patton gave orders to admit no reporters to the hospital. He was treated by Lt. Col. O. S. Hill, a surgeon.

Patton and Gay had left 15th army headquarters at Bad Nauheim this morning to go pheasant hunting.

Army Announcement

The army's announcement of the accident, released at Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's headquarters in Frankfurt, follows:

"Gen. Patton was injured about noon today in an automobile accident near Mannheim and is now in the 130th station hospital at Heidelberg. A diagnosis of his injuries, which are serious, cannot be completed until tomorrow. He is suffering from a spinal injury.

"Maj. Gen. A. W. Kenner, theater surgeon, went immediately to the hospital and is remaining with Gen. Patton.

Loses 3d Army Command

Patton, known to his men as "old blood and guts," was 60 years old on Nov. 11 and has been unofficially reported planning retirement after a colorful 41 years in the army climaxed by his spectacular 3d army dash thru France and Germany in 1944 and 1945.

Patton was removed from the command of his 3d army last October after he had made a press conference statement criticising the denazification program in his zone.

On Oct. 2 Patton was assigned to the 15th—a paper army whose current duty is to prepare reports on lessons of the war.

M'ARTHUR ACTS TO END SLAVERY OF JAP FARMERS

TOKYO, Dec. 10 [Monday]—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur today laid down a sweeping program of agrarian reform for Japan to "destroy the economic bondage which has enslaved the Japanese farmer for centuries of feudal oppression."

In a tremendous move calling for abolition of absentee land ownership and making provision for Japan's vast millions of small tenant farmers to buy their own farms on long terms at low rates, the allied commander ordered the Japanese government to carry out the order by March 15.

It will mean "emancipation," headquarters declared, for tenants in a country where half the entire population is engaged in agriculture and where farmers still cultivate the overworked soil with hand tools.

Pernicious Ills Outlined

The average Japanese farm family tills less than three acres, compared with an average of nearly 47 acres in the United States, and only 20 per cent are land owners. The agrarian class barely ekes out a living from plots so intensely used that production is dependent on the constant addition of fertilizer.

The directive contains basic economic reforms in conformity with the principles of the Potsdam declaration. It cites these "pernicious ills" affecting Japan's farmers:

1. Intense overcrowding of the land: Almost half the farm households in Japan till less than 1½ acres each.

2. Conditions highly unfavorable to tenants: More than three-fourths of the farmers in Japan are tenants, paying rentals amounting to half or more of their annual crops.

Direct Taxes High

3. A heavy burden of indebtedness: Less than half the total farm population is able to support itself on agricultural income.

4. Governmental discrimination against the farmer: Interest rates and direct taxes are more oppressive than in commerce and industry.

5. Authoritative government control over farmers: Arbitrary crop quotas often restrict farmers.

"The emancipation of farmers cannot begin," McArthur said, "until such basic farm evils are destroyed."

Rather than outright confiscation of absentee-held farm property, the directive provides for purchase of farm lands from nonoperating owners at "equitable rates" payable in annual instalments commensurate with tenant income.

Education Ordered

The order instructs the government to see that farmers are afforded legal protection so conditions will not force them back into tenancy. Specified safeguards are access to long and short term farm credit at reasonable interest rates, measures to prevent exploitation by processors and distributors, and stabilization of farm prices.

The government also was ordered to provide a program of technical education for farmers, along with an agricultural coöperative movement "free of domination by nonagrarian interests."

The present cabinet already has proposed land reform legislation but it falls short of the broad allied terms. In addition to these, headquarters told Japanese authorities to submit any other proposals deemed necessary to guarantee farmers a just share of the national income.

JAP SUB SKIPPER IN U. S. ON WAY TO M'VAY TRIAL

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP)—Comdr. Ike Hashimoto, captain of the Japanese submarine reported to have sunk the cruiser Indianapolis last July 30, arrived here today under guard after a fast flight by naval air transport plane from Tokyo.

Hashimoto is due in Washington, D. C., tomorrow morning. He will travel aboard a four engined plane which will make the trip in 12 hours with only one stop at Olathe, Kas., navy officials reported.

The navy announced in Washington yesterday that Hashimoto had been summoned from Tokyo by the judge advocate in the trial of Capt. Charles B. McVay, commander of the Indianapolis, charged with negligence in the loss of the cruiser. The Indianapolis went down with a heavy loss of life while en route from Guam to Leyte. Survivors said two explosions wracked the vessel before it sank.

Hashimoto will be called as a witness to determine definitely whether the cruiser was torpedoed. McVay's court-martial proceedings have been recessed until Tuesday.

NAZI SABOTAGE CHIEF TELLS OF FAILURE IN U. S.

Bares Hitler Order to Use Jews

BY GEORGE TUCKER
[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 9—When Adolf Hitler heard how his personally ordered sabotage attempt on the United States in 1942 had failed because of action of the federal bureau of investigation, he yelled at Germany's intelligence chiefs: "Why didn't you take Jews for that?"

Maj. Gen. Lahousen

This was reported today by Maj. Gen. Erwin Lahousen, who had direct charge of German sabotage operations, in an interview with the Associated Press in Nuernberg where he is under heavy guard as a prosecution witness.

As a result of Hitler's statement, Lahousen added, Jews were given jobs in the German intelligence service for more than a year.

Aluminum Plants Target

The tall, cadaverous chief of the sabotage section thru the critical early years of the war said the code name for the enterprise was "pastorius," that the plan called for blowing up of American aluminum factories and that Hitler personally had ordered the enterprise.

[German submarines put four men ashore at Amagansett beach, Long Island, N. Y., on June 13, 1942, and landed four others near Jacksonville, Fla., three days later. The men quickly were rounded up. Convicted by a military commission, six of the men were electrocuted. Ernest P. Burger was let off with a life prison sentence and George Dasch with 30 years at hard labor because of their assistance to the United States government in the apprehension and conviction of the others.]

Lahousen said that while the plot was being hatched he suspected that Dasch had been planted by the Americans in the group selected for the mission.

The German general pictured Adm. Walter Wilhelm Canaris, Greek born head of the German army's intelligence section, as having taken a disinterested attitude toward the project. Canaris was among those executed by the Nazis following the July, 1944, bomb plot on Hitler's life.

Only One Attempt

Lahousen said that as far as he knew the 1942 submarine landings constituted the only sabotage attempt against the United States engineered by German army intelligence during the war, altho the Nazi party may have attempted others. He gave this account of the operation:

"We had no agents in America before the war to do sabotage. This was in contrast to intelligenee section 1, who had people in America to collect information and intelligence. When I say 'we,' I mean intelligence 2, as I was responsible for it.

"Canaris was extremely reluctant to send any agents into any of the western countries before the war. What I mean is that he did not wish to send any agents into those countries who might have active missions of sabotage. He was very much in favor of sending agents there to find information and send it back to Germany.

"I must add here that the foreign office, too, prohibited this form for political reasons because they did not want to give America anything that could be exploited by propagandists such as, for instance, a miscarriage of some sabotage enterprise. This was especially so after they [the foreign office] received reports from the consuls that were

WOUNDED YANKS WIN BEACHHEAD IN JOB 'INVASION'

Hospital 'Clinic' Helps to Open Doors

BY NORMA LEE BROWNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Springfield, Mo., Dec. 9 — War wounded GIs at O'Reilly General hospital here in the Ozarks are solving their own unemployment problems thru a GI sponsored job clinic.

The clinic is headed by Pvt. Joe Andrews of Brookline, Mass., who from his hospital bed has led his buddies in an invasion—by correspondence—of business, industry, and professional fields thruout America.

Scores of interviews with prospective employers have been obtained for patients on furlough. Some with discharges have been given jobs and others have jobs promised to them upon their release from the hospital.

"De-Compression Chamber"

The job clinic, however, was not organized as an employment agency. Andrews calls it a "decompression chamber," the purpose of which is to reintroduce the soldier to civilian life.

Tho still in its infancy, the clinic is a realistic approach to America's No. 1 peace time problem. These GIs admit that foxholes are not the best place to learn peace time skills in any profession or industry. They do not expect something for nothing.

With "self-help" as their credo, they have turned thumbs down on "sympathy jobs." All they ask of American business leadership is one question: "How can we best prepare ourselves while here in the hospital so that we will have employment value to you upon our discharge from the service?"

It Goes Over Big

This approach goes over big. Some of the wounded GIs have been "adopted" by important business and industrial leaders who write regularly, send informative pamphlets, and give advice on training for certain jobs. Replies have been received from hundreds of companies and in all their letters there is sincerity and personal interest that indicates an earnest desire to coöperate if the GIs meet them halfway.

And this they do!

Whether prospective employers recommend a college education or the hospital's course in auto mechanics, the job clinic patients follow their advice almost 100 per cent.

"Why not?" they ask. "These are the men who've made a success of their business. They should know how it's done."

Complete Facts Provided

The job clinic provides complete information about existing occupations [gathered thru a nation-wide survey made by GIs], an educational and occupational data library comprised of job pamphlets and reports, and straight-from-the-shoulder advice on job locations, job preparation, current occupational trends, and educational opportunities under the GI bill of rights and in the hospital's job training program.

All this is handled by patients for patients at O'Reilly.

A hospital psychiatrist supervises job aptitude tests. Patients compose their own letters and mail them by the dozens to business houses, manufacturers, professional men, publishers, engineers, electrical companies, well known national establishments, and small home town industries. Even local chambers of commerce are contacted.

Personal Data Included

With each letter goes a "personal data" sheet, giving the age, religion, physical condition and handicaps, education, civilian occupation, army record—and a photograph of the applicant made in the hospital's photo laboratory.

At the bottom of the "personal data" sheet they write: "I do not believe in being a pensioned veteran. However, I do realize that to overcome my disability I must develop my remaining skills so that I may have employment value. To this end I am devoting my remaining time in the hospital."

Pvt. Henry R. Sweet, 21, of St. Louis, Mo., a veteran of 16 months in the Pacific and wounded on Luzon, plans to enter the field of air conditioning and refrigeration.

In the library he compiled a list of firms that appealed to him most and began his letter campaign. The replies were unanimous in recommending an engineering degree if possible "because it will pay off in the future." Some advised him what schools to attend and what courses to take. One offered to pay his expenses if he could come for an interview on his next furlough.

He Prepares for College

Because of this encouragement and advice, Sweet has begun hospital brushup courses for the college education he intended to by-pass.

A staff sergeant who had not finished high school was advised by a prospective employer to take the hospital's course in auto mechanics. He used to be a truck driver, but a new job was waiting in his home town in Iowa when he was discharged a few weeks ago. Now he is a shop supervisor.

Another patient was invited to Chicago for an interview on his hospital furlough. The company manager spent the day showing him thru the factory, took him home to dinner, then made an opera date for the GI with his daughter.

MANVILLE'S 8TH BRIDAL DELAYED BY $$ TROUBLE

New Rochelle, N. Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—Tommy Manville and his was-to-be eighth bride followed the familiar jigsaw pattern of other Manville marital ventures today—and wound up "at home" but unmarried.

Manville and British-born Georgina Campbell went to Greenwich, Conn., to be married. A half hour before the scheduled ceremony they left in a huff and returned to Manville's home here. Dr. Jeremiah Lynch of New York, who was to have given the bride away, said the couple had had a lover's spat "over the cost of the big press party to which the bride objected." Reporters estimated the champagne, liquors, roast beef, ham and turkey cost Manville at least $600.

But later Manville and the 26 year old Miss Campbell denied they had had differences.

"We both objected to the cost," she said. "It was supposed to be $600 and when we got to Greenwich we were told it would be $1,600. That's too much."

Both said they now planned to be married in New York state.

WAR'S BACKLASH TAKES THE FUN OUT OF TOURING

BY GAIL COMPTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 9—Touring by automobile these days is no pleasure. That is the unanimous opinion at the end of the second day of the following sun-hungry mob of tourists to Florida.

The prime reason for the discomfort is that the pre-war vintage automobiles allow the driver no peace of mind. Constant concern over synthetic or recapped tires is likely to turn the most amiable driver into a snarling tyrant, especially if there are a couple of youngsters in the back seat worrying off pent-up energy.

Lack of faith in the vehicle also results in slower driving as a safety measure.

The days of making 600 miles comfortably in a stretch are gone and won't return until new cars and new tires are available.

Rate Is 50 to 55

Most of the tourists encountered on the road were traveling between 50 and 55 miles an hour. This reporter's car was on the road at 8 a. m. and night caught it in the Cumberland mountains of Tennessee. Only 351.4 miles had been covered. Only the usual stops were made. A halt was called here at 6 p. m. because night driving these days has proved uncomfortably hazardous.

Another unpleasant factor in trying to get to your vacation spot by car is hotel accommodations. Last night was spent in a hotel in Vincennes, Ind., characterized in the guide book as "well kept." The only thing "well kept" in the place was the streamlined cocktail lounge.

Evidently the manager worked on the theory that after a long enough stay at the bar the guests wouldn't mind what kind of room they occupied.

Supper Takes Hour and Quarter

The room cost $2.50 for the night. In the dining room one girl was attempting to take care of eight tables, and supper took an hour and a quarter.

Lunch was attempted at Nashville, Tenn., which gives tourists a discouraging view of its slums while traveling thru the town. The shortage of restaurant help was encountered again and lunch took almost an hour. The food was poor.

The real grief came tonight when the Florida-bound party tried to find accommodations without reservations. Two tourist camps were visited but were full. In Chattanooga three hotels turned us down. Finally one took pity on the travel-worn group and offered a sample room "to be ready as soon as the salesman packed his samples and moved out." At 8 p. m. the salesman vacated the room and our party set up housekeeping on cots in the huge room.

Some Advice to Tourists

Advice to date on trying to drive to Florida—as thousands of Chicagolanders are planning to do—is make reservations ahead for each stop. Allow plenty of driving time, make sure your car is in its best possible condition, and plan to spend more money than you had expected.

Our 1940 Chevrolet is making a bit over 14 miles to a gallon and gasoline costs have run as high as 26 cents a gallon.

Today the car followed U. S. highway 41 from Vincennes, Ind., to Chattanooga. The scenery during the latter part of the day was magnificent.

Sgt. John Farrell of the Chicago av. police station worked like a fireman yesterday with three pails of water and extinguished a fire which was started in the station woodwork by an overheated steam pipe.

MARSHALL RESUMES TESTIMONY TODAY IN PEARL HARBOR PROBE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9—Gen. Marshall, former chief of staff, will continue his testimony tomorrow before the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee. Committee members did not finish cross-examining Marshall yesterday on the events prior to Pearl Harbor and asked him to return as a witness tomorrow. He previously said he was keeping a plane in readiness to fly to China to assume his new duties as special envoy for President Truman as soon as the investigating group releases him.

YANKS AMAZED; 26 NAZIS ESCAPE NICE WARM CAMP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 9—Twenty-six ungrateful SS war prisoners lodged in a model display camp opposite the group control council headquarters escaped yesterday, and American brass hats and the provost marshal were frankly baffled. They had been eating American army rations and their barracks were heated.

But in spite of 12 foot barbed wire fences, machine gun guards, and giant searchlights lighted all night, 26 of the 400 captives got away.

"It looks like an inside job," remarked the provost marshal, who reads detective stories. "Perhaps they intend to start an underground movement," vouched a counter-intelligence master mind. "Maybe they wanted to get home to see their wives or girl friends," suggested a rookie MP, who was immediately detailed to KP for this absurd opinion.

POPE RECEIVES ITALIAN WIVES OF 105 YANKS

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Italian wives of 105 American soldiers were received by Pope Pius today at the completion of a special four day "retreat" preparing them for their new lives in the United States.

The pope spoke to each girl in Italian, asking where they would live in the United States, and giving counsel to those who requested it. He asked some to write letters to him presenting their problems. They will leave for the United States with their husbands in the next few months.

Also granted an audience was Lt. Col. Robert Woodward, Chicago, Ill., chief medical officer for the United States forces at Salzburg, Austria. The pope referred to Woodward's asisstance in restoring to Hungarian Catholics possessions taken from them by the Nazis, and the restitution to the Catholic church in Hungary of the right hand of St. Stephen, Hungary's patron saint, a treasured relic which the Germans had taken to Austria.

TWO ARE NAMED FOR REVAMPING OF POLICE FORCE

Allman Due to Quit; See Bookie War Brewing

BY JAMES DOHERTY

Arrangements for a reorganization of the police department were reported yesterday to be under way in anticipation of the resignation of Commissioner James M. Allman and to prevent a shooting warfare over race track service now being supplied to nearly 500 Chicago handbooks.

There is nothing new in reports that Allman, who has been police commissioner 14 years, is ready to resign, but as Allman himself said, it won't be long before such reports are true. He may quit or he may just go away for a rest, but it is known he has told Mayor Kelly he is tired and wants to be relieved of his responsibility.

The reorganization program has been secretly delegated to Chief of the Uniformed Force John Prendergast and Supervising Capt. Joseph Goldberg. The expectation is that when Allman leaves Prendergast will take his place and Goldberg will be his assistant under Prendergast's present title.

Kelly and Tuohy Advised

The seriousness of the impending gambler's war had been impressed upon Mayor Kelly and State's Atty. Tuohy, the police department was advised.

Authorities have been told that the Capone-Nitti-Guzik syndicate is stealing the racing service from the Midwest News Service, operated by Frank Reagen, successor to Moses Annenberg. As told to the officials, the situation is as follows:

The Guzik boys, who take orders from Tony Accardo, alias Joe Batters or Joe Batty, who in turn takes orders from the higher ups of the old Unione Sicilione, were paying the Midwest company for "service" to 75 Chicago handbooks. Then they resold this service to 400 handbooks not controled by the Guzik syndicate.

Report Wires Tapped

So, the story goes, the Midwest company, which has a monopoly of race track information from all the tracks in the country, shut off the service to the Guzik books in Chicago. But the Guzik gang, having expert wire tappers in its employ, merely tapped the Midwest's wires and got the service for nothing.

The gangsters, who paid on the basis of about $30 per week per book for 75 books, thereby were able to save this $2,250 per week and to save as well the $12,000 paid by the other 400 books.

"What's more, we ain't ever going to pay you any more," was Guzik's defiance to the Midwest company.

"The old Capone gang is ambitious to break into the racing business," explained Atty. Robert N. Golding, who represents the Midwest company. "They figure the easiest way to get control of racing generally is to get control of the news about sporting events."

Service Stolen, Lawyer Says

"Now they are stealing this service from legitimate news channels. I was retained only two days ago and therefore I can't say just yet what will be done but I think we can be sure the Capone gang is not going to be able to control sports news."

Police added that if the Guzik racketeers—whose higherup employers are multi-millionaires—are able to control the "service" they can control all gambling in Chicago. It is explained that no handbook can operate long unless it has continuous service from all race tracks. So if Guzik could shut the service off at a book in, say the 50th ward, he, and no one else, would be able to say who could and who could not operate handbooks in that ward.

Allman Known as Foe of Books

Allman has been known as a foe of the books, but still they run, it was said.

In the event a new police commissioner takes charge in the next few weeks, one of his first tasks will be to do something about the service stealing which involves thousands of dollars per week profit. In addition, it was pointed out by some politically wise policemen, control of the service in Chcago means control of possibly 7,000 to 8,000 jobs, the kind which usually go to ex-convicts. They fear a deadly fight is brewing.

PARENTAL HOME FUGITIVE SHOT; BLAMES FARMER

Robert Dosch, 12, of 1507 Fullerton av., was in County hospital last night with a bullet wound in the right shoulder, which he said was inflicted by a farmer who chased him and a companion from a barn somewhere on Dempster rd. Saturday night.

He said he and a William Barry went to the barn after running away from the Chicago Parental home at 3600 Foster av. Saturday afternoon. He said he and Barry bandaged his wound, and that he spent Saturday night in a doorway near his home.

When he went home yesterday afternoon, his father, Joseph, called Hudson av. police, who first took him to Alexian Brothers hospital and later to County hospital.

JAP PAPER ASKS MIKADO REMOVAL AS WAR CULPRIT

TOKYO, Dec. 10 [Monday]—(AP)—Minpo [People's Choice], Tokyo's newest newspaper, created a sensation today by editorially declaring that Emperor Hirohito was responsible for the war and advocating his removal from politics thru abdication.

"It is a clear fact that hostilities were started by the imperial rescript declaring war," and therefore "his majesty cannot evade responsibility for bringing about the situation wherein Japan finds itself today," Minpo said.

[Hirohito actually signed the war rescript about eight hours after the attack on Pearl Harbor.]

The tabloid reported that the government considered establishing a regency shortly after the surrender to provide for the emperor's virtual abdication. The matter was allowed to die when the government later came to believe that "allied authorities would not be severe on the question of the emperor," Minpo explained.

528 Mile Line to Bring Natural Gas to Moscow

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 (AP)—The Moscow News disclosed today that a 528-mile pipe line bringing natural gas from Saratov to Moscow will be completed on Dec. 15. It is estimated the deposit will supply Moscow with 1,350,000 cubic meters of gas daily.

M'ARTHUR ORDERS 60 JAPS ARRESTED FOR PRISONER ATROCITIES

TOKYO, Dec. 10 [Monday]—(AP)—Gen. MacArthur today ordered the arrest of three Jap naval officers and 57 other Nipponese accused of committing atrocities against allied nationals who had been held in prisoner of war camps. Included was the commander of the infamous Cabanatuan prison camp in the Philippines.

Reports persisted among members of the Japanese diet today that allied occupation authorities would issue more lists of war criminals possibly naming additional legislators. These reports indicated the question of responsibility for the war would continue to overshadow the closing days of the extraordinary session of the diet, scheduled to end Friday.

With prospects that only one of three major government reform measures, the women's suffrage law, would be enacted before the sitting's end, political observers looked for a one week extension of the session. The regular session is due to begin Dec. 24.

BRITISH PAPERS SNIFF AT TERMS OF LOAN BY U. S.

But London Will Take It, Is Indication

BY WILLIAM FULTON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 9 — The British press grumbled about the $4,400,000,000 American loan over the weekend but the best indications are the British will take it and like it.

The most outspoken critic was the Daily Express, a big circulation paper owned by William Maxwell Aitken [Lord Beaverbrook]. It contended that rejection of the loan would not mean a breach in Britain's friendship with the United States. It was suggested that Britain might turn down the dollars and isolate its trade within the sterling area.

"Rejection of the plan would mean," the Express said, "that Britain had passed her trade on to the sterling area, a vast community of states and territories which in its internal trade, alone, accounted, in 1938, for one-third of the international commerce.

"American Policy Misguided"

"The sterling area, in fact, is the only sound foundation for a multilateral trading structure because it is a community of natural customers. If we accept the Washington plan we accept the broad lines of American commercial policy altho we must believe it to be misguided."

The Reynolds News said the British negotiators in Washington had made the best of a "bad bargain." This paper complained that the United States had not been generous to her ally, but that Britain had little choice.

A solemn warning that America might walk into the world's markets and "scoop the pool" was sounded by London's Sunday Dispatch. The Dispatch asserted that the need was to get new machinery from the United States at once and produce at full speed.

Advantages Are Cited

The Daily Mail said that the agreements were not perfect but if the British waited for perfection they would wait until doomsday for recovery. A similar view was taken by the Sunday Observer which said the loan scheme had advantages which offset the disadvantages.

Meanwhile, lines were being drawn in parliament over the forthcoming vote on the loan. Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer, will move in the house of commons Wednesday that the Bretton Woods plan for international financing be accepted. The debate is expected to last for two days.

Members of parliament opposed to the loan will hold meetings tomorrow and Tuesday but the Laborite government with its big majority is expected to whip the recalcitrants into line.

SILK HOSE OR RUIN?

LONDON, Dec. 9 (AP)—To the average Londoner the proposed $4,400,000,000 United States loan to Britain means some silk stockings, a little more meat and tobacco, or a new pair of shoes, but there are some British who don't like it.

"It's a shocking thing," said one man in the lobby of the exclusive Dorchester hotel.

"We'll never be able to export enough to pay for our imports. We'll live on the fat of the land for two years and then be worse off than we were before. By then there'll be American lorries [trucks] in Australia and New Zealand and we'll have lost any foreign markets we might have had."

A banker from the staid "City," London's financial district, pointed out that the loan was being made at $4.03 to the pound when "it should have been at $3" and declared: "It's a crazy thing, trying to keep a set exchange rate. It never has worked and it never will."

Markets for Billions

"I suppose we should be grateful for a gift of four billion dollars," he said, "because that's what it will be. We haven't paid the last loan: How can we pay this one? America gets our markets and we get her $4,000,000,000.

"We had all the cards in our hand, too, if we'd just played them right. There are only two things we really need from the United States—cotton and tobacco. Already they've got 20 million bales of cotton stored in the south. What do you think would have happened if the United States government had said, 'You can't export to England?' The south would never have stood for it."

"Britain is ruined," he went on, "and she's acting like any other bankrupt—borrowing money. We were used to getting along without things. We should have just tightened our belts and gone on."

But to the man in the street who has been living in cold houses, eating scanty rations and doing without everything, the relief looks good. And every one interprets it in terms of what he or she wants most.

From London's East End working class areas came such comments as:

"Maybe we'll get some silk stockings now."

"Hope it means more than one and tuppence [23 cents] worth of meat a week. It's not enough for a working man."

"The papers say more food and clothing. That's good enough for me."

There is not as much interest in the loan, tho, as there was in the cessation of lend-lease, and nobody thinks Britain got the better of any bargain.

Typical comments:

"It's a tough deal, but we had to have it."

"It's the only way we could live."

Worried by Wrangling

One thing that seems to bother people is that "there was so much wrangling about it."

The banker had one final caustic comment:

"The trouble with this country is that nobody knows anything about finance. And most of the bankers never studied banking. They just inherited it."

CONVALESCENT VET'S $500 GONE

LOAN TO BRITAIN UNDER FIRE ON A WIDE FRONT

able, are estimated to be in the neighborhood of 700,000,000 fine ounces."

This is based on the assumption that South Africa has enough ore to continue the present rate of production of approximately 12,000,000 ounces for 40 years, which would amount to a total of approximately 500,000,000 fine ounces of gold underground.

24½ Billions' Worth

"It is estimated that another 200,000,000 fine ounces of gold will cover the other gold-producing areas of the British empire. These figures are of course, very rough estimates."

At the American gold price of $35 an ounce the unmined reserves are worth 24½ billions.

White quoted a letter from Assistant Atty. Gen. Wendell Berge stating that "the diamond reserves of the British empire, according to an estimate made by Don C. Bliss of the American embassy in London, are 43,847,000 carats." The British government and the operating companies, said the Idaho congressman, "are very close mouthed as to their diamond resources and mining operations" but Berge got his figure in the course of a recent investigation of diamond industry cartels.

Another 8.7 Billions

"The value of diamond jewels,' said White, "is variously estimated from $200 to $1,200 per carat. In making a conservative estimate of the British diamond reserve at $200 per carat, it appears the British have a reserve of diamonds amounting to $8,769,400,000."

For his figure on British foreign investments White gave the authority of the commerce department which reported:

"At the end of 1944 the estimated total of British investments in all countries was between £3,000,000,000 and £3,500,000,000.

"British government had two and one-half billions in bonds and investments in this country in 1941 and have since sold eight hundred million.

Loan Well Secured

"They secured an RFC loan of $390,000,000 which they reduced by selling the $800,000,000 mentioned above. This loan is now $260,000,000, covered by pledged assets amounting to $700,000,000."

The value of the foreign investment is figured on the basis of $4 to the pound sterling. The 2½ billion investment in this country is stated in dollars.

White said that all that is definitely known of the British treasury gold reserve is that it was increased 600 million dollars by purchase of gold from the United States between Jan. 1, 1943, and Oct. 31, 1945.

Silver Lend-Leased

The United States treasury also lend-leased 300 million ounces of silver to the British for Empire coinage use. It is to be melted down and returned eventually.

"Right here," said White, "our government and the American people should take warning from our past experience with British manipulation of silver money after the last war when they extracted and sold 90,000,000 ounces of silver obtained by debasing their subsidiary coinage which was reduced from 0.925 fine to 0.500 fine and then shifted the money of India from a gold exchange basis to a gold bullion basis.

"This money manipulation was operated to retire and replace India silver coinage with paper currency and was followed by dumping the melted down silver bullion on the world market—a scheme that broke the price of silver bullion to lower than 25 cents per ounce, thereby destroying the purchasing power of our oriental customers, which stated a price decline and business stagnation that spread across the country with disastrous results to our national economy."

VATICAN FIGHTING TO SAVE FASCISM, SAYS BOLSHEVIK WRITER

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 (AP)—Commentator P. Efimov, writing in Moscow Bolshevik, said today "the Vatican is using the power of its apparatus, which is scattered all over the world, to save the remnants of fascism. The Vatican is one of the centers of post-war reaction, and the holy father is busy not so much with prayer as with burning international problems."

The writer said the pope appeared to him to be concerned especially with the situation in Spain "and afraid of the victory of democracy in that country—that Franco, the last Hitlerite protege, will be found in the dock, on trial."

He charged that the Vatican was devoting much attention to Latin America, "where it is helping to protect Fascists."

Missing Laborite M. P. Found Dead on Moorland

LONDON, Dec. 9—(AP)—J. E. Whittaker, 48, Laborite member of parliament who has been missing since Friday, was found dead today on the moors near Burnley, the British Press association said. Whittaker, elected last July, and who had been ill for some time, apparently died of exposure.

A JAP WHO WENT BACK TO NIPPON IS SO SORRY NOW

'Didn't Realize It Was So Bad,' He Says

URAGA, Japan, Dec. 9 (AP)—Tom Satoshi Yoshiyama, who used to be an American but didn't like it, is back in Japan today at his own request—but now he is convinced he should have stayed in San Francisco.

In this dreary reception center, crowded with Japanese repatriates from the United States, the Pacific islands and Singapore, he says disgustedly:

"I never realized it was as bad in this country as it is. Please do me a favor and send a message to other Japanese in the United States who are thinking of coming to Japan. Tell them that I urge them to stay where they are."

Yoshiyama, who was born in Salinas, Cal., 27 years ago, was within one-half year of being graduated from San Francisco State Teachers' college when war broke out. He was put in the Santa Anita camp.

He Was "Pushed Around"

"I renounced by United States citizenship because I felt I was being pushed around," said Yoshiyama, who had visited Japan three times before the war. "I had always thought I should be on an equal basis with Caucasian fellows. I could not even use a public swimming pool in San Francisco.

"Then when the war came I felt sure democracy did not apply to me because of the way I was treated. That hit me hard, because I had always considered myself a good American. I had been a Boy Scout, Future Farmer of America, basketball captain—then all of a sudden I was shunned."

Yoshiyama said he "does not feel bitter toward the United States and still is willing to coöperate." He renounced his citizenship in December, 1943, and admitted, "I was convinced then that Japan would win the war. I just got mad at America, I guess."

Iwo Convinced Him

Yoshiyama said he became convinced Japan had lost the war when he heard of the capture of Iwo. Asked why he realized Japan had lost when others still thought she was winning, he said "Hell, I had common sense."

Yoshiyama was one of the bad boys of the Tule Lake war relocation center and one of the ringleaders of disturbances there. He spent eight months in the stockade as a result. He is busy now telling other Japanese the camp officials "stole food that belonged to the Japanese and were running a black market."

His biggest cause of discontent right now is that his bride of two months is in the United States. So far, only wives of diplomats have been returned to Japan. He complains there is no way to let her know he has arrived safetly in Japan.

MANCHURIA RAIL LINE EVACUATED BY CHINESE REDS

Sino-Russian Control Board Set Up

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 9 (AP)—A Chinese government dispatch said today that Chinese Communist forces along the Changchun [Manchuria] railroad had been ordered to evacuate—but failed to answer the question: Was it Russia who ordered them out, or the Chinese government?

The dispatch said traffic on the line has been unbroken between Harbin and Dairen since Nov. 25—which, if true, means Chinese Communists do not control any part of that section.

Joint Board Set Up

Indicating progress in contemplated Sino-Japanese control of the railroad, the dispatch said a joint board of auditors—three Chinese and three Russians, with a Russian as chairman—was set up at Harbin.

Three Chinese and four Russians already have taken up their work on the railroad's new joint board of directors at Changchun, the dispatch added. The recent Sino-Russian treaty called for five Chinese and five Russian directors.

War Lord Withdraws

Another government dispatch alleged that Manchurian War Lord Chang Hsueh-shih—a brother of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang—was withdrawing his troops from Mukden on orders from the Chinese Communists, rather than waiting to greet government forces as allies.

It said his withdrawal was ordered by Gen. Chu Teh, communist commander-in-chief, "to conserve the strength of Communist forces."

DIRTY JAP CITY CLEANED UP BY HINSDALE YANK

And Lt. Lowe Makes Its People Do It

BY DONALD STARR
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TOKYO, Dec. 9—Occupation directives aimed at war criminals and the Zaibatsu touch lightly, if at all, the common people of Japan, even tho they live in the fringe of Tokyo which is the nerve center of Gen. MacArthur's headquarters as well as the Japanese government. But in Funebashi, a fishing center on Tokyo bay, the 70,000 residents know the Americans are changing old Japan.

A new era has been brought to this seafood center thru the tireless efforts of Lt. Everett Lowe, Hinsdale, Ill., commander of the auto maintenance company which settled in Funebashi. Lt. Lowe took one look at conditions and decided that Japan's reputation for cleanliness and orderliness left something to be desired, since the streets were full of dirt, trash and garbage.

He ordered the mayor to call on him for a conference. Two days later 5,000 residents attacked the streets with shovels, brooms and other weapons. Now one can sit in the streets without soiling his clothing. This project set a precedent. When Lt. Lowe sees something which needs attention he informs the mayor, and his requests meet with prompt compliance.

Use Jap Boat Lumber

Lowe employs 40 to 50 Jap laborers, skilled and unskilled, in his shops, which formerly housed a company manufacturing Jap suicide boats. The boat builders had a plentiful supply of lumber on hand that is now being converted into useful construction projects for the company's necessities and luxuries. The enlisted men's mess hall has new tables and benches. A fresh flower appears on each table daily. Tubbed evergreen shrubs line the walls, their beauty enhanced by a backdrop of silken drapes.

"When I want something I simply tell the Japs what I want and I get it," Lowe says.

The enlisted men under Lowe's command are more than satisfied with their lot, altho he insists on strict obedience to orders. They are not permitted to leave the company area until the day's work is done, and then only on a pass good until 11 p. m. His rule on fraternization is no stricter than that observed in Tokyo, yet the record of his men is much better. He has not had one reported case of venereal disease among his men in two months.

Have Own Entertainment

Lowe offers entertainment within the area. Enlisted men have their own clubroom, a bar complete with beer, double feature movies, strictly supervised dances and countless other frills. The officers enjoy life on a similar scale. As Lt. Willard Teilhausen, Wauwatosa, Wis., said on his return to the company after three weeks in a hospital, "It's so fancy around here I'm uncomfortable."

The men of the company have a different idea, however. Recently an 8th army special services recreation officer visited the 289th ordnance company, as the outfit is known officially, to offer five day conducted outings at mountain and seaside resorts. Lowe told the men of the offer, but not a single man in the company requested permission to go. Moreover, friends of the men in the company are using two day passes to visit in Lowe's area.

Lowe is counting the days until he can return to Hinsdale to assume management of the Welker Tool and Die works, owned by his aunt, Mrs. Everett Welker. When asked what he gave the Japanese in return for their loyalty and labor he replied, without a trace of facetiousness, "I give them good advice."

THE QUESTION

What is your favorite bed time snack?

WHERE ASKED

St. Clair and Ohio sts.

THE ANSWERS

Ted H. Cope, assistant hotel manager, 162 E. Ohio st.—I like cheese and crackers particularly Roquefort. It must be good nippy cheese and crisp crackers. And I eat plenty of that snack. In fact, sometimes when I haven't had time to eat, I make a full meal of it. I like most imported cheese because it is rich and tasty.

Hugh Brown, hotel service superintendent, 162 E. Ohio st.—Peanut butter on plain bread and a glass of milk suits me. I don't care for much, because I want to be sure to get my rest and sleep. But I do love just a little food at bedtime. Not too much, tho, and I don't want it too highly seasoned. I like plain food.

Dr. Morrison D. Beers, Milwaukee, Wis.—I share the preference of President Coolidge for hot chocolate. I like mine made with water, rather sweet, and with a good big clump of whipped cream on top. We used to have hot chocolate in the army as a bed time snack once in awhile. With it we'd eat caviar that came from friends.

Mrs. Mary Vaughn, government employee, Cincinnati, O.—Hot chocolate is the best bed time snack. I like it made with milk. It helps me to sleep soundly. And I have it on the bitter-sweet side — not too much sugar. And no whipped cream, because that's too fattening. Vanilla cookies go with the drink.

Mrs. Janet Oman, housewife, 162 E. Ohio st.—Of all things, black coffee and a sweet roll. Sometimes I think the coffee keeps me awake, but it doesn't seem to keep me from drinking it. I do limit the indulgence to one cup, however, and one roll. And no butter. I like coffee very much and I have a weakness for coffee cake.

Mrs. Hedy Hilbert, housewife, 4851 N. Claremont av.—I like any kind of fruit, but my particular preference is persimmons. I don't think it's good to eat at bed time, but if I feel I must eat, then I think fruit is the least harmful thing I can take. I can eat three persimmons before I go to bed, but I know I should eat only one.

BRITISH PREPARE TO MOVE TROOPS FROM INDO-CHINA

SAIGON, Indo-China, Dec. 9 (AP)—The British were preparing today to withdraw their forces from Indo China for occupational duties elsewhere, leaving to the French the task of completing restoration of order in their colonial possession.

The British already have turned over virtually all guard duties to the French at Cholon, near Saigon.

The withdrawal is expected to coincide with completion of the movement of disarmed Japanese troops, some of whom already have been started on the march from the Saigon area to Camp St. Jacques, embarkation point for Japan.

Maintain Jap Garrisons

Until the French can take over all guard duties, some Japanese garrisons will be maintained to protect French nationals stranded at such points at Dalat Hill station and Nhatrang.

The Japanese may remain several months at the embarkation point because of lack of transportation. As a means of self-protection 10 per cent of the Japanese columns are permitted to retain their arms until they reach Cap St. Jacques.

Snipers Ambush Convoy

A new incident emphasizing British desire to withdraw from Indo China occurred Friday, when an Indian army road convoy was ambushed by snipers and grenade throwers, killing two Indian troops and wounding 10, including two commissioned officers.

A joint British-French statement today reported further progress in occupying towns in southwest Cochin China held by rebellious Annamese. The towns included Travinh, 70 miles south of Saigon, and Omon, 100 miles from Saigon.

20 CARTONS OF CIGARETS STOLEN

Burglars broke into the Jackson restaurant, 600 Lake st., early yesterday and stole 20 cartons of cigarets, 2 boxes of cigars and $3 in cash, the owner, Mrs. Ellen Jackson, reported to police.

INDONESIAN GROUND GUNS SHOOT DOWN FIRST BRITISH PLANE

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 9 (AP)—A Mosquito fighter-bomber, the first plane to be destroyed in the Java fighting, was shot down today by Indonesian anti-aircraft fire, according to an official British statement. The crew was killed. An Indian mobile patrol engaged 200 Indonesians on the road between Waroe and Taman, south of Soerabaja.

The Indonesian news agency, Antara, reported today that Japanese troops raided the Indonesian army headquarters at Bengkula, Sumatra, last Nov. 27 and 28 and arrested 300 Indonesians.

The bodies of a British brigade major and a woman Red Cross worker missing a week from a Padang, Sumatra, swimming beach, were found buried at a village near Padang today. The British army announced that several natives were shot and others arrested for the murders.

POLICE QUESTION WIDOW OF JUKE BOX GANG VICTIM

Police investigating the Saturday night shotgun assassination of John Kowalski Jr., 38, of 1442 Sedgwick st., killed as he repaired a juke box in the tavern at 1801 Huron st., yesterday questioned his widow, Mrs. Marie Kowalski, 26.

She appeared at the Racine av. station accompanied by her brother, Nicholas Galento, owner of the tavern at 36 N. Wells st., and told Lt. Elmer Mulvihill that she knew of no reason why any one should want to murder her husband. She said she last saw him alive when he left home at 3 p. m. Saturday and that he telephoned her at 6 p. m. that he would be home for dinner. They have a 2 year old son.

Police also sought for questioning Kowalski's father and four brothers, associated with him in the Hitone Electrical Maintenance service at 2326 Grand av., which was bombed last July. Police said Kowalski had about 60 juke boxes in taverns on a percentage basis, and estimated his income at approximately $50,000 a year.

Dublin Milkers Strike for $22 Weekly Minimum

DUBLIN, Eire, Dec. 9 [Reuters]—Many Dublin homes were left without their milk supply today as a result of the unexpected midnight strike of milkers. Most of the large city dairies, however, received their supply. Strikers demand a minimum wage equivalent to $22 per week and two weeks' vacation. The Cow Keepers' association meets tomorrow to consider the position.

SELLING OF U. S. SURPLUS FREES YANKS IN BURMA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 9—Walter Schleiter, American foreign liquidation commissioner for India, announced today that all American army surpluses inside Burma will be transferred to buyers by Dec. 15. This will release some 5,000 American troops for immediate shipment home.

Two major collecting points for surpluses were established at Myitkyina and Bhamo in northern Burma where everything from bulldozers to worn shirts was sold to private buyers for about $1,000,000. Transactions had been blocked for several months when the Burma government at first did not agree that the United States could sell surpluses free of duty or to permit the United States government to trade with the public.

The Burmese sought to get the goods on a memorandum basis without cash, but this was refused by Schleiter. Furthermore the British government in London refused to allow cash payments. London, according to Burmese government officials, is holding Burma as a market for British goods.

Italian Coalition Cabinet Formed by De Gasperi

ROME, Dec. 10 [Monday] [Reuters]—Alcide de Gasperi formed a new Italian government early today. The cabinet consists of representatives of all six parties which made up the former coalition government. Principal appointments were: Prime minister and minister of foreign affairs, De Gasperi; vice premier and minister of the constituent assembly, Pietro Nenni; Interior minister, Giuseppe Romita.

CHECK WRITER STOLEN

Sam Sazett, manager of the Mayfair Construction company, 5640 N. Keeler av., told police yesterday that burglars broke into his plant and took a check writer valued at $100.

MARINES' CLASH IN CHINA MAKES ANOTHER CRISIS

Believe Generals Want Reds Recognized

BY JOSEPH HEARST
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 9—American policy was delicate in North China as the situation there was brought into sharp focus today with the firing on an undefended village by American marines, an action many observers feel will result in renewed demands in the United States for clarification of the role of the marines in the undeclared civil war in China.

Dispatches reaching Shanghai say a village 40 miles southwest of Chinwangtao was shelled with mortars after the village headman refused to surrender two Chinese accused of killing one marine and wounding another while the marines were rabbit hunting.

Whether women and children were killed in the shelling was not stated. It is recalled here that several weeks ago Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in China, authorized marines to attack villages if the inhabitants continued attacks on the Tientsin-Chinwangtao railroad, thus endangering marine lives.

Seek Unified Plan

It is believed that a conference held at Tokyo among Gen. MacArthur, Lt. Gen. Wedemeyer, Adm. Spruance and Vice Adm. Barbey may have reduced the views of these military leaders to a unified plan for American action in China, a plan that can be passed on to Gen. Marshall when he arrives in China to take over his ambassadorial duties.

It is understood here that at least some of these military leaders strongly back views expressed by Secretary of State Byrnes that the Chinese government must be broadened to include representatives of organized groups now without a voice in the government. These leaders feel that unless this representation is allowed efforts to build a strong, democratic, united China will be futile.

However, while representatives of the government and the Chinese Communists confer more or less futilely upon the role to be given Communists in China's government, actual fighting between Nationalist and Communist forces continues in many areas, and it is clear that resentment against Americans for the aid they are giving the central government is increasing among Communists and organized guerrilla bands. The refusal of the village headman to surrender the Chinese snipers to the marines is only one of a number of incidents that show the rising communist feeling against Americans.

Want Japs to Keep Arms

The assertions from Washington that the marines must remain in North China to facilitate the surrender of the Japanese is puzzling to those who are on the scene and know that the reason thousands of Japanese soldiers still have weapons is because the Chinese government does not desire that they be disarmed.

When the marines moved into China October 7 there were 325,000 armed Japanese between the Yellow river and the Great Wall. Today probably 275,000 of these Japanese are still armed in order to aid the Nationalists in holding certain areas against the communists, and to guard railroads and lines of communication.

In addition, troops who stand between Communists and the areas they desire to control, such as Tsingtao, Tientsin, Peiping, Chinwangtao, include about 52,000 marines, and 65,000 government troops.

The government forces have two armies in Manchuria, where they are moving up a railroad line to Mukden. The supply problem for these armies at times has been acute, but it has been relieved in the past 10 days by use of American-made planes flown by Chinese crews that bring supplies from Peiping.

NEW ZEALAND'S FARMERS BEGIN CASH BLOCKADE

Boycott Labor Regime's Nationalized Bank

BY QUENTIN POPE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 9—New Zealand farmers today began a nation-wide drive to impose a monetary blockade of the Labor government for its new law denying them representation in parliament equivalent to that of city regions where the administration finds most of its support.

Action committees have been appointed in every center for carrying out the following program designed to cut the government's power by trimming its finances:

1. Farmers with checking accounts at the Bank of New Zealand, the country's largest branch bank which the government recently nationalized, will shift these accounts to other banks and try to persuade others to do likewise. Farmers already are reported to be refusing to deal with individuals or firms owning accounts with the nationalized bank.

Shun Government Loans

2. Farmers will close their savings accounts with postal savings banks.

3. Farmers will withdraw all their business from the state fire insurance office and the public trust office which acts as a big time trustee and government lending agency.

4. Farmers will refuse to support any government loans launched in the future.

5. Farmers will boycott the goods of firms buying radio time to push sales of their products.

Raise Campaign Fund

Since agriculturists provide more than 90 per cent of New Zealand's foreign income and are estimated to receive at least 40 per cent of the national income, this campaign, if successful, will be likely to endanger the socialist regime.

The farmers' leaders also disclosed today that they are raising a million dollar fighting fund, part of which will be utilized for a publicity campaign designed to heighten public consciousness of the farm industry's importance to the community and the necessity for its encouragement.

Clinnin to Be Proposed for Sheriff Nomination

Paul C. Ross, 42d ward Republican committeeman, said yesterday that he will propose the nomination of John V. Clinnin, attorney and retired major general, as the Republican candidate for sheriff next year. Ross said he would appear before the party's committee on candidates in county headquarters in the La Salle hotel this afternoon. Clinnin has been indorsed by Ross' organization.

SHOWUP FAILS TO NAME 3 IN BOOKIE HOLDUPS

Renoro Lolli, 39, of 6311 Eggleston av., James J. Kelly, 37 of 2813 Warren blvd., and Richard Todd, 39, of 1824 Adams st., held as suspects in a series of handbook holdups, appeared in a police showup yesterday but were not identified by any holdup victims.

Rolli, questioned by Sgt. Frank Pape of the detective bureau, related details of several of the holdups, recalling that in a holdup of the handbook on the second floor at 226 N. Clark st. on Nov. 28, the bandits removed the trousers from 14 victims to prevent pursuit.

One member of the gang, Christ Perres, 27, of Joliet, was slain in a gun battle with police in the rear of 2216 Kimball av. Friday night. Another, Lawrence [Tiny] Mazzanars, 34, of 3402 Lyndale st., who was wounded in the shoulder in the battle, is in Bridewell hospital. Five other suspects are sought.

HOUSE OF LORDS TO HEAR PLEA OF LORD HAW HAW

Sit in Judgment Today on Traitor's Appeal

William Joyce

LONDON, Dec. 9. (AP)—Britain's house of lords will take up tomorrow the appeal of William Joyce, whose hope of escaping the gallows rests with the very body he mocked in his war time broadcasts for the Nazis.

Three or more lords of appeal, constituting a court of last resort, will listen to arguments for three or four days and then decide whether to uphold or reverse the verdict of the king's court which found Joyce guilty of high treason and sentenced him to death.

Sits in Notables' Box

Joyce, who was nicknamed "Lord Haw Haw" by the British because of the pseudo-aristocratic accent he used on the German radio, will be judged by real peers of the realm.

To make the turnabout complete, the scar-faced little condemned man will occupy the diplomatic box—normally reserved for ambassadors and other distinguished visitors—when the lords in their traditional wigs open the hearing. The arguments will be presented in the king's robing room, the chamber used by the lords since the commons chamber was destroyed by bombs in 1941.

Claims German Citizenship

In his appeal Joyce is not denying that he made broadcasts from Germany seeking to divide and frighten the British in their darkest days of the war. Neither is the Brooklyn-born Joyce claiming the protection of American citizenship, as he did during his trial.

Lawyers appointed by the court to represent him have based their appeal on the grounds that Joyce became a German citizen in 1939, even tho he travelled to Germany on a British passport.

Father Was U. S. Citizen

New York, Dec. 9 [Special]—At his trial, William Joyce presented documents to show he was born April 24, 1906, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Other documents showed that his father, Michael F. Joyce, came to this country from his native Galway, Ireland, in 1886, that he lived in Brooklyn when he was naturalized on Feb. 26, 1898.

A frayed marriage certificate showed that Michael Joyce and Gertrude Emily Brooke, also a native of Ireland, were married at All Saints' Catholic church in New York City in 1905.

Michael reemigrated to Ireland in 1909 and never returned, it was shown. The evidence revealed that thereafter the Joyces posed as British subjects.

Joyce at the trial did not claim to be an American citizen. He claimed to have been an American citizen until Sept. 26, 1940, when he became naturalized as a German. The prosecution contended that he had adhered to the king's enemies a year previously, Sept. 18, 1939, when he signed his contract with the German radio.

CHICAGO MARINE INVENTS HOLDER FOR YULE TREE

How to make a well balanced Christmas tree from a scrubby tree was a problem solved by the invention of a Chicago marine, Sgt. Richard Doherty, 10226 S. Peoria st., who is now on his way home from the Pacific. The device, which is now being manufactured in Chicago, is made from a 15 mm. primer from a naval shell. A screw is inserted so that it sticks out from the closed end of the small tubelike primer. It is then screwed into the trunk of the tree. A small branch inserted into the tube's open end makes a branch where nature forgot to put one.

AUSSIE STRIKES SPREAD; 500,000 TO BE AFFECTED

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 9 (AP)—Hopes for an early settlement of strikes which have paralyzed industry thruout Australia faded today with an announcement that union leaders had rejected a management proposal to end a walkout of 35,000 steelworkers, miners, and seamen.

Continuation of the week old strikes, which already have affected 300,000 workers, will mean that more than 500,000 persons will be idle within 48 hours because of a shortage of coal and electric power.

Trade unionists demonstrated today in most Australian communities for a 40 hour week.

BRITISH TO TAKE OVER U. S. CIVIL RULE OF DISTRICT OF BREMEN

LONDON, Dec. 9 [Reuters]—British authorities will take over military government administration in the Bremen district from the United States tomorrow, it was announced today.

United States occupation forces will retain security and operational control, however, and the Americans will retain control of the ports of Bremen and Bremerhaven.

The Bremen enclave, hitherto an American administered area within the British occupation zone, was carved out of the provinces of Hanover and Oldenburg to provide the land locked American zone to the southeast with an outlet to the sea.

GANDHI TO MEET WAVELL TODAY FOR DISCUSSION

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 9—(AP)—Political interest of all India focused today on Calcutta, where Mohandas K. Gandhi and Viceroy Wavell will meet tomorrow for the first time since their series of discussions at the Simla conferences last June and July. There has been no indication of what subjects will be discussed.

The 77 year old Congress leader has spent four days in discussion with R. G. Casey, governor of Bengal, and has met with leading figures in the Congress party.

Hitler Ordered Use of Jews, He Says

returning from the states that public opinion had very much turned itself against Germany after some such espionage activities had been discovered.

Canaris Urged to Act

"The affair itself took place in the summer of 1942. The military departments, such as the air force or the armament office of the German army, became increasingly worried and approached Canaris repeatedly to take some action to damage American resources.

"He, however, stalled them off for a while by saying he shared their opinion that something would have to be done but that he had no people in America at the time because the foreign office had forbidden him to do that sort of thing. Then—I am not quite sure whether it was in March or April, 1942—I accompanied Canaris to the headquarters of the fuehrer, and evidently the people who were interested in this had gotten in touch with the fuehrer and he called it to Canaris' attention that something would have to be done. The fuehrer made a remark about this in an unmistakable manner to Canaris and stated that the greatest activity would be necessary in America. Now here comes the interesting part.

"The first contact that we had with this affair was when suddenly an SS man by the name of Kappe appeared at our office and said that he had a number of people ready to undertake such a mission, that all of them had lived in America and were quite familiar with the ways of American life, and that one of them was even an American citizen.

Willing to Die

"They now demanded that something be undertaken so that they could be used. There was nothing that they would rather do than die for the fuehrer. These people apparently belonged to some kind of German-American group. I do not know whether they came from the association for Germans abroad. I am not quite sure from where they came.

"But, anyway, the party demanded action on this matter and they sent this man to contact us who wore the golden party medal of membership.

"Canaris already was in a 'glass house,'" that is he already had been suspected of his secret activity and could not afford to have any more stones thrown at him. He consulted me as an expert in such things, and I told him that because of the great number of persons involved in the enterprise I would have to count on failure. But here were eight fanatical Nazis who were just itching to get to work.

"Canaris replied in his typical manner, 'Well, we will lose eight good Nazis then.' Then the affair took the course that I believe is generally well-known now. Those people were transported and they were apprehended before they could ever get into action.

"From our point of view, I mean from the point of view of the intelligence service, this was the greatest failure ever. I forgot to mention before that I had at once suspected one of the eight to be an American agent.

"I mentioned that to Canaris when he discussed the thing. When you asked me before about the American counter-intelligence service I said I thought it was good. And here is proof that it was good. This affair had the code name Pastorius. The man's name who I suspected as being planted by the Americans is Dasch."

Reads from Official Diary

Lahousen then referred to the official intelligence diary and read:

"'Extensive radio news has been coming in since the early hours of June 28 that all participants in the enterprise Pastorius have been apprehended in New York and Chicago. The fact that the landing had been effected on two different points of the American coast by German submarines was clearly given: Also reports about the equipment as well as the training that they had received in the sabotage school in Berlin appeared to be correct.

"'However, the sabotage objectives, apparently for propaganda reasons, were misrepresented and played up sensationally. For instance, it is said that the sabotage action was to be directed against an important railroad bridge in New York and against a power house at Niagara Falls. Both objectives were never given for enterprise Pastorius. According to American news it must be assumed that all participants in this enterprise will be executed.'

"The real objectives," Lahousen continued, "were some aluminum factories.

Hitler Reproaches Canaris

"Hitler reproached Canaris next time we went to the fuehrer's headquarters in eastern Prussia.

"Hitler made some very critical remarks about this entire enterprise which caused a great stir and was exploited for propaganda, too. Canaris told Hitler that these people had not been trained agents but people from the party which the party had furnished. And then Hitler made the historical remark, 'Well, why didn't you take Jews for that.' He evidently thought at that time he could still find Jews to do that kind of work for him. And here is the most important after-effect of this enterprise.

"I was present when Hitler made this remark. When we left the fuehrer's headquarters Canaris said to me, 'You were a witness when he told me to use Jews.'

"Whereupon he [Canaris] went back to Berlin and said that it was the fuehrer's orders that Jews had to be given jobs in the intelligence service. Whereupon they used Jews in the intelligence service and thus saved them from the supersecret service and people like [Reinhard] Heydrich for more than a year by referring constantly to the fuehrer's order.

"Then he was called to Berchtesgaden again and taken to task by the fuehrer about using Jews, whereupon he discontinued the practice."

Asked if there were any other sabotage missions which were successful but which the Americans heard nothing about, Lahousen said:

"Not as far as I know. Only this. This was the only case."

Flaming Gasoline Hurled Into Potomac by Crash

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—An overturning fuel truck exploded today, sending flaming gasoline into the Potomac river and endangering a tanker barge loaded with gasoline. Firemen extinguished the flames before they reached the barge, but not before they had caused undetermined damage to buildings occupied by the Arlington Trust company and the Roslyn Small Loan company. The accident occurred at the Virginia end of Key bridge.

A deep wound in his back was found at County hospital after he collapsed outside the liquor store at 2021 Madison st. Martin was unable to tell police how he had been stabbed.

Sikeston, Mo., Dec. 9 [Special]—Throwing of a switch at 4 p. m. today sent electricity flowing over a newly completed transmission line to the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Gaines, whose two children, victims of infantile paralysis, were in need of electrical heat treatment.

Work on the line was begun yesterday morning by emergency crews of the Scott County Cooperative association of the rural electrification administration. Neighbors turned out to help and worked thru the night by lantern light digging postholes and stringing wire. The line was three-quarters of a mile long.

H. M. Zarecor, cooperative superintendent, said the Gaines home is not wired for electricity and that temporary service was made possible by laying a wire directly to the bedroom of the sick children, Stephen, 3, and David, 9 months. As soon as the line was energized, Mrs. Gaines adjusted electric heating pads for the children and snapped on the juice.

Each child lost the partial use of one leg in its bout with the infantile paralysis attack, which struck them Oct. 8. They were in a hospital in Cape Girardeau, Mo., until Thanksgiving day, when they were brought home. Physicians certified electric treatments were essential to their recovery.

VON RIBBENTROP SAYS HE SOUGHT TIE WITH BRITAIN

Also Opposed War with Reds, He Asserts

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 9 (AP)—Joachim von Ribbentrop, a pale ghost of the gold braided figure who ruled the Nazi foreign office for seven years, said today he worked for a German-English alliance and opposed war with Russia.

Joachim von Ribbentrop

Answering a list of questions submitted by the Associated Press, Ribbentrop asserted he extended peace feelers to both Hitler and Germany's enemies during the war.

He indignantly denied that he had misled Hitler in August, 1939, with information that Britain would not fight for Poland and that therefore a general war would not follow.

He reiterated loyalty to Hitler.

The questions, transmitted to the accused war criminal by his attorney, Dr. Fritz Sauter, and Ribbentrop's answers follow:

Q.—When did you see the fuehrer for the last time? Where? Are you convinced he is dead or still living? A.—I saw the fuehrer for the last time April 23 in the reichschancellery. I am convinced he is dead.

Drawn to Hitler

Q.—Do you still believe in the principles and objectives of national socialism? A.—Since I was not an old party member I was less concerned with the principles of national socialism. When I entered the party in 1932 I was convinced that only Adolf Hitler could save Germany from chaos. All that the fuehrer did for the workers and his whole personality drew me magnetically as a patriot under his spell. For the future I have no plans. All that I would like to do would be to be of service to the German people in some form in their great misfortune and sorrow.

Q. What were the chief reasons for Germany's defeat and what is your appraisal today of Hitler?

A. The causes for Germany's defeat, in my view, were the superiority of the enemy coalition in men and material, and also the internal situation played a role in this. In his time I swore loyalty to Adolf Hitler and held to it until his end. Would it be nice if now, when the fuehrer is dead, I spoke otherwise?

Blames Enemy Propaganda

Q. Did you tell the fuehrer in August, 1939, that England would not fight for Poland?

A. The assertion that I told the fuehrer that England would not fight for Poland is untrue. That was a propaganda invention of our former enemies. In a public speech in 1941 I made that clear. What is true is that the fuehrer, upon news of the signing of the English-Polish pact Aug. 25, 1939, held up the march of the German army which had been already ordered. This occurred on my suggestion because I knew England would fight.

Q. Were you in favor of Germany's attack on the soviet union?

A. I proposed the policy of balance and friendship with the soviet union to the fuehrer in 1939 and I signed the pact in Moscow hoping that this policy would endure for the longest time. The outbreak of hostilities with the soviet union in 1941 caused me the deepest regret and I always did what was in my power to hinder its development. The fuehrer believed he was forced to his decision because of military measures of the soviet union.

Explains Salute to King

Q. What do you hope your witnesses from Germany and abroad will testify?

A. The witnesses from Germany and foreign countries will, I believe, confirm that: 1. I always stood for a policy of peace and understanding. 2. For almost nine years of my life I worked for a conclusive German-English friendship and a German-English alliance. 3. I viewed the understanding begun with soviet Russia in 1939 as a cornerstone of German foreign policy.

Furthermore, these witnesses will be able to testify that during the war I attempted to influence the fuehrer and also the enemies to a compromise. But whether that would have been possible after three years of war I must, in the light of my experiences, doubt.

Q. What is your explanation of the national socialist salute you gave the king of England?

A. At the time I gave the national socialist salute to the king of England I wished to accord him a high honor. I know it was rightly understood. The king accepted the gesture in a very friendly fashion. Evil tongues then attempted to misrepresent the thing.

2 Yanks in Japan Killed in Needless Fire Rescue

TOKYO, Dec. 9 (AP)—Two enlisted men of the United States 24th division were burned to death as they dashed into a flaming barracks at Zentsuji, Shikoku Island, in an attempt to rescue their comrades, the 6th army disclosed today. Their heroism proved needless; all 200 men in the barracks had escaped. The fire may have been caused by defective wiring, the army said.

8,400 POUNDS SUGAR STOLEN

KALTENBRUNNER TO JOIN FELLOW NAZIS ON TRIAL

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 9 (AP)—Ernst Kaltenbrunner is expected to take his place in the prisoners' dock tomorrow with the 20 other top Nazis as the war crimes trial enters its fourth week, American authorities said today.

Kaltenbrunner, former chief of the reich security department and head of the criminal police, has recovered from a cranial hemorrhage suffered on the eve of the trial opening. He has retained his status as a defendant despite his absence for medical treatment.

A highlight this week will be the presentation of films taken by the Nazis themselves, depicting their rise to power and showing the defendants strutting thru their days of glory. A prosecution spokesman said the film would be shown probably on Tuesday, after the American prosecutors complete the presentation of documents concerning the axis' conspiracy for waging aggressive war against the United States.

CANADA UNION SUSPENDS FOUR OFFICERS AS REDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 9—Four high ranking officials of Aircraft lodge 712 of the International Association of Machinists [A.F. of L.] were suspended from that organization last night for giving support to communism and for conspiring to transfer the membership of lodge 712 to the left wing organization of the United Electrical Workers union [C.I.O.].

The four are Robert Haddow, organizer; Jean Pare, business agent; Irvin Burman, financial secretary, and Adrian Villeneuve, grand lodge representative. They were the leaders of a group of 40 delegates to the Montreal trades and labor council suspended by the council for one year for having given support to the Labor Progressive [communist] party during the last federal election.

The suspension of the four followed an investigation ordered by I.A.M. headquarters in the United States.

Press Hunt for U. S. Plane Missing on Africa Flight

ACCRA, Gold Coast, Dec. 9 [Reuters]—Search for a United States army transport Dakota plane, with 17 United States service men aboard, lost on a flight between Liberia and Accra, was continued today by army and civilian planes.

The missing plane left Roberts field, Liberia, December 4 and has not been heard of since.

'LOST REGIMENT' OF YANKS ADDS TO PARIS WOES

Believe 2,000 AWOLs Hiding in City

PARIS, Dec. 9 (AP)—Every night a "lost regiment" of perhaps 2,000 men pours into the soldier-congested areas of Paris, swells the wave of post-war petty crime, and disappears into its secret dwellings before dawn.

They are American soldiers, but they obey no orders. They are the AWOLs, and more than one-fifth of them in the European theater are believed to have drifted to Paris.

The United States army is secretive about its "absent without official leave," men, but a check of arrests by military police discloses an average of 10 AWOLS seized in Paris every day. Mostly they are caught when they commit some kind of delinquency.

They form only a part of the element responsible for the skyrocketing crime wave in Paris, and the often sensational Paris press has been careful not to place the blame either on the AWOLS, or on the American soldier stationed in Paris.

Many Are Not Americans

France Soir, in its account of a crime wave which has seen killings, shootings and beatings mount to 996 from January thru October compared with 302 for the similar period in 1939, emphasized that thousands wearing American uniforms are not American soldiers.

The French press, when it finds it necessary to refer to Americans in its crime stories, uses the terms "men in American uniform" or "a man dressed as an American soldier."

Holdups in the 10 month period in Paris totaled 18,202 compared with 3,894 in 1939, and robberies 55,199 compared with 22,236.

The typical AWOL seems to get his start by simply having too good a time and overstaying his furlough. He then figures he might as well overstay it a week as a day.

He may encounter a street girl. Generally she is only too glad to have a soldier boy to shelter. She takes him to her home.

Approached by Gangs

At bars he may be approached shortly by persons offering to serve as "fences" for goods from Red Cross clubs, where he can remove clothes or loot from pockets of other soldiers in shower rooms, gyms, and sleeping quarters.

Later he may join other AWOLS, and in gangs of from two to five they begin crimes of violence—holdups and burglaries.

A large proportion of those not caught for criminal activities are arrested because they deserted their original girl and she tipped off the police.

Mostly, however, they are caught in the act of committing crimes.

About one-third of them wear French civilian clothes.

A good proportion may never be caught. They may live out their lives in France or smuggle their way back to the United States.

Anybody AWOL for more than 20 days is automatically charged with desertion, but military courts rarely convict on that charge.

"Are you sure these aren't too sissy for a boy of his age? He's almost two."

25,000 MILE HUNT BRINGS NO TRACE OF NAVY FLYERS

Miami, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP)—Darkness blacked out any new clews to the fate of possible survivors among 27 missing naval airmen tonight, but after a day of feverish activity and exploded hopes the navy announced that the yast air-sea search will continue.

More than 25,000 square miles of Atlantic waters off the Florida east coast already have been "pin pointed" fruitlessly in the four day old hunt, with hundreds of army, navy, and coast guard planes and surface vessels scrutinizing the huge area.

"We haven't given up hope yet," a navy spokesman said. The navy said reports today that two life rafts tied together, possibly with two survivors huddled in them but apparently no longer conscious, had been found false. The supposed rafts, the navy said, were found to be packing cases bobbing in the waters some 300 miles due east of Melbourne, Fla.

An intensive land hunt was also abandoned, at least temporarily, after search parties in "weasel" marsh buggies, "alligators," and jeeps failed to turn up a clew in the wild and desolate swamplands of north central Florida where a commercial air lines pilot reported that he saw flares and blinking "signal" lights at 2 a. m. Saturday.

Report One Out of Four on Troopship to Re-enlist

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—The transport Argentina docked today with 4,424 cheering GI's from Europe, 1,190 of whom said they planned to reënlist in the regular army. Many of the prospective enlistees, who had served more than two and a half years, said they would reënlist because of unsettled civilian conditions.

TWA COMPLETES 1ST COMMERCIAL ATLANTIC RUN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—The TWA Sky Chief completed its initial trans-Atlantic commercial service flight tonight when it returned to Washington at 9:10 o'clock. The Constellation plane set a new record, TWA said, cutting 55 minutes off the Ireland to Newfoundland record for commercial planes.

It negotiated the 2,005 miles between Shannon, Eire, and Gander, Newfoundland, in 7 hours and 51 minutes. Another Constellation set the previous mark Nov. 29.

GEN. M'NARNEY DINES GERMAN DISTRICT CHIEFS

Start of a Conciliatory Policy Seen

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Dec. 9—Germans and Americans smoked the pipe of peace and broke bread together at the Stuttgart conference of three German district presidents and two ranking United States generals Dec. 4, it was learned today.

Despite Gen. Joseph T. McNarney's reiteration of Gen. Eisenhower's "hard peace" policy a fortnight ago, which shipwrecked Santa Claus' Christmas voyage to German kids, Gen. McNarney himself and Gen. Lucius Clay invited Social Democrat Wilhelm Hogner, president of the Bavarian area; the nonpolitical but Centrist minded Karl Geiler, president of greater Hessen, and Democrat Reinhold Maier, president of the north Wurttemburg Baden district, to luncheon before the council meeting.

Thawed by Luncheon

The American officers nodded stiffly with hands clasped behind their backs, and the Germans bowed deeply at the meeting. But the white bread, butter, oxtail soup, hamburger steak with onions, three vegetables, ice cream, and, principally, the delicious dry Moselle wine thawed out the frosty generals, who proffered cigarets when the cognac was served and shook hands heartily with the German officials when the meal was finished.

This marks the first occasion that the Yanks and Germans formally met socially and the first time Germans were officially entertained by the Yanks, and it is expected to break the taboo against the invitation of German young women to dine at officers' clubs and messes. Thus far, Yanks could invite fraulein to clubs to drink, smoke, and dance but were barred from offering them food.

Conciliatory Policy Seen

The gesture is believed by observers here to be the beginning of a conciliatory policy toward "German blue chips." These political leaders in the American zone will eventually compete with groomed candidates of the Russian, British, and French zone for important posts in the central reich government when, as many here expect, the allies finally decide that the body cannot function efficiently in four sections.

HOUSING COUNCIL TO LIST FAMILIES NEEDING HOMES

A census to determine how many Chicago families are without adequate living places will be undertaken this week by the Metropolitan Housing council and the newly formed committee on the Chicago housing crisis.

"We have been using the estimated figure of 32,500 veterans' families in need of homes at once and the estimate that there will be 100,000 by next spring," said Ferd Kramer, president of the housing council. "But no one knows just what the situation is, and there has not even been an estimate on the number of nonveterans who are in need of shelter.

"When I was in Washington last week the national housing administration showed much interest in our census. No other community has made such a check. We hope the census will not only help find homes for people who are now homeless, but will also serve to arouse the public to the desperate crisis in housing."

STODDARD ASKS HOUSING ACTION AT ILLINOIS U.

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 9 (AP)—Dr. George Dinsmore Stoddard, Albany, N. Y., president elect of the University of Illinois, visited the university campus today and said the housing problem will be given "top priority" when he takes office.

Administrative reorganization, and selection of deans to fill vacancies in the colleges of education and commerce, were among other matters listed for discussion in a round of conferences he scheduled with faculty committees.

At a press conference he said he believed "top priority" should be given to solving housing problems, made acute by the return of war veterans.

Stoddard said he expected to continue as commissioner of education for the state of New York until July 1.

Warns of Paganism

America is threatened by a tidal wave of paganism, the Rev. Albert Murray of Old St. Mary's parish told members of the Chicago Notre Dame club at their annual communion breakfast in the Blackstone hotel yesterday. The breakfast marked formal announcement of the opening of the club's permanent offices at 12 S. La Salle st.

SEEK TO FORM U. S.-RUSS TRADE UNIONS GROUP

MOSCOW, Dec. 9 [Reuters]—Negotiations are under way for organization of an American-soviet trade unions committee, Mikhail Tarasov, secretary of the All Union Central Council of Soviet Trade Unions, disclosed in a report to the council of last October's world trade unions conference in Paris, Tass news agency reported today.

Anglo-soviet and Franco-soviet trade union committees have been in existence since 1941 and 1945 respectively, he added.

Tarasov noted that soviet trade union delegations recently visited the United States, Britain, France, Romania, and Bulgaria, and that at the invitation of the All-Union Central council and the central committees of the various trade unions, delegations from the United States, Britain, Italy, France, Romania, Poland, Czechoslovakia, and Australia visited the soviet union.

RED SAYS 200 FAMILIES STILL RULE IN FRANCE

LONDON, Dec. 9 [Reuters]—A commentator in the Moscow newspaper "Bolshevik" today said that Gen. De Gaulle's French government had left "largely untouched the famous 200 families which ruled the country before the war," Moscow radio said tonight.

"The parties of great capital which are hostile to the people and to democracy continue their activities openly and with unity," the commentator said. "The government has not organized a real purge of the administration which still contains fascist and profascist elements. The majority of collaborators coolly occupy their former positions.

"With the exception of a few government criminals particularly hated by the masses the men guilty of France's disgrace and fall have not been handed over to justice and punishment."

The Legion!

By MARK MERIT

Schenley Post #1190, American Legion, has just broken all previous membership records since its organization. We have just learned from the Post's Headquarters in the Empire State Building, that 21 new members were inducted at the Post's November meeting. Twenty of these new members are veterans of World War II. Schenley Post thus is entering its eighth year of service with a membership of 187 of our present and former employees. Eighty-six of them served in the first World War and 101 gave their services in World War II.

Of course, a great many of our boys have not as yet returned and we hope they, too, will be with us soon, in the jobs which are waiting for them. Likewise, we know, the Schenley American Legion Post will greet them with a similar welcome.

This experience, it is interesting to note, is being duplicated all over America—by other Posts. A fine thing, we think, for the American Legion to have a composite membership of seasoned citizens and these new younger men. There we have both maturity—and middle age—plus the hopefulness and enthusiasm of youth . . . a fine balance.

This country in all of its long history, has always tempered the aggressiveness of youth with the calm maturity of seasoned judgment and experience. And by the same token the fresh virile progressiveness of youth has kept our oldsters from becoming too complacent—complacency is apt to live in the past instead of the present.

BELIEVE CLINE'S FRIEND A DOUBLE OF MRS. KREBS

Identified as Woman Who Disappeared Nov. 17

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 9 [Special]—Police Capt. John Engler said tonight that a San Francisco woman who disappeared Nov. 17 after telling friends she planned to marry Alfred Leonard Cline bore a striking resemblance to the former Mrs. Delora Krebs, wealthy Chicago woman, whom Cline married in Chicago May 26, 1944.

He said this resemblance may account for the fact that employes of the Heathman hotel, Portland, Ore., where a woman registered as Mrs. Cline died Nov. 29, have tentatively identified an old photograph of the former Mrs. Krebs as that of the woman who died there.

A possibility that the former Chicago widow may have been dead for several months or a year has been raised by Chicago attorneys for the estate of the late Charles E. Krebs, who charge that Cline, now held here on a forgery charge, has been forging her name for the last year to annulty checks and securities.

See Theory Bolstered

The theory that the woman who died in Portland was not Mrs. Delora Krebs Cline but her double was regarded as strengthened by discovery of her resemblance to the missing San Francisco woman.

Capt. Engler said the San Francisco woman was Mrs. Isabelle Van Natta, a widow who lived alone at 1124 O'Farrell st., in a section of the city devoted to middle class homes. She was 73, the same age as the former Chicago woman.

Mrs. Van Natta's name came to police attention thru a check of names listed in notebooks kept by Cline and found in his room at the Mark Twain hotel here after his arrest Friday, the captain said. There were 20 San Francisco women listed as well as about 40 women living in other parts of the country, including several in Chicago and one in Milwaukee.

Told Neighbors About Cline

Police who went to Mrs. Van Natta's address learned she had met a man named Cline a few weeks ago and had told neighbors she was going to marry him and move "up north." She packed her belongings and sold her furniture and left with Cline Nov. 17, neighbors said.

Capt. Engler said it was on Nov. 24 that Cline arrived at the Heathman hotel, Portland, and registered there with a woman as Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Cline. This woman died in the hotel Nov. 29, and a Portland physician certified death as due to cerebral hemorrhage. Cline notified relatives of the former Mrs. Krebs that she had died, and had the body cremated after private funeral services.

Engler said that a woman's clothes found in Cline's automobile, which was found today in a San Francisco garage, have been identified by neighbors of Mrs. Van Natta as garments belonging to her at the time she went away. These included a coat and several dresses.

Atty. Gerald Ryan of Chicago, representing the Krebs estate, said that no relative or friend of the former Mrs. Krebs heard from her directly after October, 1944. Since that time, he said, all letters were written by Cline who explained his wife could no longer write because of paralysis of the hand.

"Such a Nice Man"

Police interviews with other San Francisco women listed in Cline's notebooks disclosed that he posed variously as a real estate owner, artist, carpenter, and student of religion, Engler said. "He was such a nice man," he quoted one woman as saying.

Cline, 56, is an ex-convict who has inherited money from two previous wives. He retained Jake Ehrlich, well known local criminal lawyer, as his attorney. Police said they will ask a court order tomorrow to examine the ashes of the woman who died in Portland, now in a cemetery here.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 10—Spanish-American Treaty

FORTY-SEVEN years ago today, in Paris, France, representatives of the United States and of Spain concluded the treaty which put an official end to the Spanish-American war. Actual hostilities had ceased nearly four months earlier when defeated Spain had empowered the French ambassador to the United States to sign a peace protocol in Washington.

The principal difference between the protocol and the treaty was that while the former had left the future of the Philippine islands undetermined the latter provided for the cession of this Spanish ruled archipelago to the United States and for the payment by the United States to Spain of $20,000,000.

America had become a far eastern power unexpectedly, a logic of events overruling earlier intention. The war begun largely because of American sympathy for Cuba and resentment against the anarchy which had been the upshot of Spain's rule there. However, Adm. Dewey had won a great victory over the Spanish fleet in Manila bay in the first days of hostilities and one thing led to another until the United States found itself deeply involved in the eastern as well as the western hemisphere.

The best solution, the American peace commissioners believed, was for the United States to accept full responsibility for the Philippines. The alternatives were to return the islands to Spain, to grant them an immediate and precarious independence, or to give them over to an international trusteeship.

Spain fought hard against the demand for the islands, but eventually acceded.

However, there was a large body of opinion in the American senate and among the American people hostile to the idea of commitments so far away and of such dubious constitutionality. There was also a question as to the ethics of the act. The treaty was finally ratified by the senate by a two-thirds majority plus a single vote.

CONNIE BENNETT SIGNS BOXES FOR POLIO FUND HERE

Constance Bennett, movie actress, stopped in Chicago yesterday and autographed collection boxes for two young campaigners in the Sister Kenny drive to raise $500,000 in Illinois for infantile paralysis education and treatment. The blonde movie star, who carried her French poodle in her arms, was en route to New York from the west coast to confer on a new production. At the station to greet her with their campaign boxes were Roy Fallon, 15, of 6758 Wentworth av., and Don Nordstrom, 14, of 5800 S. Peoria st. Approximately $150,000 of the Illinois polio fund is expected to be raised by the close of the campaign Christmas day.

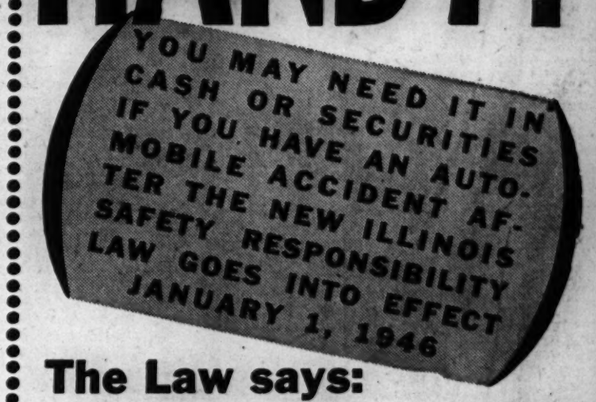
DO YOU HAVE $11,000* HANDY?

DON'T trifle with the new Illinois Safety Responsibility Law! The State is going to crack down on irresponsible drivers who cause accidents and leave innocent victims holding the bag! The law demands that every driver be in position to pay--and that includes you no matter if you are a careful driver--no matter if you've never had an accident! If you value your right to drive you'll establish your "safety responsibility" without delay!*



YOU MAY NEED IT IN CASH OR SECURITIES IF YOU HAVE AN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT AFTER THE NEW ILLINOIS SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY LAW GOES INTO EFFECT JANUARY 1, 1946

The Law says:

You may establish your "ability to pay" by depositing cash or other security, (as much as $11,000 may be required) satisfactory to the Secretary of State, available to pay judgments which other parties may obtain against you growing out of the accident, or by showing that you were covered by insurance or proper bond to meet such claims. If these requirements are not met you will lose your operator's license and all car registrations unless you settle the case with other parties.

LOW-COST EMPLOYERS MUTUAL LIABILITY INSURANCE PROTECTS YOU FOR THIS SUM!

FOR a few dollars you can buy an Employers Mutual liability insurance policy on your car that will protect you in the amount of $11,000 which will meet the requirement of the Secretary of State that you have this amount in the form of liability insurance to pay claims growing out of an accident. With your policy you get the service and saving of this 34 year old policyholders' company in the bargain. Not only in Illinois, but throughout the United States and Canada Employers Mutual claim service is available on a moments notice in case of accident. We handle all claims against you and guard your interests in and out of court until complete settlement is made.

You save money too, when you buy Employers Mutual Automobile insurance. As a policyholder you share the earnings of the company in the form of a dividend paid to you in cash at the end of the policy period. The current rate of dividend is 20%. No membership fee of any kind is necessary to obtain this saving on Employers Mutual Automobile insurance.

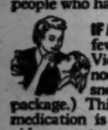
CONTAGIOUS COLDS NOW SPREADING!

Fewer colds!... Shorter colds! 50% less sickness from colds! ...that's the certified record of Vicks Plan in a great medically-supervised winter test among 2650 children. Right in your own home, this easy guide may do less—or it may even do more for you and your family. But with colds on a rampage, this tested plan is certainly worth trying today! Full details in your package of Vicks. Briefly here's what you do:

Put VICKS PLAN To Work Today!

OBSERVE a few simple health rules. Live normally. Avoid excesses. Eat simple food. Drink plenty of water. Keep elimination regular. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Avoid crowds and people who have colds.



IF A COLD THREATENS, put a few drops of clinic-tested Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril at first sniffle or sneeze. (Use as directed in package.) This effective, specialized medication is expressly designed to aid your natural defense against colds—and if used in time, Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing. (Even when your head is all stuffed up from a mean head cold, Vicks Va-tro-nol relieves sniffly, sneezy distress, makes breathing easier.)

WHEN A COLD STRIKES, or slips by all precautions, rub clinic-tested Vicks VapoRub on back, as well as on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub penetrates to the cold-congested upper bronchial tubes with soothing medicinal vapors. It stimulates throat, chest, and back surfaces like a warming poultice. This penetrating-stimulating action works for hours to relieve miseries of colds ... invites restful, comforting sleep!

NOTE: If the miserable symptoms of the cold are not relieved promptly—or if more serious trouble seems to threaten—call in your family doctor right away.

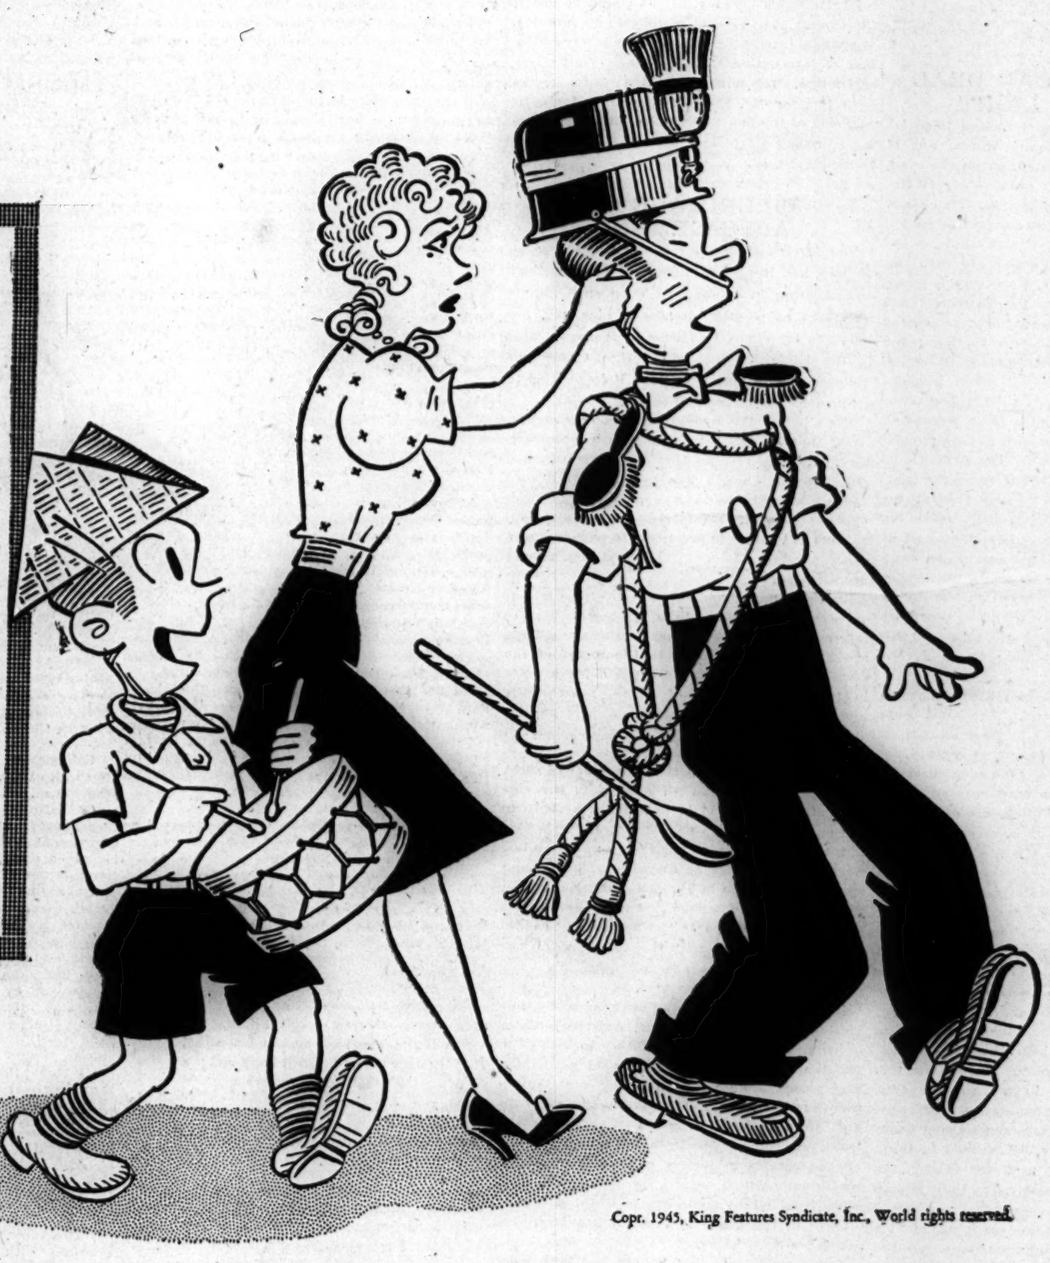
LOVE LEADS THE BUYING PARADE



Copr. 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.

DOWN the aisle with Mendelssohn's wedding march . . . then up to store counters all over the country love leads the family parade. Mr. and Mrs. Dagwood Bumstead, of The Comic Weekly, are no exception. "Blondie and Dagwood" could be Mr. and Mrs. Jones, or the Browns, or the Smiths, or any Mr. and Mrs. in America. That's why everybody loves them. Their little ups and downs and hilarious every day adventures make them family favorites from coast to coast.

"Blondie and Dagwood," top stars of Puck - The Comic Weekly, are watched for and welcomed week after week by 20,000,000 ardent fans. Their romance is table talk in more than 6,500,000 homes from Maine to California. They are big time performers in America's richest and most concentrated markets, with an influence that can increase the sale of almost any type of merchandise.

The Only National Comic Weekly

Distributed through 15 great Sunday newspapers, The Comic Weekly is the only publication of its kind. It is the entertainment must of the whole family, for there's "The Little King," "Jiggs and Maggie," "Little Annie Rooney," The Katzenjammer Kids," "Tippie," "Tillie the Toiler," "Prince Valiant," "The Lone Ranger," "Flash Gordon," "The Phantom," "Donald Duck," and many others in the all-star cast of the only national comic weekly.

If a manufacturer has a good product to sell, here's how more sales can be made . . . to "the millions" . . . in the more than 6,500,000 homes from coast to coast where Puck - The Comic Weekly is read. It is the same successful selling formula which for more than 15 years has been used by leading companies. When advertisements are placed next to the life and color of these famous comic features, they get the same kind of close, attentive readership.

The Comic Weekly stars are available to go to work as a sales force for companies who associate their advertising with the tremendous entertainment power of Puck - The Comic Weekly.

WHY YOUR ADS DO BETTER IN THE COMIC WEEKLY!

More Readers at Less Cost

Puck delivers 572 adult readers for each dollar invested. Its tremendous "youth readership" is plus value. These 572 readers compare with 251 adult readers delivered for each dollar invested in half page or larger space by 3 leading national weeklies.

"Preferred" Position for Every Ad

The number of ads in each issue is limited . . . only one to a page. Thus every ad is spotlighted and gets undivided attention from Puck's more than 6,500,000 families.

60% Key Market Coverage

Puck alone, through its tremendous circulation, provides up to 90% coverage in 606 cities of more than 10,000 population. In these cities more than 60% of all Key City retail business is done.

Puck Readership Is Highest

Puck - The Comic Weekly's record on "Read Most," established by the Daniel Starch survey of all advertising . . . half pages against full pages . . . is 6 to 1 readers per dollar over the standard weeklies.

Puck's Story Is Its Best Salesman

For those executives who are planning major national advertising campaigns, the staff of Puck - The Comic Weekly has analyzed the expanded post war markets, new competition, the field of comics and the productive power of this publication. To arrange for the presentation of these up-to-the-minute sales facts write to Puck - The Comic Weekly.

BRING THE LOAN DEAL INTO THE LIGHT

The announcement of the proposed financial aid to Britain contains many words, but is notoriously lacking in information on the most important point. There is no showing of the need for such assistance to Britain. No case is made out for an obligation on our part to render the aid, if it is needed. There is a failure to set forth specifically what is to be done with the money. Where the American treasury is going to get the money to give the British is not revealed. And finally, there is no statement of the economic effect which large foreign loans would have upon the United States at this time. How can the Truman administration possibly go to the American people with this deal without enlightening them on all of these points?

By the proposed arrangement, Britain is committing an act of bankruptcy. The British owe a debt to us of 25 billion dollars under the lend lease arrangement. This is the amount we were out of pocket for supplies and services for the British during the war. Less than half of this was military items. We also made large installations in Britain, highly useful in times of peace. The contemplation, based on Mr. Roosevelt's promises, was that we would be repaid by the return of the same sort of goods that we supplied, or other merchandise to be agreed upon.

Now the debt to us of 25 billion dollars is reduced to 650 million dollars. That is 2½ cents on the dollar, and we aren't to get even that, in full, until the beginning of the next century. A bankrupt, as a condition to being excused of his debts, always is obliged to turn over all of his assets and to make a full disclosure of them to his creditors. The British have not revealed their holdings of gold nor the size of their pool of dollars accumulated from the operation of the sterling bloc. The United States publishes such facts about its own situation every week. Before the war the British did, too. Now we are wholly in the dark. The American people are entitled to complete, documented, and certified evidences of British poverty before knocking off 97½ per cent of their debt to us.

Besides writing off 24½ billion dollars of the debt to us, we are to loan them 3¾ billion dollars. What they're going to do with this money is of the greatest importance. On this, all we know is that the money is to be spent here. The London papers, which learned about the transaction before we did, seemed to think that the money will be used for raising the standard of living immediately. The Daily Sketch said that the loan "will ease Britain's winter," and the London Herald said that it would "enable the dominions to make immediate essential purchases in the United States."

If the money is going to be used by the socialist government to raise the standard of living as promised when it came into office, the funds won't last long. Who is to maintain the British in the style to which we shall accustom them, when this money runs out?

The British have made much of the poverty the war has brought them. It is pointed out that Britain cannot feed herself and lacks most of the necessary raw materials for the operation of her manufacturing and for rebuilding. But for more than a century British imports have exceeded exports. The balance was paid with income on foreign investments and payments for shipping and other services. A loan of 3¾ billion dollars won't restore the investments they no longer own nor the ability to render services they no longer are prepared to give.

Starting 5 years from now, they would be obligated to begin the instalment payments, which would further reduce their ability to pay for imports. What has gotten the British into this condition is that they have failed to keep pace with industrial improvement elsewhere. Their costs are so high that they cannot sell abroad except with the aid of empire preference or the sterling bloc scheme. If the fresh supply of money from our treasury is to be used in modernizing British industry, there might be some hope, but in that case the higher standard of living and the better prospects for winter would have to wait.

Where the money is coming from to provide 3¾ billions for the British is likewise a matter of the first importance, but the announcements Thursday did not enlighten us. The American people, having been bled white by taxes in the war, are in no mood to have an additional tax laid on them to bail out a Britain which is ruled by a Socialist party, the chairman of which has come over here to argue for a change in our form of government. If the answer is that the funds are to be borrowed, the alarming failure of the Victory loan should show that that is not feasible.

The advantages of a large volume of exports are admitted when we have a surplus of production. That is not the condition which exists today. There are vast shortages of nearly every kind of goods. The excessive supplies of money already in the hands of the American people, in the face of the shortages that exist, threaten to produce runaway inflation. At such a time it is the greatest folly to establish additional purchasing power of American goods in a foreign country. Assistant Secretary Clayton's statement that the money will all be spent here should cause the greatest alarm, under existing circumstances.

Beyond specific objections to the British loan, it sets a dangerous precedent. We are laying ourselves open for a touch from Russia, China, and the rest. France already has obtained a large loan from the export-import bank. The Hurley investigation may settle who is to get the money in China, Chiang or the Communists. Moscow will ask for a hand-out as big as anybody's. Congress has an obvious duty to perform in connection with the British deal, and it should act promptly and decisively.

MR. STEVENSON VOTES FOR EUROPE

Altho the executive committee of the united nations organization had recommended that permanent headquarters of the league be established in the United States, Mr. Adlai Stevenson, American representative on the UNO preparatory commission, has gratuitously informed his colleagues that this country is not seeking the world capital. A number of British satellites already had registered opposition to an American site. Mr. Stevenson's encouragement of a European location is likely, under the circumstances, to prove decisive.

It is easy to understand why he does not want the international capital in America. He and his kind profess an interest in foreign affairs only because they wish to get away from America and associate with foreigners, to whom they pay fawning obeisance. Naturally, the opportunity for such demonstrations would be lost if the capital were located in republican America. The whole international movement is a combination of international snobbery and Wall street corruption. The public has little use for it, and even less for Mr. Stevenson, who evidently is ashamed of the fact that his roots until recently were in such a typical American community as Bloomington, Ill.

PILGRIMAGE OF APPEASEMENT

The foreign secretaries of the United States, Britain, and Russia, who couldn't agree at their last meeting in London on even such simple questions as whether it was a nice day, are going to try again, this time in Moscow. This is the home grounds of Foreign Commissar Molotov, whose tantrums made it impossible to achieve any progress at London.

Even before the opening of the new conference, Molotov seems to have won a major victory. It will be recalled that one of his principal objections in London was granting to France and China a voice in any general European peace settlement. The foreign ministers of both nations at least were permitted to participate in the wrangling at London. This time they haven't been invited.

Russia will undoubtedly use the meeting as an occasion to enforce new demands. We are informed that some of the matters on the agenda are Russian participation in the secret of the atomic bomb and Russia's demand for a voice in the administration of Japan, now wholly under American management. A new sell-out on the pattern of Tehran, Yalta, and Potsdam can be foreseen.

James Byrnes, the American secretary of state, scarcely has distinguished himself in the conduct of diplomacy. His testimony in reply to the charges of Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley before the senate foreign relations committee last week indicated that he knew very little about what was going on in his own department. Mr. Byrnes seemed to believe that if he said all was well, that made it a fact, whereas any candid appraisal would be that the world never has been as troubled as now or America's voice given so little heed or respect.

Mr. Byrnes said nothing in answer to Gen. Hurleys principal charge that America's power is being used to uphold predatory ideologies in violation of this nation's declared principles. The general's most embarrassing contribution was to recall that the Atlantic Charter still lives and, in a fashion, breathes. Ever since Mr. Roosevelt came home from Yalta and brushed off the charter as merely a flock of disjointed memoranda which he and Mr. Churchill hadn't even troubled to sign, that celebrated Magna Charta of the brave new world has been considered a dead letter.

Gen. Hurley said that "there had been a lot of conversation and reports about the Atlantic Charter never being a document signed by the Big Three." He then reached into his pocket and produced the text of the "Declaration of Iran," which was drafted by Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill, and Generalissimo Stalin at their meeting in Tehran Dec. 1, 1943. This document pledged respect for "maintenance of the independence, sovereignty, and territorial integrity of Iran . . . in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter, to which all four governments have continued to subscribe."

As every one knows, a "separatist" movement under the auspices of the soviet union was launched recently in the province of Azerbaijan in Iran after the Russians failed to blackjack the Iranian government into surrendering the oil fields there to soviet control. Turkey, where "anti-soviet" riots broke out in Istanbul the other day, is apparently next on the list. The disorders scarcely can be considered fortuitous. One is reminded of Hitler's old game of stirring up artificially contrived trouble in neighboring states in order to have a pretext for marching in his troops to avenge the insult and "restore order."

The hypocritical internationalists who, by making America a member of the new world league, have placed us in the position of abetting and condoning such wrongs, have brought nothing but shame upon their country, but they have performed a real service for Russian and British imperialism. Mr. Byrnes' mission to Moscow can have no other result than to confirm the accusation of Gen. Hurley that the state department is the agent of predatory foreign powers.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

1. You should expect to find lactic acid in which one of these?
   Sour milk Vinegar Lemon juice Aspirin
2. A lion would be classified as which type of creature? Herbivorous Aquatic Carnivorous Omnivorous
3. Which one of these animals lives in towns made by its own species?
   Woodchuck Wolf Prairie Dog Skunk
4. Which one of these would pucker your mouth to the greatest degree in the autumn?
   Wild crabapple Pawpaw Red haws Wild grapes
5. Which one of these glands is located in the trunk or torso of the human being? Tonsil Thyroid Pituitary Pancreas
6. As a practical test of your knowledge of various types of wood, try to match those listed in the left hand column below with the articles which are conventionally constructed from them. You are entitled to one point for each correct judgment.

[a] Balsa	[v] Ax handles
[b] Hickory	[w] Bowling pins
[c] Ash	[x] Model airplanes
[d] Mahogany	[y] Archery bows
[e] Maple	[z] Furniture

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

THE BRIGHT BRIGADE

"Three Hundred Favorite Poems," an anthology compiled by Thomas Curtis Clark; Willett, Clark & Co., Chicago.

The dean of Chicago poets, anthologists, and Line o' Type contributors publishes today a compilation of verse of particular interest to this column. Mr. Clark's awards of merit have ranged from the immortals to the ephemerals, from the big leagues to the minors, and we find on page 16 "As a Tree Dies," by Delos Avery [Linebook, 1944], occupying space with "On the Grasshopper and Cricket," by John Keats.

* * *

Mr. Avery's poem, a meditation on death, which is a departure from his usual vein of satire, was received with applause when first printed here over his modest initials. It was pasted into many scrapbooks. An excellent translation into German, a language that the author cannot read, turned up in our mail bag. We hope that he will enjoy the sip of immortality that Mr. Clark's anthology promises. The researchers of 100 years hence can't miss him.

* * *

On page 39 we find "Love Insurance," by Marjorie F. W. [Wagner], billeted with "Summum Bonum," a love lyric by Robert Browning. She has been in every Linebook since 1924, a distinction she shares only with Thomas Curtis Clark.

* * *

At the end of the book there is a section of 14 pages which carries the subtitle, "Sense, Near-Sense, and Nonsense." Here the Line o' Type poets lead all the rest, altho famous literary figures, such as Robert Louis Stevenson, Oliver Wendell Holmes, and W. S. Gilbert, give them some competition. Here are six "Brookfield Ballads," by Quizzicuss [John Hooks]; "The Radio Commentators," by Cholly [Charles Alden Peterson]; "Song of Advancing Years," by Casual [Arthur Frederick Otis]; "To a New Shirt," by M'Tavish [David A. Lawson]; "Open the Hall of Fame," by Bernard [Winfred Ernest Garrison]; "Whee! the People!" by W. L. Hudson; "Food for Thought," by Little Girl [Corinne Dertz]; "Little Boy Blue," by Quin Ryan; "Peccavi," by Hig [Harry John Higdon], and two bits of whimsey by Hazel Duncan.

EARTH IS A MOTHER

(For one bereaved.)

Do not grieve that Earth now holds your child,
Had you forgot Earth is a mother, too?
She'll cradle and caress your little girl
The way that mothers do.
She'll gently tuck about your little child
Her very special robe of velvet dark.
Earth is a mother; oft against her breast
She's nestled butterflies and baby lark;
Hers are the lullabies the grasses sing.
Earth, who has borne and nursed each small pink rose,
Will know the tenderest way to bring
Your little one repose.

And when, again, soft winds of summer stir,
Earth will send forth sweet messages of her;
And you shall know that God made Earth maternal
To reaffirm His pledge of life eternal.

Reunion in a Closet

Hidden away in a corner of the cedar closet there is a scuffed, black leather case. Inside, resting on a faded plush lining, is a tarnished E-flat alto saxophone. But what shining memories!

There were years, Mr. E, when your bright uniform reflected a more interesting world. You traveled coast to coast, gulf to Great Lakes. You played with Joe Cook, and Little Johnnie Jones, and John Philip Sousa, and the Seng sextet. And, for a brief interval, you directed your own orchestra.

You played many camp shows at the beginning of World War I., and finally you joined the great navy band. I like to think that you served with honor. Then . . . there was the tragedy of the fractured mandible. Let's not go into that.

When I'm home alone, it's great to sneak you out of the dark closet into the lighted study, where we can have a visit together. We can recall the artists we've known, the strange places we've been, the ambitions we've shared.

And when Guy, or Paul, or Ted plays one of our old favorites on the radio, we can turn up the volume and join in a few well remembered bars. The neighbors will never know. Your pads stick, your reed squeaks, and those dents in your bell don't help your tone. But don't you care, old fellow. You can still say you play with the best bands!

CHARLES COLLINS

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

A. C. writes: "I am a discharged soldier 30 years old, married, and have one child. I am employed as a sheet metal apprentice and attending school two nights a week to learn drafting and layout work pertaining to my trade. I am going to school on my own time. Am I entitled, under the GI bill, to a subsistence allowance? If I am where can I make application?"

You are entitled to subsistence allowance and application should be filed with the veterans' administration. You may do this either at the Hines hospital center or in the downtown office at 366 W. Adams st.

Mrs. W. C. asks: "Is a World War I. veteran who has been receiving $50 pension for total, permanent, nonservice connected disability entitled to an increase when he becomes 50 years old?"

The act of May 27, 1944, provides that veterans who have been receiving $50 a month continuously for 10 years or who have reached the age of 65 shall receive an increase in pension to $60.

L. S. asks: "Can the disabled father of a veteran obtain rehabilitation training thru the veterans' administration?"

No. Dependents of veterans who need vocational training to make them employable may receive this training from their state. Application should be made to the department of rehabilitation in your home state. Any state welfare agency can direct you to the proper office.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

BLOOD FLUKES IN THE ORIENT

DURING World War II. our physicians who were sent overseas had the opportunity of seeing many diseases which were unheard of in the United States, except in textbooks. Different types were encountered in the various theaters, especially in the China-Burma-India and Pacific sectors. Perhaps the most outstanding of these ailments is schistosomiasis. It is caused by a fluke, a flat nonsegmented worm scarcely visible to the naked eye. The "papa" is shaped like a leaf and, by folding in his sides, a channel is formed just large enough to carry the threadlike "mamma." Both inhabit man as well as animals, where they dwell within the tiny veins near the intestine. Several species exist, but for the present we are interested only in the Schistosoma japonicum, which occurs in China, Japan, and the Philippines.

The female deposits her eggs in the wall of the vessels in and about the bowel. The ova find their way into the intestinal tract where they are passed with the feces. Should they contaminate the water of a pond or ditch, hatching will occur and larvae emerge. Subsequently they swim about searching for a snail, where they remain temporarily for further development. Soon the bugs escape and begin seeking their final victim. Here, man comes into the picture as the infection is contracted by wading or swimming in areas infested with the worms. The little pests penetrate the skin and work their way into the arteries. Once they reach the blood, they travel thru the heart and lungs and finally settle in the liver and near-by vessels until maturity. Thus the cycle is completed.

During exposure, itching may be noted in the area where the parasites enter. As a rule this lasts only a short time and the victim is unaware of the invasion until a week or two later. The onset resembles the flu with headache, fever, and loss of appetite. The thermometer often reaches 104 degrees F., especially in the evening. It is not unusual for some to develop hives, and the eyes or legs may become puffy. As the larvae reach the lungs, a dry hacking cough may be exhibited.

Soon abdominal symptoms appear, consisting of pain and tenderness in the region of the liver. Diarrhea may add to distress. By now, considerable weight has been lost and weakness ensues. The course of the disease is variable from here and, unless treated, the patient continues in a state of ill health for many years. The severity of the disorder depends entirely upon the number of parasites present. Reinfection will intensify the manifestations. Ultimately the liver is involved and cirrhosis follows.

Treatment with antimony tartrate is effective in the majority. Many injections are required, but healing is progressive. Some complain of residual fatigue, but it tends to disappear gradually. Since the infection is chiefly water borne, measures to protect against contact are of primary importance.

Improved hygienic conditions are now present, which definitely minimize the dangers. Adequate bathing and laundry facilities are available for our troops who now occupy these zones. In addition, warning signs are posted in those streams harboring the worms. Such sanitary standards are a great step in preventing the malady.

BREATHLESS

J. M. B. writes: What causes shortness of breath?

REPLY

All of us develop this phenomenon with over-exertion and it occurs more frequently when we are fatigued thru lack of sleep, over-work, or undernourishment. Those who suffer from anemia, heart trouble, or lung disorders may complain of the condition after mild exercise. The symptom is common in nervous individuals and is frequently associated with palpitation.

X-RAY FINDING

Mrs. R. M. B. writes: I've heard so much lately about a shadow on the lung. Would you be kind enough to explain what it means?

REPLY

The laity frequently thinks of this expression only in terms of tuberculosis. Actually, any defect in the lung itself will cast a shadow on the X-ray film. The nature of the lesion and whether it is fresh or healed must be interpreted along with other findings.

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

Who Leads What Grand March?

Maybe you haven't heard of the current to-do about our poor representative to the united nations council. They, meaning some one, want to vest him with diplomatic rank and status. They probably are planning this out of sheer kindliness, thinking it will make a Bib Man out of him, but it will end up a mess. It always does. The representative himself might think it ducky until he attended his first council meeting. Then he would find, to his chagrin, that all the other member countries, and they run into the hundreds, had overnight made ambassadors of their representatives. From that moment on, he and the council would be saddled with the headache that has hamstrung what is called statecraft for centuries. Protocol.

Protocol is a long, fancy word for a good fight. Protocol means who goes in front of some one else. Only the one who goes first is ever satisfied. All those who, like the women of the Egyptian statues, must walk discreetly one step behind their lords, mien lowly and eyes downcast, are unhappy. They always try to be first.

One senator, who thinks it silly, summed up the future tartly by saying there would be so many ambassadors [at the U. N. councils] that they would not be able to sit down to work or to eat because they would never be able to agree on their places at the tables. Remember the San Francisco conference and the nasty mutterings when Molotov insisted on a rotating chairmanship? That was fighting protocol. The United States, as host, was supposed to sit it out. That made Russia an Egyptian wife.

Foster, in his book on the practice of diplomacy, tells how much of the deliberations of the great congresses of European nations of the past was taken up in settling this. At the congress of Ryswick the fight started when the ambassadors of the emperor of Germany demanded that a particular space be set aside for their carriages. This space, they said, must be declared the post of honor. This was merely the beginning. The boys next went into a fierce quarrel over the allotment of rooms. When that was settled, they fought over seating. A single table had been provided for the conference, but as no one could agree on the order of seating, they all stood. Later another room was provided in which there was no table at all. Instead, they all sat in a circle.

At Utrecht the brighter minds thought to solve this by providing a round table, but it lost all its imaginary assets when the place of honor was discovered to be that opposite the door of entrance. Then, as every place of honor has a right and a left, one being better than the other, the fight was renewed. Nor did it stop with the envoys. Their footmen took up the cudgel, becoming so involved that the account fills 30 pages in the history of the congress and, it is recorded, "threatened to retard the peace of Christendom."

The protocol battles between envoys to the courts of Europe are equally fantastic. In 1661 a Spanish ambassador to England was so determined to secure a place in the royal procession next to the king and in front of his French colleague that he attacked the Frenchman's coach in the streets of London, hamstrung his horses, and killed his men. Pro patria. A century later, when the powers of France and Austria met to arrange the marriage settlement betweeen Marie Teresa and Louis XIV., the two plenipotentiaries were so intent on preserving the full dignity of their nations that they stepped together, right foot first, side by side, into a council room hung in corresponding halves with their respective colors, and sat down at the same instant precisely opposite each other at a square table "on two mathematically equivalent chairs." More than a century and a half later Churchill, Truman, and Stalin went thru a similar farce at Potsdam, where, at the sound of a whistle, each walked thru a separate door at the same time, a procedure usually followed only by conditioned rats in psychological laboratories.

Protocol has yet to stop war.

THE ARMY'S CARIBBEAN EMPIRE

BRITISH GUIANA, Nov. 17—I should like to reply to "Mother," who on Oct. 23, inquired as to the status of the service men in the Caribbean area. To begin with, the Caribbean area includes one of the war department's pet projects, the Antilles department, which has been dedicated to the principle of a relief program for Puerto Rico and the perpetuation of the army empire created by high ranking officers. These officers have fought valiantly from the outset to maintain maximum strength in this area so as to preserve their commands. Because of them, thousands of officers and men have done tedious duty in jungle outposts such as Dutch, British, and French Guiana, the Islands of Aruba and Curacao, and many others, for periods of time up to and including 36 months.

The hierarchy in San Juan, Puerto Rico, goes on and on. The same officers and the same men remain in the same jobs for years at a time, never going out to replace the other individuals who have held down the jungle hovels for long periods. They bask in the lap of luxury while others rot away for lack of replacement in damp and filthy jungle areas. The officers and men who constitute this clique—and it is large—remain at their soft jobs at Fort Brook, San Juan, never leaving their desks except to make periodic hasty inspections. They make no effort to relieve or replace those who have carried the burden for many months in outlying areas. On the other hand, they are fighting to maintain these outlying posts at maximum strength so as to justify their own commands and rank.

Many of these individuals have sent for their families and are living a life heretofore unknown to them in the United States. Do you believe that they want to let your son and all the other mothers' sons go home now? If we go home, how will they keep that rank, those lovely government quarters, their staff cars, their airplanes, in some instances, and all the rest of their luxuries?

LIEUTENANT

THEIR SON'S COMING HOME

Hinsdale, Ill., Nov. 30—You will never know the joy you brought to the tired war nerves of this family when THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE announced the name of our son sailing from Karachi! And greater still was the fact that we read it in THE TRIBUNE the next morning after his ship left India. What a service you and your great management have done and are doing for those of us who love America!

THROWN TO THE WOLVES

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 5—The President's statement on labor specifically exempts "small industries or local disputes." I am one of, perhaps, tens of thousands of business men with a small number of employés, actually seven in my particular place of business. What is to become of us? Are we to be thrown to the wolves as an appeasement to big business and labor?

ROBERT J. AMBRUSTER

OUT-SCROOGING SCROOGE

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 3—The repugnant, detestable character of Scrooge, who branded Christmas a humbug, fades into insignificance as we read the declaration of Gen. Joseph McNarney that it would be illegal to give the German children a speck of food or stick of gum for Christmas.

MRS. C. C. THOMAS

MORE SCHOOL SHAKEDOWNS

Chicago, Nov. 28—We feel that R. M. L., who wrote on shakedowns in Chicago schools, should know just how trivial his problem is. For many years we have been employed in a public school cafeteria. The daily hours of work are few, so, of course, our pay is equally small.

During these years, each type of charity, each city sponsored sporting event, each bond drive, etc., has brought veiled threats and coercions to contribute, "or else," from our superiors. Even the sum [which is sizable] is stipulated by them.

Such intimidations also extend to the allotment of our personal time, amounting to five hours every two weeks on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, to service centers. All of this is in addition to our monthly contribution to our union, which can do nothing about such a situation.

All of us want to do our share voluntarily and in the American way.

THREE BROWBEATEN WOMEN

THE DEDUCTS HAVE GOT HIM

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 28—If Mr. Truman's medical aid plan goes thru think what will be left of a single man's $150 pay check after the tax experts have finished with it. Already 22 per cent income tax deduction, 1 per cent deduction for old age security or rather social security, 1 per cent from employer, passed on to consumer, 3 per cent sales tax, passed on to consumer, 4 per cent medical aid tax deduction, 4 per cent medical aid tax paid by employer and passed on to consumer, dog tax, gas tax, property tax, and a hundred hidden taxes passed on to the consumer. Total tax on check of at least 40 per cent. Balance left for purchases $90. Deduction for 30 inflation $27. Balance $63, or the equivalent of WPA wages, or not as much in 1935. If the medical aid tax goes thru, we will not have to subsidize more hospitals, but more funerals parlors because it will not be long before every one will have died of starvation. Well, that might be a proper solution.

HUSBAND CANNOT BREAK WILL

Chicago, Dec. 6—If a widow marries and resides in the state of Florida, her estate consisting exclusively of personal property acquired prior to her second marriage, [1] what rights has the second husband? [2] She has willed her entire estate to her only daughter and her grandchildren. [3] Is it necessary to have a waiver from the second husband attached to the will? [4] Is it true that if such a waiver is not in the will that the second husband can accept under the will or the state? I. S.

1. None. Husband's right of "curtesy" has been abolished in Florida.
2. He has no right to elect against the will.
3. Not necessary.
4. No. We advise her to employ an attorney.

CROSBY ON AIR TONIGHT TO AID U. S. O. BIRTHDAY

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Bing Crosby dislikes being tied down to broadcasting on Thursday nights, but he apparently doesn't mind making guest appearances, particularly in behalf of causes that interest him. Crosby has an unexpired contract with a sponsor for Thursday nights, but he hasn't been working at that stand since last spring.

However, last week he came on the air in behalf of the Sister Kenny foundation; yesterday he contributed to the Jerome Kern memorial program, and tonight he is to be master of ceremonies for a show titled We Help, commemorating the fourth year of the U. S. O.-Camp shows. This show, featuring a drama highlighting experiences of entertainers abroad with the troops, will be broadcast over WENR-ABC at 8 p. m.

Christmas season spirit is being mirrored by the Hymns You Love broadcasts over W-G-N at noon week days. Richard Maxwell, singer on the hour, also reads daily passages from the Bible.

Vets to Be Discharged at Meeting of Legion

A group of army combat veterans will receive their discharges in a ceremony at the luncheon meeting of the Advertising Men's post, No. 38, American Legion, at noon today in Hotel Sherman. It will be the first separation ceremony ever conducted off an army installation. Maj. Robert Scott, a Pacific battle veteran, will be the principal speaker. Among the officers participating will be Col. Neal Creighton, commandant of Scott field.

O.D.T. TAKES 70% OF AIRLINE SEATS TO EAST

RETURNING PACIFIC VETERANS TO USE SPACE

The Office of Defense Transportation has issued an emergency order, effective December 3rd, applying to 10 airlines, including all transcontinentals. Briefly it is this: *70% of the transcontinental space allocated for passenger traffic on scheduled commercial passenger flights eastbound shall be made available daily to men of our armed services arriving at key ports of entry on the Pacific Coast.

Thousands of Pacific veterans must be brought home. And United Air Lines is glad to help. But this means sweeping changes in our customary service.

1. This Is How the Order Affects United Air Lines:

Since the lifting of priorities our ticket office and reservations personnel have been faced with an almost impossible task handling calls for reservations. Though we've employed more and more people, and installed all available telephone equipment, we have been swamped with calls and requests for space.

We have been instructed by the O.D.T. to cancel such reservations as necessary to comply with this order, and no more reservations on eastbound transcontinental flights can be accepted until further notice.

2. This Is How the Order Affects You:

In view of the lack of eastbound space, and to save you time in calling for information, United lists below answers to the questions that have been constantly asked over the phone regarding this new travel situation.

Q. Just what flights does this government order affect?

A. 70% of all space on all eastbound coast-to-coast flights will be set aside for service men arriving at West Coast points from the Pacific, and who are bound for eastern destinations. In addition to the seasonal increase of air mail, the situation is made even more critical by the huge loads steadily coming in from the Pacific theater. Thus, in view of the lack of space on United Mainliners, temporarily, we cannot accept reservations for eastbound transcontinental flights.

NOTE: On flights from Chicago to the East however, the amount of space required for the movement of returning service men will be materially less, and therefore some space will be available on eastbound schedules from Chicago to Cleveland, New York and other eastern cities by advance reservation.

Q. What about westbound space?

A. This order does not affect westbound space and civilians can make advance reservations as usual. But remember, the chances of getting a return reservation are very remote. Don't forget that the railroads, too, are devoting the major part of their eastbound Pullman space to this urgent situation.

Q. How will returning service men be allotted space?

A. The 70% space on all eastbound flights will be turned over directly to the military transportation office. And the assignment of space will be handled by that office only.

Q. Why don't you put more planes in service?

A. Every United Mainliner is operating at capacity and peak efficiency right now, although we have more than doubled our fleet since Pearl Harbor. And also 4-engine, 44-passenger-cargo C-54 type planes are being readied for service. Still larger 52-passenger, 300-mile-per-hour, DC-6 Mainliners will be placed in service along the Main Line Airway as fast as they become available.

Q. How long will the situation last?

A. The emergency is only temporary. We feel that the Office of Defense Transportation will lift restrictions as soon as the emergency is over. United will inform you as soon as any change is in prospect.

UNITED AIR LINES

United Air Lines has been presented an Award of Honor by the National Safety Council for having flown more than a billion passenger miles in the past three years without a fatal accident. We are proud of our flight personnel and ground employees who made this record possible.

TRAIN LIGHTS BLAMED IN BUS CRASH; 5 DEAD

Eight Passengers Hurt in Crossing Collision

Cause of an accident in which five persons were killed yesterday when the Erie railroad's Chicago bound Pacific Express passenger train struck a bus on the Burnham av. crossing near 139th st., Burnham, will be investigated at an inquest to be held at 10 a. m. today at 248 155th pl., Calumet City.

The victims were: Paul Petka, 23, of 1428 121st st., Whiting, Ind.; Sophie Elizabeth O'Drabinak, 22, of 1656 Center st., Whiting; Pvt. Raymond J. Daniszewski, 18, of 13251 Commercial av.; Miss Josephine Jeglawski, 21, of 662 Price av., Calumet City, and Vince Zagorski, 50, 339 155th st., Calumet City.

Eight Others Injured

Eight other bus passengers were injured and taken to St. Margaret's hospital by county highway and Chicago police squads.

They are: Charles Martin, 24, of 5053 Hohman av., Hammond, the bus driver; Rolondo Donelli, 27, of 433 Garfield av., Calumet City; Joseph Murzyn, 25, of 2447 Birch av., Whiting; Geraldine Richwalski, 23, of 416 Price av., Calumet City; George A. Liptack, 27, and his wife, Virginia, 20, of 14036 Avenue O, Burnham; Mrs. Iowna Nichols, 28, of 2244 Schrage av., Whiting, and Irvin Fleming, 21, of 786 Burnham av., Calumet City.

Grover Frome, 61, of 504 Michigan av., Hammond, the towerman who raised the gates, said he had not seen the passenger train because he was blinded by the light of a standing frate train.

Killed by Hit-Run Car

Max Moskowitz, 36, New York City, an ex-solidier and baker, was killed and his brother-in-law, Sam Gerrick, 36, of 6857 S. Ridgeland av., was injured last night when they were struck by a hit and run motorist while changing a tire on Gerrick's automobile at Cermak rd. and Union av.

Physicians at Peoples' hospital said Gerrick was in a critical condition, with a fractured leg and a fractured pelvis.

Gerrick's wife and their two children, who were sitting in the car, told police the car which struck the men sped east in Cermak rd.

Mrs. May Gribbens, 78, of 1613 Dayton st., was killed by a taxicab last night as she was crossing at Halsted and Willow sts. The driver, Armour La Pansee, 51, of 740 N. Dearborn st., was arrested.

Donald Day, 20, of 719 W. 59th st., a machinist's helper, died in Englewood hospital early today of injuries he suffered yesterday when his automobile collided at 59th and Morgan sts., with a car driven by Arthur Enders, 5959 S. Paulina st.

Passenger Dies in Crash

Benjamin Derringer, 32, of 6420 S. Lawler av., died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile collision Saturday night at 67th st. and Parnell av. Derringer, a clerk, was riding in a car driven by Leonard Hursh, 35, of 521 Fullerton av., a musician. The second motorist was Russell Boyle, 30, of 7451 Vernon av. The cars collided head on. The drivers were not injured.

Mrs. Josephine Cline, 60, of 1411 Hyde Park blvd., who was struck by an automobile at 48th st. and Lake Park av. Saturday, died yesterday in County hospital. Mrs. Cline had $5,000 in a money belt sewn in her skirt. The automobile driver, Mrs. Esther Matzkin, 41, of 4456 Woodlawn av., will be arraigned in Safety court Wednesday on a charge of reckless driving.

Aguilar Nedarelo, 41, of 9038 Burley av., was found dead yesterday in Indianapolis blvd. near 106th st., in Hammond, where he apparently had been struck by a hit and run motorist.

TWO WHEELS STOLEN FROM CAR

Two wheels and tires were taken from his automobile while it was parked in front of his home yesterday, Fred Barrett, 4078 Lake Park av., reported to police.

EVANSTON VET ENDS LIFE WITH GERMAN PISTOL

Fred S. Phahler Jr., 34, a discharged soldier who had been awarded the Purple Heart, shot and killed himself early yesterday with a German pistol in the home of R. J. McDonald, 1130 Hinman av., Evanston, where Phahler and his wife, Betty, had been staying. Mrs. Phahler, who was asleep in an upstairs bedroom at the time, told Evanston police her husband had been nervous. A note, apparently a will, but indecipherable because of bloodstains, was found beside the body. Since his release from the army, Phahler had been working as a brakeman for the Chicago and North Western railway.

Bennett Dance, Burgess Tea on Yule Debut List

BY JUDITH CASS

LAST-MINUTE additions to the list of Christmas debut parties, which is assuming Gargantuan proportions, are a dinner-dance which James E. Bennett will give Dec. 23 in the Racquet club for his twin daughters, Janet and Joan; and a tea Dec. 19 which will serve as Miss Joan Augusta Burgess' introduction to adult society.

Because it is too late to send out the conventional engraved cards, invitations to the Bennett party will be issued by telegram. The twins, the youngest of five daughters, attend Bennett Junior college.

Receiving at the Burgess tea will be the bud's mother, Mrs. Kenneth Farwell Burgess; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Burgess Jr.; and her sister, Mrs. James Edward Day. The gathering in the Burgess home in Hubbard Woods will be for feminine friends of the family.

The debutante soon will return home for the holidays from Vassar college. Since Lt. Comdr. Burgess Jr.'s return from the Pacific, he and his wife have been living in Milwaukee, Wis. Mrs. Day's husband also has been released from the navy, and they are at home in Winnetka.

Engagements

At a family dinner party yesterday in their home in Oak Park Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Everett Shorey announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Dun, to Lt. [j. g.] John Sells Graettinger of the naval reserve medical corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Frederick Graettinger of Palm Springs and Los Angeles, Cal. Dr. Graettinger was here for the week-end from Boston, where he is serving as a civilian intern at the Boston City hospital. Also present from a distance were his mother and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald D. Mitchell of Ontario, Cal.

Miss Shorey was graduated from Miss Master's school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., and received her degree from Wellesley college with the class of 1945. She has been serving as a nurse's aid at Presbyterian hospital. Dr. Graettinger, an alumnus of Harvard, was graduated last June from the university's medical school.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Garrison of New York City have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to Capt. Towner K. Webster III, of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Jr. of Winnetka. Miss Garrison was graduated from the Mary Institute in St. Louis, Mo., and from Smith college. Her fiancé, an alumnus of Cornell university, is on terminal leave following his return from two years overseas with the 1st army engineers.

Birth Announcements

Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Torrey [Betty Brawley] have named their new son, born Friday in New York, Thomas Hayward, after a paternal ancestor who was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. The baby's two little sisters, Hope and Vinnie, are waiting to welcome him in the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Cates Torrey of Scarsdale, N. Y., with whom the young Torreys have been staying since Comdr. Torrey's discharge from the coast guard. Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brawley of Chicago are the maternal grandparents.

When Lt. John V. Renchard of the navy arrives home for Christmas following duty on Okinawa, he will be introduced to the daughter born to him and the former Mary Mabbatt Friday in Passavant hospital. Mrs. Renchard is living in Lake Forest with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Mabbatt, while Lt. Renchard is away. Mr. and Mrs. George W. Renchard of Detroit, Mich., are the paternal grandparents.

Wedding News

In a quiet ceremony at 4:30 p. m. Saturday in Trinity Episcopal church, of which the bride has been a member since her cradle days, Miss Mary Ann Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claburn E. Jones of Highland Park, repeated her wedding vows with Elmer Frederick Wieboldt Jr. Here for the ceremony were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wieboldt of Charlottesville, Va., formerly of Glencoe; his brother, Richard, who served as best man; and their sisters, Miss Betty Wieboldt, who was bridesmaid; Mrs. William Hoxie, and Mrs. Paul Urion. Mr. and Mrs. Hoxie made the trip from San Francisco, Cal.

In the absence of the bride's sister, Miss Catherine Jones, who is stationed in Manila with the Red Cross, Miss Laura Lou Bauer of Highland Park served as maid of honor. The bride's brother, Robert Morris Jones, was best man. Another brother, Lt. Claburn Halsted Jones, missed the ceremony and reception in the Exmoor Country club because he is stationed in the Philippines with the army air forces. Mr. Wieboldt formerly served with the army air forces.

On the Calendar

Just one week after invitations were sent out for a "Paris Rendezvous" party which the women's board of the Travelers Aid society will give Saturday night in the Drake hotel, all of the 700 tickets for the dinner-dance were reported

Many Neighs but Not a Nay Mark $100,000 Charity Fete

BY ELEANOR PAGE

CONFUSION, bright lights, and babbling voices dominated by a leather-lunged auctioneer and a high voltage public address system characterized an auction of many costly and hard to get items which was the main feature of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society benefit "Victory Derby" dinner-dance Saturday night in the Drake hotel. Waging a battle against inattention in the rear of the Gold Coast room and the adjoining barroom, and chiding the occasionally languid bidding, the auctioneer and his hard working assistants disposed of the large array of goods on view on the bandstand for an aggregate sum amounting to $8,000 or more.

Some of the items were had for bargain prices, the benefit committee felt, for a natural Canadian cross fox scarf went to the Hermon D. Smiths at $150, a third of its valued price; some gold earrings set with solitaire pearls were knocked down to M. Peter Miller Jr. for $150; a string of oriental pearls came into the possession of Comdr. John P. Wilson Jr. for $275, and a pink Alencon lace evening gown priced at around $400 by the shop which donated it, went to Robert Hosmer Morse Jr. for $150.

Mrs. Morse was so busy with her duties at the auction stand that she did not learn until yesterday that the gown is hers. A pre-Christmas present for his pretty wife was obtained by Lt. Henry Bartholomay III., just back fom overseas, when he bid successfully on a jeweled silver necklace and bracelet set. Mabbett K. Reckord secured an oil burner for $750, and Walter Swanson a pair of gold and ruby earrings for $225. Philip D. Armour Jr., thru the default of the original bidder, became possessor of some handsome baby scales for $70.

Sweep Flag, a three year old gelding schooled for racing, received much affectionate attention from party-goers who visited his stall in a small room adjoining the bar. His purchase for $1,500 by Thomas Barrett and Roy A. Bloomquist was discussed heatedly by amateur and professional horse fanciers. Was or was not the animal worth a great deal more? they argued. Philosophically munching on something horses enjoy, Sweep Flag, who was donated by Mrs. Miller, the former Ruth McCormick, behaved like a perfect gentleman, occasionally tossing his short mane which was braided and tied in colored ribbons.

Young men in uniform predominated at Miss Marilynn Morse's dinner table, and a number of them gave a helping hand to Mrs. Morse and the auction committee. Lt. Kenneth and Lt. Robert Maynard of the army air forces, Sgt. William C. Fleming, and Thomas J. Fleming Jr., just out of the navy, were among the young men who obtained signatures on checks for the merchandise bought. The latter two are sons of Mrs. Rochard Rowland and Mr. Fleming, and just returned from overseas.

Happily collecting bets on a series of horse races with professional models using wooden ponies were those who bet on Shocking, "owned by Mrs. John W. Clarke and trained by Mrs. Samuel A. Culbertson II.," according to the race programs, in the first race. T. N. T., "owned" by Mrs. Brooks McCormick and trained by Mrs. John R. Montgomery, won in the second, and Starlight, "owned" by Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell and trained by Miss Louise Stureman, was victorious in the third.

The women all are members of the woman's board of the society, whose chairman, Chauncey McCormick, presented something new in sartorial perfection when he appeared with a pencil drawing of a horse and jockey on the front of his "boiled shirt." The sketch was the artistry of John T. McCutcheon.

A record in benefit profits will be chalked up by the society when the final accounting of the party is done, for the event will have netted well over $100,000. The money will be used to continue the 62 year old society's work for dependent Illinois children.

Chicago Phi Omega Pi Plans Christmas Party

A Christmas party is scheduled by the Chicago Alumnae Association of Phi Omega Pi, national Panhellenic sorority, at 8 p. m. tomorrow in the Illini center of the La Salle hotel. Mrs. John Follett, chairman, will be assisted in arrangements by Mrs. Anton Antonides, Miss Dorothy Abbott, and Miss Marion Edwards.

Palestine Strife Dims Zionists' Chanukah Fete

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Chicago Zionists last night celebrated their ninth annual festival of liberation, known as Chanukah, or feast of lights in the Stevens hotel, but some of the enthusiasm was cooled by international events which seriously threaten Zionism and hopes for a Jewish homeland in Palestine.

The age-old customs recalling the Maccabean defeat of a Syrian-Greek despot more than a century and a half before the turn of the present era were repeated. Two thousand persons crowded into the hotel's ballroom and its foyer to hear the national vice president of the Zionists, Rabbi Irving Miller of New York express hope for the ultimate victory of Zionism.

Rabbi Miller represented Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, O., newly elected president of the organization, who is still in Palestine.

Milton J. Silberman, president of Chicago Zionists, presided at the festival.

Earlier in the day the Chicago and Midwest unit of the commission on community interrelations of the American Jewish congress was launched in the Stevens hotel. The congress set up the commission to carry on action and research against racial prejudice along lines evolved by Dr. Kurt Lewin of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Jewish Music Fete

A Jewish music festival celebrating a century of Jewish communal life in Chicago was given before a large audience at the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon. Participants were the Jewish People's Choral society, Eugene Malek, conductor, with Selma Kaye, soprano, and Moyshe Oysher, cantor, as guest soloists. Judge Harry M. Fisher spoke in place of Mayor Kelly.

The program consisted largely of Jewish music of various types. The Jewish People's Choral society is an enthusiastic group of amateurs who sing for the love of the task rather than with the intention of achieving notable professional results. Included in their program was an excerpt from J. Schaefer's "Moshiach Ben Yosef" and the same composer's oratorio, "Tzwei Brider," as well as excerpts from Schubert's oratorio "Miriam."

Mr. Oysher sang Jewish folk songs in a manner that won his audience's vociferous approval. Miss Kaye, heard in a folk song, "A Dudele," revealed great vocal progress over her last appearances here. The voice was firm and steady, with a richness to its quality that carries a sure emotional appeal without resort to distasteful exaggeration.

Thru the Looking Glass

With money flowing over the shop counters as freely as if it were being manufactured, like prohibition gin—in the family bathtubs—it almost takes courage these days to approach a salesgirl to ask boldly "What is a gift that will cost NO more than a dollar?"

You want it for an office grabbag, maybe, or for a toe-of-the-stocking touch, or maybe you've just bravely budgeted yourself and are sticking to your resolutions. No reason in the world why you shouldn't, either. . . . And there are such gifts to be found, if you dig.

There is, for example, the nice little item of paper sachet petals. These come 85 to a jar—the jar is pretty, too—and are charming little petals of paper lavishly impregnated with fragrance. They're quite long lasting sachets, and their uses are obvious. Women can pin them into garments, toss them into dresser drawers, tuck 'em into hat linings, or carry one or two in their handbag. One particularly dainty woman we know, who likes everything she wears or uses to be sweetly scented, even keeps one in her stationery box!

There are five fragrances, one a bouquet, the others gardenia, carnation, rose, and apple blossom. All are feminine, safe choices for almost any woman.

The little glass jar is peach, the outer box white with blue and peach trim. It's an attractive little gift, and useful but at the same time a somewhat glamorous one. And it's exactly a dollar, with no 20 per cent tax. It seems there must be a tax on perfume, but there can't be a tax on paper used as a carrying medium for perfume!

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Notes on a Temperature Chart

False rumor has it that this white collar editor took to her bed to escape the campaign oratory of Contributors Nosey Parker and Bill Gloer. No report could be more amiss. The bombastic promises of the two WCG vice presidential candidates were potent enough to keep any lady on her toes in anything except a flu epidemic.

No, 'twas a germ that dealt the blow, and, tho our candidates insisted that I left them on the ropes, there really was nothing to do about it, nothing at all.

The doctor, well accustomed to daily questioning. "Will I be up tomorrow? Or the next day? Or the next, huh?" was kind, tho noncommittal. So, it was something of a letdown to learn that the White Collar Girl column had to be abandoned "for a little while" and to find the "little while" widening like a patch of blue sea separating an outwardbound ship from the shore. You know how it is when the big ropes are untied, the gangplank removed, and the small group of smiling faces on the pier becomes a blur in the distance? It was rather like that—a lonely, adrift feeling, a far-awayness.

She's Looking Brighter

Then came the moment when the doctor said wickedly, "She's looking brighter today," and, O, dear, just how did I look before? Not bright? But perhaps improvement was due to the thoughtful greetings that came in every mail—notes and cards fingered a dozen times with every line read [and reread] down to the fine print in the corner. And, the snowy white chrysanthemums and the warm yellow daisies splashing sunlight into gray days, so much appreciated!

The hands of the clock at home didn't move as rapidly as the hands of the office clock sweeping around the dial toward the deadline. Strange, indeed, were long, uninterrupted hours of reading. The current magazines were piled high on the bed . . . the latest novels, "Cass Timberlane," trenchant trilogy of love, honor, and betray . . . "Three o'Clock Dinner," drama served with the family silver . . . "The White Tower," a breath of Alpine air to cool your cheek as you read.

There was plenty of time, too, to explore the want ads in the newspapers straight thru to the back page. The Lost and Found proved endlessly intriguing . . . and the Wanted to Rent, wherein babes yet unborn plead [via their distraught parents] for a home while letters written to Santa, at so much per line, entreated him to Please Bring an Apartment! The Personal column grew increasingly personal to such an extent that thruout Thanksgiving day the plight of Elsie fretted the mind—Elsie whose mother begged her [in the Personals] to come home for Thanksgiving dinner. Did she come?

The Straggling Soul

Then there was Darlene. Who is Darlene? That's what I'd like to know. Each time a man's eager voice, over the telephone, asked for her I explained "There is no Darlene at this number," and at last [after we had become mildly chummy] I offered to help him find her if he'd divulge her last name—Darlene What? Darned if he knew!

Such matters of trivial import filled the hours—hours that suddenly became almost too roomy. There were days [and who has not found this to be true?] when there was the stillness of waiting. Waiting for what? To resume a customary schedule? Perhaps. Or perhaps waiting for something else. Like the oriental traveler who had walked long and hard and fast and sat down beside the road. What was he doing, he was asked. O, just sitting quietly, he said, waiting for his soul to catch up with him—yes, waiting for his soul.

Koussevitzky's Boston Orchestra Plays Superb Mozart, Beethoven and Brahms

PERHAPS you remember that when the late Frederick Stock took the Chicago Symphony orchestra on its golden jubilee tour, it was nowhere more admired and more at home than in Boston. And surely it is true that in the last two seasons when Serge Koussevitzky and the Boston orchestra have come touring, they were nowhere more admired and more at home than in Orchestra hall. For the tradition back of the two organizations was for many years much the same, and tho the Boston orchestra is now on a pinnacle of virtuosity, it retains the basic virtues of simplicity, dignity, reticence, supreme devotion to music. To many of us, great as it is, it doesn't sound like a visiting orchestra. It makes us feel we have come back home.

Concert by the Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor. Presented in Orchestra hall Sunday afternoon, Dec. 9, 1945. The program:
Symphony in E-flat major, Köchel 543 ..... Mozart
Overture, "Leonore," No. 3..... Beethoven
Symphony No. 4, E minor..... Brahms

For one of the reassuring things about people is how easily we accept the best as our due. Take, for example, Mozart's utterly beguiling Symphony in E flat major. Mr. Koussevitzky's performance was quite the most beautiful I have heard, yet beyond certain initial shocks of sheer pleasure, it was the most natural performance in the world, of which you would say as we said of Monteux's Schumann at Ravinia, "Why, that's the way it ought to sound." It was the most supple Mozart imaginable, delicate yet glowing, held liquid in a sheath of luminous tone. Little turns of phrase were magically revealing, yet you heard the work as a whole, which is the finest gift a conductor and orchestra can make to an audience.

After the Mozart on a perfectly planned program came the great "Leonore" Overture, Beethoven in the magnificent style of Koussevitzky's "Eroica," darkling in texture, lofty in purpose, serene in performance that rose to one superb climax. And then came Brahms' Fourth Symphony, that goes in my gallery of memories with Stock's First and the Second as recently played by our orchestra with Bruno Walter.

It was tonally glorious, of course. What else could it be with such an orchestra? But it was also as mellow as if the orchestra had played it hundreds of times, as it probably has, and as fresh as if it never had been played before. It was lovingly burnished, yet crisp and clean with the transparence that brings out all the lovely inner voices without sacrifice of the score's great arch of characteristic line. Of it all, I liked the finale best, for when Mr. Koussevitzky comes to a passacaglia, he is a happy man. The statement of the theme and the glory of its variations will be something to remember until we hear its like again.

Brilliant Ruth Draper

Ruth Draper, the chameleonic actress who writes her own brilliant sketches and absorbs their dramatic color as she brings them to life, is about as good a show as theater can offer. Yesterday at the Eighth Street theater [where she ends her engagement tonight] she revived numerous favorites, including the distinguished "Three Women and Mr. Clifford," a character etching in three scenes, and rivaled it in the second scene of something new called "The Return."

The opening scene is merely preparation. Miss Draper plays a wrenlike little Englishwoman distressed to find her country cottage left in a mess by careless tenants just when her husband is coming home after five years in German prisons. The heart of the sketch comes after, as Miss Draper turns before your eyes into a kindly countrywoman who with her friends has come to restore that cottage into what the man has dreamed. They have cleaned and scrubbed, laid a fire, brought flowers and treasured food, and they creep out the back door just as the reunited family walk happily into love and warmth and candlelight. The wonder of Miss Draper is that long after the curtain has fallen you see that room, curtains drawn, a haven of happiness.

There were other good things, too. There was the redoubtable Mrs. Grimmer lunching with friends on diets to weird tales about weirder doctors, there was the elegant lady of the never quite finished Italian lesson, and for me there was "A Church in Italy," which I have treasured since the first time I saw Miss Draper years ago, for its wealth of skill in characterization, its wonderful sense of rhythm and style, and the final figure that closes its curtain, the mysterious Magdalene who alone of all the visitors has come to worship.

St. Vincent de Paul Society Praised by Stritch for Charities

Praise for the work of the St. Vincent de Paul society of the archdiocese of Chicago was voiced by Archbishop Stritch yesterday at the annual meeting of the society's councils and conferences in the Congress hotel.

"It is a great Christian thing you are doing," said the archbishop. "Not only is good done to the poor, but it allows the poor to do good to you. It is more than alms giving; it is the spirit of Christian fellowship. You are enriched in your Catholic manhood."

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the society in the United States was observed at special services in St. Mary's church, 9th st. and Wabash av., at 4:30 p. m.

Let Children Share in Yule Preparations

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Well, well—here's just what I believe about Christmas. I might have written the letter to this department myself:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"It seems to me that mothers of families spend such hectic weeks during the time before Christmas and are so worn out when the day finally arrives that they are too tired to enter into the spirit of the day, or to make it as enjoyable to their families as they would if things could be planned differently, and nonessential tasks be eliminated.

"If all the children of school age were allowed to participate more in the preparations for the day; if they perhaps could spend a little of the time previous to Christmas in making simple but practical gifts and wrapping them themselves; in helping to make the table decorations and Christmas tree trimmings, and possibly planning a program of entertainment for the whole family for Christmas afternoon, would not the day be more meaningful to them and wouldn't the whole family be happier and the true Christmas spirit surely prevail?

"Isn't the holiday season becoming too materialized and isn't too little emphasis being placed on the spirit of it?"

Christmas should be more than a gift giving time, especially in families where there are children. While there still are many persons who ignore all the lovely "implications" of Christmas, there are many who realize that a fine structure of fun, work, thoughtfulness, and unselfishness can be built up around and before the day itself, including a strain of religious or spiritual feeling especially appealing to a child and easily understood by him.

"With Bated Breath"

INSTALMENT XXXI.

AT THE BULL

The coat with its high fur collar had been concealing, Mrs. Tanner admitted, but Miss Trimble was tall for a woman. She'd noticed that when suddenly at the Elm Corners stop she had risen and squeezed past the straphangers in the aisle. But she knew Miss Trimble was barmy, for hadn't she just paid a full Cheltenham fare?

"Handed it to me, she did, so I could pass it along. Not opening her lips, no, not a word out of her. Stands to reason she wasn't just right in her mind, pinching valuables from ladies she'd worked for; and as Miss Cummings at The Bull remarked wot would Miss Maud Bolles say if she knew a person in her employ had bin pitching into a gentleman in a public coffee-room."

"One moment, Mrs. Tanner. Just when did this incident occur?"

Three minutes later Inspector Headcorn was passing the black-out screen shielding the entrance to his own hostelry and speaking to the blonde at the desk.

"O, certainly, inspector," Miss Cummings eagerly replied. "I can even tell you the day, because just afterward I realized it was the same day Miss Trimble got the sack. Did I hear what she said? Well! Every soul on this floor must have heard. The coffee room was full—and the things Miss Trimble said! she could have been had for slander calling him no better than Doctor Crippen or was it Joseph Smith? Beg pardon? O, he was with us five days. Here, I'll show you the register. There! O. B. Moravian, Bath. Odd-sounding name, foreign, wouldn't you say?"

Miss Cummings supplied further details, including the fact that poor Mr. Moravian hadn't stirred from the hotel. "It was his first visit, yes. I don't think he knew Wyfforde at all. Anyhow he's never stopped at The Bull."

The inspector thumbed back the ledger's pages, scrutinizing every entry. At a bold signature he paused, consulting his notebook. "This Mrs. Olive Marks. Know anything about her?"

"Who?" Miss Cummings craned over the book. "O, of course! About two months ago, wasn't it? September, that's right. She's our Maj. Wadsworth's sister, she came just for one night, they had dinner and breakfast up in his room. Tallish? M-m, quite. Fairly dark. Not a scrap like her brother, tho he's a big man, too—look! That's him now. I mentioned our army doctor, didn't I? R. A. M. C."

The major, fair skinned and bronzed with exposure, nodded to Miss Cummings, sent the inspector a probing glance, and shouldering into the pale fuzzy overcoat he carried strode forth into the blacked-out street.

"Pardon? O! Well, I'll tell you what Miss Trimble said."

Listening, the interpreter drew towards him the telephone directory and looked up the offices of Geoffrey Treadgold, solicitor. It lacked two minutes to seven.

Avis got her torch and glided along to the dark airless room niched under the roof-stair. Dust-coated luggage mounted in piles; but scratches on the bare boards showed which trunk had been recently shifted. Right at the back she found it—a new, moderate sized pigskin case, brightly stamped with the letters A. T.

Even now she could not believe. That the suitcase should have been put here and allowed to remain! This could only have been intended as a temporary hiding place. Was it THE suitcase? Wrapping her handkerchief round her fingers she undid the two hasps. Up sprang the lid, giving her a glimpse of a stuffy black blouse. Fastened to the neck of the blouse was a little diamond star.

This was the very blouse and brooch she had seen Aggie wearing! Moravian was right. That he might have the best of all reasons for accuracy didn't just then occur to her, because some one was coming up the stairs.

The front one, mercifully. It gave her just time to totter out, dodge a few steps down the back stairs, and ostentatiously emerge to round the angle of passage where Maud was about to rap bony knuckles on Erica's door.

"O, so you are in, Miss Bolles. Do you mind if dinner is a little early? The cook is anxious to get home."

As far as she could make out the cold stare was only normally suspicious. . . . "In that case, Miss Marriott, we will not change."

The hasty lie had worked. There'd been purpose behind it, and the not changing into dinner garb fitted the swiftly evolved plan. So did Maud's brusque question: "You look seedy, Miss Marriott. A headache?" Avis answered that she was half blind.

How the dragging hour had been got thru—how she had stolen down to the basement and out, with the whole household, barring Erica, assembled in the drawing room, seemed an incredible feat; but it had been achieved, and now she was trundling her bicycle guardedly along the trodden turf, only the dimmed lamp to keep her from sliding into the abyss and to guide her to the footpath. It had to be the short cut, and it had to be the bicycle. It was after 8:30, so she was cramped for time. "I've got to see Cam. I can't handle this alone."

Erica's life depended on Cam. On her. . . .

The bicycle lamp fizzed and went out. With the little arched bridge in sight visibility plunged into velvet gloom. Still, she could just see the arched bridge, spanning the turbulent Wyffe. On the crest she mounted her bicycle—and was off with the wind.

Sharp stones sent her bouncing. Once she carromed into prickly holly, but she righted herself and with raindrops spattering her face began judiciously applying her two brakes. With a shock she found her wheels whirling faster and more wildly. The brakes weren't functioning! And at this breakneck rate it was lunacy to leap off.

Faintly, in her rear, another bicycle was steadily purring. She wanted to call out, but what was the use? She couldn't stop this machine, it was gathering impetus with every bumpy downward yard, reeling drunkenly, a devil incarnate, defying every effort to keep it straight. The other bicycle was coming up in her mad wake, its beam for a second pierced the blackness ahead. "The greasy patch!" she thought, agonized. She'd just seen it—the slough, at the hairpin bend, where the outflow from a spring trickled across the path.

Lavish Movie Falls Flat as Entertainment

"YOLANDA AND THE THIEF"

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, directed by Vincente Minnelli, featuring Fred Astaire, Lucille Bremer, Frank Morgan, Mildred Natwick, Mary Nash, and Leon Ames. Presented at the United Artists.

By Mae Tinée

Ludwig Bemelmans, whose sensitive pen has a touch of whimsey, is said to have had something to do with the story on which this film was based. The Bemelmans touch got lost some place, maybe in a sea of technicolor, and I wonder what Mr. B. thinks of the finished product.

Extravagant is the word for this offering—it's that all over, and that applies to the settings, the plot, and the color, which does not necessarily add up to entertainment.

Fred Astaire and Frank Morgan are a pair of amiable crooks who arrive in the mythical country of Patria just as the convent bred Yolanda has come into her fabulous fortune and is praying to her guardian angel for assistance in managing it. Mr. Astaire is quick on the uptake, and convinces the lady that he is her winged protector, come here in earthly guise to help her thru the emergency. If she will just give him power of attorney, all her troubles, and incidentally, her fortune, will be removed. You know Mr. Astaire just can't stay bad for the length of any movie, so you can imagine what happens eventually. However, it's a very long time before the inevitable occurs and it's greatly delayed by a dream sequence, with sets that are a good imitation of the handiwork of Salvador Dali, and music that sounds as tho it was coming from a long way overseas, with liberal doses of static.

Some of the other dances, especially the carnival number Mr. Astaire does with Miss Bremer, have a lot of the old charm Astaire addicts expect.

The entire film is jerky and jumpy as to pace, the sets are sometimes startling, occasionally stunning, and on the whole, it's a florid effort which falls pretty flat, in spite of the fact that the heroine sometimes looks very beautiful, dances effortlessly with her skilful partner, and Mr. Morgan is good for a laugh every now and then.

Too Much Slapstick

"HOLD THAT BLONDE"

By Mae Tinée

Remember the days when it was awfully funny to see Charlie Chaplin looking innocently frantic and being the victim of circumstances, when Harold Lloyd dangled interminably on building ledges and flagpoles high over the street, when chases in and out of shrubbery, up and down stairs, and dumb, flat-footed cops falling over their own feet in pursuing victims were the major portion of any comedy? Well, they're here again, all incorporated in "Hold That Blonde."

Eddie Bracken spends all his time looking frantic or doleful as Ogden Spencer Trulow, a young man with a lot of money, a busted romance, and a resultant case of kleptomania. A psychoanalyst suggests he find himself another girl. His new love is the innocent tool of a pack of jewel thieves, and his valiant attempt to keep her from sinful ways by beating them to the loot provides the basis for a great deal of confusion, which lasts entirely too long, or maybe it just seems that way.

Kids probably will enjoy this film, but I could manage only an occasional grin which was as sickly as Mr. Bracken's main expression long before it was over.

Never mind the blonde—hold that slapstick!

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 5 ♦ A K 7 6 ♣ K 10 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 diamonds	Pass	3 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Four clubs. Partner has shown a powerful hand and you have considerably more than you might have had for your two previous calls. In other words you would have bid in exactly the same manner without the king of clubs which should be calculated as a full trick. That in conjunction with your singleton heart should suggest slam possibilities. It has the further merit of giving a complete distributional picture of your hand to partner.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ 7 4 ♥ K 10 9 6 ♦ J 10 5 ♣ K J 9 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. This is concededly a close question and no severe criticism should attend a pass. Our preference is to bid because while it is true that on a certain number of hands we might be in jeopardy at three hearts, nevertheless it is worth the risk because of the occasional game that will be unearthed in this manner. Remember, too, that partner need not go on, inasmuch as you have previously notified him that you haven't much strength.

Q. 3—You are South, both sides vulnerable and you hold:

♠ K 10 9 8 7 5 3 ♥ — ♦ 6 2 ♣ A J 5 3

The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	2 spades
3 hearts	4 spades	5 hearts	Double
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five spades. There is too grave a danger that the adverse contract can be fulfilled, in which case the loss to your side will be staggering. Whereas it is a moral cinch that you will not be set more than one trick, with an outside chance of fulfillment. In other words the loss by passing can be far out of proportion to the possible loss by bidding.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♠ J 7 5 3 ♥ 6 3 2 ♦ 9 2 ♣ 9 8 7 5

The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
2 hearts	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	7 no trump	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead:

A.—A club. Partner's double of the slam calls for an abnormal lead. That is to say the diamond suit is immediately eliminated as a choice since that would be the natural lead if partner failed to double. The heart lead can hardly be imperative since it is inconceivable that the enemy can bring in 13 tricks without that suit. The same reasoning applies to spades. But they might have enough tricks to shut out your partner's probable ace of clubs.

Q. 5—You are South, have 70 part score, and hold:

♠ K Q 7 5 2 ♥ A 5 ♦ K 6 ♣ A 9 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three clubs. Slam possibilities should be investigated when partner overbids the game. If he shows the ace of diamonds you can economically show the ace of hearts and await his pleasure.

Q. 6—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:

♠ K 10 8 3 ♥ K Q 9 5 ♦ 5 ♣ A 10 7 6

What is your response?

A.—Three hearts. This is preferable to a temporary bid of one spade which is really unnecessary. It will merely involve a future problem. The point is that in one bid and in a direct manner you will give a complete and adequate description of your hand and leave the rest to partner.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ A 7 ♥ K Q 10 7 5 ♦ 9 7 5 ♣ K 6 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 clubs	2 diamonds

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Despite the fact that you have a rebiddable major suit you should not yield to the temptation to show it. By doing so you would be announcing that you have some excess values when in point of fact you have a rock bottom minimum. If partner is unable to act again when you pass it around to him, you may feel confident that you have lost nothing.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ 6 2 ♥ K 10 9 7 6 5 ♦ — ♣ A J 10 9 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 spade	Pass	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Three hearts. Your hand offers a fair prospect for game if partner happens to have a few fillers in the right places. Partner can hardly be deceived into believing that you have an abundance of high cards inasmuch as your previous pass belies such a condition. Furthermore your bid is not forcing but announces a hand strong in distribution and just short of an opening bid.

Sauces Give Gala Touch to Meal Finales

BY MARY MEADE

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

One of the most popular of pudding sauces is lemon, an old favorite for cottage pudding, steamed puddings, fruit cake and other desserts. Other fruit sauces, and rum, brandy and wine sauces hold a lot of appeal as the holidays approach, too.

Lemon Sauce

- 1 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 cups boiling water
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon nutmeg
- Juice of 1 lemon
- Grated rind of ½ lemon
- 1 tablespoon butter

Mix sugar and cornstarch. Add boiling water and salt. Cook until clear and thickened. Add nutmeg, lemon, rind and butter. Serve hot over puddings.

Fluffy Lemon Sauce: Stir a beaten egg yolk into the sauce just before serving, and fold in the stiffly beaten white.

Claret Sauce

- ⅔ cup claret wine
- ⅓ cup water
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

Bring wine and water to boiling. Mix sugar and cornstarch. Add with salt to hot liquid. Cook until clear and thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add butter and nutmeg. Good hot or cold. The thick cold sauce may be folded into whipped cream, if desired.

Brandy Hard Sauce

Cream ¼ cup butter and work in 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and 1½ tablespoons brandy. Serve cold on a hot pudding or mince pie.

Creamy Wine Sauce

- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup butter
- 4 egg yolks, well beaten
- ¼ cup sherry, port or other wine
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup cream, heated

Cream sugar and butter together and add well beaten egg yolks. Stir in wine and add salt and hot cream. Beat well. Cook in the top of a double boiler, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Do not overcook.

Peach Sauce for Pudding

- 1 package frozen peaches
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ¼ cup water
- ¼ cup sugar or honey
- 1 teaspoon cornstarch
- Few drops almond extract

Defrost peaches, chop, and add lemon juice, water, and sugar mixed with cornstarch. Simmer gently until thickened, add extract and serve warm or chill and serve cold over pudding.

Peach Sauce with Brandy: Add a tablespoon of brandy to the sauce and omit the almond extract. Rum may be used in the same way.

Apricot Cream Pudding Topping

Drain cooked apricots, put them thru a sieve and combine with an equal amount of whipped cream, sweetening to taste. Serve chilled. This is especially good on a plain cake or pudding. Grated orange rind may be added.

Girl's Sweater

BY JEAN MACDONALD

A cunning double breasted sweater, knitted in an interesting stitch, is ideal for girls 2, 4, and 6 years of age. It is especially attractive worn with a plaited plaid skirt.

For instructions in knitting the sweater, No. 1187, send 15 CENTS in coin [wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

Hand Knitted Sweaters Have New Smartness

BY REA SEEGER

The indispensable sweater is here in a new guise. Women who felt disdain for their sloppy silhouette, yet yearned for the smart, casual comfort of such knitted creations, now can wear some swank new jackets from a showing currently on display. These sweaters are hand knit, and fit in around the waistline, like a casual type jacket of wool. This is the first time sweaters have had that definite nipped in waistline and the suggestion of a peplum, and they look like jackets of a knitted texture.

All smart colors are available, with brown in a deep chestnut shade the most effective. A row of flat gold metal buttons keeps them snug and trim. Sleeves are long, and the neckline is a shallow V. Effective wide rows of ribbing alternate with plain knitting. A few bright colors such as rose-red, blue, and green, come in the same model. These sweater jackets can be worn with or without a blouse or shirt, as the necklines are simple and collarless. So both tailored blouses and those with frilled jabots are effective contrast.

The same idea in a silk knitted sweater comes in one color only, a pale, patrician shade of chartreuse. These have the same nipped in waistline, the same slightly flared peplum with flashing decorative buttons down the front closing. Such a silken beauty teams up with long or short skirts for party wear or with day time length dresses of dark crepes or extra skirts of velvet or velveteen, so, tho it is a costly purchase at the beginning, the price is justified. Both the wool and the silk hand knitted sweaters make ideal Christmas gifts.

Dear Diary BY BECKY

[Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. Copyright, 1945, By The Chicago Tribune.]

Veteran Asks Sally's Aid in Furnishing Flat

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mr. K. of the near north side, just returned from service overseas, is eager to establish a home for his wife and two babies, who have been living with relatives in small, crowded quarters during his absence. He has located an unfurnished flat and feels that it is important to make the change at the earliest moment, but has nothing to put in it. Can our readers come to his aid by providing the most essential pieces, such as a kitchen table and chairs, utensils, dishes, bedding, and bedroom and living room furniture?

Mrs. P., widowed mother of seven children, ranging in age from 3 to 17 years, and dependent upon an agency for their support, lives in a rear, chilly, stove heated flat on the south side, where shabby, worn rugs offer little protection from the drafts. A living room rug, size 9x12, and curtains are badly needed, not only for warmth but to give a cheery and comfortable appearance to the room.

Clothing of all kinds is a dire necessity for the youngest child, a boy 3, who is ill and must be taken to the clinic periodically. Warm wearables for the other members of the family are also badly needed in the following sizes: Women's, 52; boys, 18, 15, and 10, and girls 17, 14, and 12.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 9—Paulette Goddard, Burgess Meredith, and Ben Bogeaus have bought Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World" jointly. It'll be produced next summer, with Burgess certainly—and Paulette probably—starring. Huxley is a natural to do his own screen play with the aid and abetment of world famous scientists. Norman Bel Geddes is being paged for the sets. Jean Renoir undoubtedly will direct. It's an all-star setup in any man's language. . . . Recently I ran this item: "Wonder why somebody doesn't buy "The Wide House," by Taylor Caldwell, and star Clark Gable and Paulette Goddard?" Well, Metro missed the boat on that, but Julius Rosenwald's grandson, Armond Deutsch, saw the item and planked down 50 grand for the story. Not only that, but he's bought Caldwell's second story, "This Side of Innocence," now running in a national magazine. Deutsch, who has formed his own production company, will set up his production center in Hollywood.

They Can Hope, Can't They?

Jim McGuinness went all the way to New York to try to persuade Helen Hayes to play the part of Van Johnson's mother in "The Risen Soldier." Seems Helen has one old commitment to fulfill for Metro, and they're hoping she'll come thru. . . . Virginia Mayo makes a complete switch in character in MacKinlay Kantor's "Glory for Me." She'll go heavily dramatic as the unfaithful wife of a returned veteran. . . . Ben Hecht and Charley Lederer have collaborated on a story which is now reposing on the desk of a Paramount big shot.

Too Much—Also Too Late

Vic Mature was too old and too heavy to play opposite June Haver in "Three Little Girls in Blue"—so his studio told me. . . . Because a theater couldn't be had for love or money, "Laura" is being postponed on Broadway. Donald Woods, set for the lead, is returning here for more pictures. As a matter of fact, stage space is about the scarcest thing in New York. Even Gertie Lawrence's "Pygmalion" had to wait. . . . Now that she's free lancing, Lucille Ball will have her own radio show. She always wanted it, but her studio put thumbs down on the idea. . . . Gene Markey's first for Twentieth Century will be his own original story titled "Until Morning." He's already asked for Gene Tierney to star in it. . . . Hear Peggy Ryan is threatened with suspension at Universal. They want her to do a picture which she doesn't like.

A Little of This and That

Bob Hope is planning a trip to Japan next summer. If it can be arranged he'll take his whole gang with him. . . . Kathryn Grayson denies she's anticipating. . . . "Abie's Irish Rose" will have music. Well, I can bear it, if they'll let Bing Crosby give it out. . . . Jimmy Stewart will eat his Christmas dinner with his family in Indiana, Pa. . . . Andy Russell goes back to his old love—playing drums—on Request Performance radio show. . . . Julian Young, who deserted screen and play writing to open up a string of infant wear shops, comes up with a new story: "Love Is a Little Man." O, baby! . . . Ed Gardner, after seeing "Lost Week-End," said, "A picture like that could close up 'Duffy's Tavern.'"

HOT CINNAMON CRUMB BREAD

- 1½ cups Ceresota Enriched Flour
- 3 teaspoons tartrate or 2 teaspoons double-action baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ cup Nucoa or butter
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- ½ cup milk
- 2 egg whites

TOPPING:
- ½ cup grated fresh bread crumbs
- 2 tablespoons melted Nucoa or butter
- 3 tablespoons sugar or honey
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon

(1) Sift, measure flour and resift with baking powder, salt, and cinnamon. (2) Cream Nucoa, sugar and egg yolks and add to flour mixture. (3) Add milk, stir only until dry ingredients are moistened. (4) Fold in egg whites beaten stiff, and turn into Nucoa-d deep layer-cake pan. (5) Cover top with bread crumbs mixed with melted Nucoa. (6) Bake in moderately hot oven (375°F.) for 40-45 minutes. (7) Sprinkle with the sugar and cinnamon. Yield: One 8-inch round loaf.

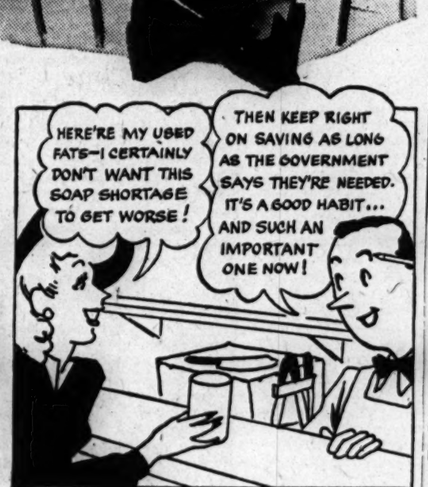
Save More Used fats!

YOUR country's supply of industrial fats is so low that the government itself has to decide just how much can be released to make soap... and how much for the other peacetime goods we need so badly.

If you let up on saving and turning in your used fats, our supplies will go still lower, and the amount allowed for soaps may have to be cut accordingly. If that happens, you will find even less soap on dealers' shelves!

STILL SAVING USED FATS, SUE? AREN'T FATS PLENTIFUL NOW?... THEY'VE TAKEN THE POINTS OFF!
THAT'S FOOD FATS, ANN; THE KINDS OF FATS THAT MAKE SOAP ARE STILL NEEDED. BETTER START SAVING AGAIN

DON'T BE FOOLED, just because you can now buy butter, shortening and lard without points. Industrial fats are still very scarce. Keep saving your used fats and help speed greater supplies of soaps. Turn yours in and get 4¢ a pound.



HERE'RE MY USED FATS—I CERTAINLY DON'T WANT THIS SOAP SHORTAGE TO GET WORSE!
THEN KEEP RIGHT ON SAVING AS LONG AS THE GOVERNMENT SAYS THEY'RE NEEDED. IT'S A GOOD HABIT... AND SUCH AN IMPORTANT ONE NOW!

YOUR USED FATS are an important part of the fats that go to make soaps. Any falling-off in your saving may cut down the soap supply to your dealer... and to you!

WILMAN TAKES ALL-STAR BOWLING CROWN

COAST'S MAJOR DEMAND FACES BALLOT TODAY

Trade Talk Scarce at Winter Parley

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

Clarence Rowland, the modern Ban Johnson, will begin to learn today just how much or how little the major leaguers think of giving the Pacific Coast league a rating that, on paper, would place it alongside the American and National.

Clarence Rowland

This bit of business, among other things, will pop up when the two major circuits open their annual mid-winter sessions in the Palmer House.

The major leaguers, altho convinced in advance that they are not going to go for President Rowland's pet project, have graciously consented to listen to what arguments the Coast league committee can offer. But a definite decision may not be announced until after Commissioner A. B. Chandler has had a chance to visit with the ambitious minor leaguers.

Sox May Not Get Heath

Altho big league managers have practically taken over the loop, there was a marked scarcity of extra-choice trade rumors. The best of a poor lot was that the White Sox were going to lose out in their scheme to relieve the Cleveland Indians of the services of Outfielder Jeff Heath and at the same time relieve Heath of the Indians.

Manager Jim Dykes has had the fellow on his wanted list ever since Heath's unpleasantness with the Indian management arose and as recently as last week in Columbus asked Heath's employers for terms. However, Dykes didn't get a definite reply, the reason being that the Cleveland club was weighing other propositions. The latest development indicated that the Indians had accepted a bid made by either the Boston Red Sox or Washington Senators.

Cubs Still Boast Nine Catchers

Charles Grimm, the boss of the champion Cubs, continued to center his midwinter business on thoughts of spring training instead of trading. He wouldn't pass up a helpful swap if it presented itself but is perfectly willing to go along in 1946 with what won a flag for him last season.

Grimm keeps on mentioning that he has nine catchers but denies that he's trying to attract the attention of any club that might be in need of that particular variety of performer.

The Cincinnati Reds also are on the heavy side in the catching department and there is a possibility that they may use some of this surplus in a swap with either the Phillies or Dodgers.

Consider Night Game Issue

During the meetings the night ball matter will take up considerable time but there is reason to believe the clubs that want it kept to a minimum of seven will have to back down before the demands of the Senators and the two St. Louis clubs. However, it is said that Clark Griffith, who last season just about forgot that baseball really can be played in daylight, is willing to cut himself from 40 down to 33 night affairs in his park.

Griffith also wants a ban placed on twilight-night double headers and on this he may be able to get plenty of support. Another Griff innovation is said to be the trimming of the mania for Sunday double headers. He thinks six a season are enough.

1945 Horse Betting Soars Over Billion

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Two-buck Benny, the fellow who does all the wagering around the race tracks, has become Sawbuck Sam, now, and in the greatest financial spree in racing history, has made a billion-and-a-quarter dollar business out of betting the horses in the United States in 1945.

The old-fashioned $2 window was just small change for Sawbuck Samuel this year. He rushed the $10 and up wickets like a GI at chow time and wagered $1,306,514,314 in the 18 states where race tracks operate under mutuel betting. Altogether, turf fans bet an average $75.70 per person per racing day during the year, topped off by a practically fabulous $107.99 average on New Hampshire's one small track.

States Get 65 Millions

Of the all-time high total — $444,557,992 of which was contributed in New York alone—the Associated Press annual survey showed state treasuries benefitted to the extent of $65,484,121.30 in revenue.

Most astonishing factor in the wagering—even more than the play given the upper bracket betting windows—was the fact that the nearly 17,000,000 fans who saw the horses run during the year had 221 fewer days to operate than in 1944 because of war time shutdowns, yet bet nearly $200,000,000 more.

As a result, with betting and attendance up, even tho there was considerably less racing, the average mutuel handle per day for the country was $1,014,409.77, almost twice as much as it was a year ago.

California Has Chief Increase

Chief upsurge came in California, where Santa Anita and Hollywood Park came back from the wars. Altho the state's racing season was cut 19 days from 1944, the fans tossed $103,001,357 more into the mutuels this fiscal year than last.

Only Florida experienced a decrease. With Hialeah Park closed and the 1944-'45 season sliced from 100 to 28 days, the betting fell off $38,421,198. On the other hand, New Jersey boomed $25,731,026 over its 1944 total and, with two new tracks expected to open for 1946, racing's infant member is a fast growing baby.

Arizona Looks Up

Ohio betting went up more than $6,000,000 and the $50 windows on some of the Buckeye state tracks were open for the first time. Arizona, altho off slightly from last year, is looking for an all time high in 1946. Now that the courts there have ruled that the state tax commission can't limit the amount of racing, the folks may have it from this month continuously to next June.

Yesterday's Hero

It hangs on the wall of the rumpus room,
A photo that money can't buy,
Of a gang that I knew in the long ago
When spirit and hope ran high.
There's Lefty and Spike from old St. Joe
And me from down Memphis way—
It's a long, far cry to Belleau Wood,
To the heroes of yesterday.

We'd just returned to the land of the free,
From that ugly mess in France—
We'd chased the heinie back to the Rhine
With a goodly kick in the pants.
We'd won a war in a cause that was just,
We'd beaten the kaiser's autocracy,
We'd finished the task our leader had asked
To make the world safe for democracy!

Up Fifth avenue and across Times square
Thru a ticker tape blizzard we passed,
Our senses were drunk with the cheers of the crowd—
Hero worship not destined to last.
We lieutenants three who went on a spree
Were happy and proud that day,
Lefty and Spike from old St. Joe
And me from down Memphis way.

But now the scene is somewhat changed,
There's another whose praises I sing;
It doesn't take long to become a hero,
But to stay, that's a different thing.
And so I step down handing over my crown
Retiring in humble submission
To a proud strutting son, who has richly won
In China, his major's commission!

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—The Washington Redskins, leaving no doubt of their superiority on this particular afternoon, beat the New York Giants, 17 to 0, to go into the world championship pro football playoff with Cleveland's Rams next Sunday in the Ohio city.

The Redskins turned loose their brilliant array of runners and this, along with Sammy Baugh's accurate throwing, broke down New York's stubborn defense for two touchdowns in the second half. The victory carried with it the eastern division title of the National league, the sixth such triumph for George Preston Marshall's team. The capacity throng of 34,788 included Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, chief of staff.

This was a game the Redskins wanted to win above all others this season, with a probable playoff cut of more than $2,000 for each player riding on the result. So they never gave the Giants a look-in.

Finally Solve Giants' Defense

Giant Coach Steve Owen threw up such a tenacious line that it was well along in the third period before the Redskins added a touchdown to the 23 yard field goal scored by Joe Aguirre in the opening quarter.

It was a pass by Baugh that first sent the Redskins over. He tossed 25 yards to End Les Dye who caught the ball on the goal line and spun across early in the third quarter.

Arnie Herber, whose passing beat Philadelphia a week ago, fumbled on his own 16 in the closing quarter and Washington's Al Piasecky recovered. Frank Akins took shots at the middle of the Giants' line and rammed over from the 1.

Baugh then experienced a rare thrill by scoring a point for the second time in his nine-year professional career. Aguirre's kick for the extra point was blocked, but Sam picked up the ball and ran around the end for the conversion. Baugh scored a touchdown against Brooklyn shortly after he broke in with the Redskins.

Giants Never Past Midfield

Akins, Merlyn Condit, Steve Bagarus, Bob Defruiter, and Sal Rosato ran the Giants so deep in their own end of the field that the New Yorkers never were in possession of the ball beyond their own 41-yard line.

On numerous occasions the Giants' forwards threw the Redskins back within a few strides of the goal. The Redskins had a first down on the 7 but couldn't drive across as Condit was nailed on fourth down on the 2 in the final minute of the first half.

The nearest the Giants came to a scoring threat was on a pass, Herber to Carl Grate, an ineligible receiver, near Washington's 20. It cost the visitors loss of the ball.

Baugh Completes 11

Baugh completed 11 of 19 throws for 150 yards, including one touchdown. Herber connected on only four of 16 for 30 yards.

Frank Cope, star New York tackle, was confined to a hotel room by an attack of influenza and the Giants missed him sorely as Washington rolled up 296 yards to 27 on the ground. Statistics:

Hawks Rout Bruins, 8 to 3, Before 17,704; Take 2d Place

BY EDWARD BURNS

The highly-rated Boston Bruins made their first visit of the season to Chicago Stadium last night—and the 17,704 rebid Blackhawks partisans in attendance hope they'll be back soon. The Bostons were a delightful touch for our rapid and tricky fellows, as attested by the score: Chicago, 8; Boston, 3.

The outcome enabled the Hawks to go in second place, supplanting the Bruins. Tied with the Hawks are the Detroit Red Wings, who knocked off the league-leading Montreal Canadiens.

Brimsek Finds It Painful

Goalie Frank Brimsek, known as Mr. Zero for his shutout performances before he joined the United States coast guard, almost three years ago, made his post-war debut—and a painful experience it was, of course. His predecessor, Paul Bibeault, had been beaten for goals only 36 times in a dozen games. It was Bibeault who beat the Hawks 6 to 3 in Boston last Wednesday night, and it also was Bibeault who was beaten by the Hawks, 5 to 4, in the season opener.

The first period was scoreless, but in the second session the Hawks panicked the Bostonians with their speed and spirit as they made four goals in a span of 11 minutes and 23 seconds.

In the third period the Hawks made four goals while the Bruins were making their three—one of which was Bill Cowley's 500th point in National league competition. The other two were by Herbie Cain.

Kaleta, Smith Score Twice

Alex Kaleta and Clint Smith, who play on the same line, each made two goals. Kaleta also had two assists and Smith one. Their line mate, Wingy Johnston, scored one goal and three assists. Bill Mosienko also had two goals, each of the Bentley brothers assisting on one of Bill's efforts. Pete Horeck was assisted by Red Hamill.

The game ceased to be a scoreless affair in 6:39 of the second period when Kaleta plowed straight at Brimsek for the night's first goal after getting the puck in a zig-zag passing maneuver by Smith and Johnston which gave Kaleta the rubber directly in front of the cage.

The same line scored again before its three minute stint had been completed. In 8:27 Johnston tallied after taking the puck from Kaleta in a speed dash. Tho he was skating hard his touch was delicate and he slanted home the goal with finesse, tho off balance, when he beat Brimsek.

Strenuous for Brimsek

The Hawks continued to make Brimsek's return to action a strenuous experience, but didn't add their third goal until 16:10 of the second period. Brimsek tried to handle a close-in shot from Mosienko, but the puck evaded his clutch and bounded into the cage. Doug Bentley earned an assist on this counter No. 3.

The fourth Chicago goal in the intense second period was the handiwork of Smith assisted by Kaleta.

Cain took advantage of careless defensive work to spoil Mike Karakas' bid to be Mr. Zero for the evening, scoring in 5:31 of the third period. Then Smith and Kaleta counted in little more than a minute. Thereafter came Mosienko's second goal for a 7 to 1 count; Cain made it 7 to 2; Cowley made it 7 to 3, and Horeck effected the final score.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Joseph [Buck] Wilman, a man who munches gum most times, and a little more rapidly when he's knocking over a lot of ten pins, last night accelerated his chicle chewing talents as he captured the fifth annual All-Star national individual match game bowling championship conducted by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

It was the first time in the history of this world series of tenpins, as operated on this pattern, that one of the home folk had been able to bring off the title. And the audience, largest ever present on the final night, and one which packed the Auditorium to its ancient rafters, agreed that the popular captain of the Chicago Classic league's Monarch Beers truly deserved his victory.

Knocks Down 14,437 Pins

Wilman finished with a final Petersen point tabulation of 310.12, a total pin aggregate of 14,437, and a won-and-lost mark of 41½ and 22½.

While Wilman collected $2,000 and the championship trophy, he had to earn it, despite a comfortable early lead. Pvt. Therman Gibson of Scott Field, Ill., and the great E. and B. team from Detroit, and Andy Varipapa put on a dramatic race for the runnerup spot which threatened to close in on Wilman before the best run show of the series was over at 10:55 p. m. The winner of second money of $1,000 was Pvt. Gibson, who last spring captured the Petersen Classic prize of $5,100.

Gibson came out of the nine day marathon with a Petersen point system of 305.37, thanks to splitting his regularly scheduled afternoon match with the new champion, then taking four straight games from Joe in the evening's finale. Across the handsome Auditorium alleys on the same position squad which brought together the successive occupants of the various positions in their order at the end of the first 15 matches was Andy Varipapa, the acrobatic New Yorker.

Andy Puts on a Spurt

Andrew, never sparing of words or gymnastic didoes, was rassling with Walter Ward, the Clevelander who last night came in wearing the largest cigar of the season. Andy came fast after losing the first game to Ward, then rushed thru three of the swiftest spurts of the tournament, a 252, 233, and 237. Andy wound up with an even 303 points and third money of $500.

Wilman, who has lived most of his life in Chicago since coming here from his native Fontanet, Ind., learned the game at the old Archer-35th recreation where he became a protege of Louis P. Petersen, designer of the point system used in the tournament and originator of the Auditorium Service Men's center bowling setup.

Life Begins Before 40

Joe, who will be 40 on Dec. 20, not only romped off with the special total pin match for the seeded finalists, but also withstood the daily assaults of 15 other top flight match play bowlers.

The new champ, who was runnerup in a soldier uniform in the 1944 tourney while on leave from Fort Lewis, Wash., had an enviable record before going into service, too. He captured the A. B. C. all-events championship in 1939 with a 2,028 in Cleveland and led Chicago's Budweisers to the A. B. C. team title with a 3,031 in Columbus in 1942. Joe has scored five perfect games in his career, and during his 25 months in service engaged in nine singles and five doubles bouts, taking all except one of the twosome arguments.

The complete prize list:

Joe Wilman, $2,000; Therman Gibson, $1,000; Andy Varipapa, $500; Walter Ward, $400; Ned Day, $325; Chet Bukowski, $275; Fred Bujack, $275; Connie Schwoegler, $275; Steve Nagy, $275; George Vallos, $250; Joe Sinke, $250; Buddy Bomar, $250; George Morrison, $250; Frank Benkovic, $225; Nelson Burton, $225; Paul Krumske, $225.

Fleet City, Buddy Young Beat El Toro Marines, 48 to 25

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 9 (AP)—The powerful Fleet City Bluejackets today defeated the El Toro flying marines, 48 to 25, to clinch the unofficial national service football championship. Buddy Young, former Illinois star, contributed to the victory one of the greatest offensive exhibitions ever seen in Memorial coliseum.

A crowd of 59,143 watched Young reel off the two longest touchdown runs of the season here—94 and 88 yards—in the second quarter. The Chicago Negro came back to sprint 20 for a third score as his mates aided in a 20-point third period.

The marines, outmanned but not outfought, depended almost entirely on the passing of Paul Governali, who threw three touchdown passes and set up a fourth score. With Governali completing 19 of 47 tosses, the marines led, 18 to 14, at the half and rolled up a total of 17 first downs to the Bluejackets' 11.

After a scoreless first period, the service teams played an exciting second quarter. Governali started it by pitching a bullet pass eight yards to Elroy Hirsch for a score. Hirsch was another great back for the marines today.

Young took the next kick-off and ran 94 yards to even it up. Four minutes later, the Negro star took a punt on the dead run on his own 12, reversed his field and scooted 88 yards for another tally.

Governali complete two passes for 55 yards to Hirsch and End Ralph Heywood and then Jerry Whitney plunged over for the 1. The marines then grabbed a Bluejacket fumble on the fleet city 9, and Governali passed to Walt Clay in the end zone to give the Marines the 18 to 14 edge. Lineups:

VAN BUREN SETS RECORD; EAGLES BEAT YANKS, 35-7

Philadelphia Back Turns In 18th Touchdown

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 9 (AP)—Steve Van Buren smashed Don Hutson's National Football league touchdown record today while pacing the Philadelphia Eagles to a 35 to 7 victory over the Boston Yanks.

Van Buren blasted across the Boston goal line three times to bring his season's total to 18 touchdowns and to break the record of 17 held by Hutson of the Green Bay Packers since 1942.

27,905 See Record Fall

The 200 pound half back from the Bayou country was the story from start to finish. The 27,905 fans who gathered in Shibe park for the closing day were ready to see a record established—and they saw it.

Scintillating Steve did all his scoring in the last half. His first touchdown came on a 29 yard race following a lateral from Al Sherman in the opening moments of the third period.

Van Buren tied Hutson's record with only four minutes remaining; bulling across from the 7 yard marker and carrying two men with him.

The climactic tally came with one minute to go and was a driving line smash from 8 yards out. The Louisiana boy added to his glory by booting extra points after his last two scores. Thus he ran up a season's total of 110 points, 13 better than Hutson's 97 for this year. Van Buren also won the ground gaining championship of 1945.

Manders Scores for Yanks

It was a tight contest for a half, Boston taking the lead on an 18 yard touchdown smash by the veteran Pug Manders in the waning moments of the first half. The Eagles snapped into form quickly thereafter, and sparked by Al Sherman's generalship scored a moment later, Sherman tallying on a quarter back sneak.

Johnny Butler recorded Philadelphia's other touchdown on a 4 yard smash in the fourth period.

The Eagles, pre-season favorite to win the eastern division title, finished with a 7 and 3 record, one game behind Washington. Among the Eagles' victories was a 28 to 14 triumph over the Cleveland Rams, the western title holders' only loss.

Wings' Rally in 3d Beats Montreal, 2-1

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 9 (AP)—With one of their own men in the penalty box, the Detroit Red Wings tonight scored in the final three minutes to defeat Montreal, 2 to 1, in a National league hockey game that drew 13,770 fans.

All three goals came in the last seven and one-half minutes of play as both clubs opened up following 52½ minutes of scoreless hockey.

Detroit's left wing, Ted Lindsay, who went out of the game midway in the second period after colliding with Emile [Butch] Bouchard, Montreal defenseman, was taken to a Detroit hospital with a possible fractured skull. Bouchard drew a five minute penalty for high sticking on the play.

AAU Crushes Youth Revolt in 57th Meet

Richmond, Va., Dec. 9 (AP)—An attempt to rejuvenate its representation on the United States Sports federation, formerly known as the American Olympic committee, was repulsed today by the old guard at the final session of the 57th annual A. A. U. convention.

Led by Marion Miller of Kansas City, newly elected third vice president, the younger element tried to place at least one of its members high on the ticket from which A. A. U. candidates for membership on the sports federation executive board will be picked at New York tomorrow. The best the young contingent could do was the 10th and last spot, which was given James Rhodes, mayor of Columbus, O.

Approve New Members

Before the debate the A. A. U. board of governors had approved the naming of Judge Murray Hulburt of New York and Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney, also of New York, and Willard N. Greim of Denver, reelected president today without opposition, directly to the U. S. A. S. F. executive board.

All organizations in the sports federation name some members directly to the board, then select a list of 10 others who stand for election. It was on the latter list that the younger element hoped to place its men.

The 10 men are: William F. Humphrey of San Francisco, Dan J. Ferris of New York, Charles Ornstein of New York, Fred Steers of Chicago, L. Dibenedetto of New Orleans, Aaron Frank of Portland, Ore.; Charles Diehm of New York, Al Lill of Boston, Al Whelty of Baltimore and Rhodes.

The young group, however, did quash a last minute attempt of the veterans to switch the site of the 1946 convenion from San Anonio, Tex., to New Orleans.

Other Officers Named

Other officers elected, in addition to Greim and Miller, are: Judge Eugene Bonniwell of Philadelphia, first vice president; Rhodes second vice president, and Al Shinton of Pittsburgh, fourth vice president.

The governors also repealed their war time rule which permitted swimmers to serve as life guards without endangering their amateur standing, effective Jan. 1.

HAL NEWHOUSER HURT IN V BOND BOWLING MATCH

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Dec. 9 (AP)—Hal Newhouser, the Detroit Tigers' ace southpaw, suffered an injury to his back last night when he participated with other baseball stars in a Victory bond drive bowling match.

After rolling 315 in two games for the Western All-Stars, the world series star and American league's most valuable player was forced to sit out the third game because of the pain in his back.

It's a Woman's World; Busher Horse of Year

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

For the second successive year a filly has gained the distinction of being named "horse of the year" in a poll of racing experts taken by the Daily Racing Form. Louis B. Mayer's 3 year old Busher, winner of 10 races in 13 starts, succeeds to the honor given Calumet farm's Twilight Tear in 1944.

The support given the chestnut daughter of War Admiral-Baby League, by Bubbling Over was even more overwhelming than that accorded the 1944 champion, for Busher garnered additional honors in three divisions. She has been named the best 3 year old, regardless of sex; top 3 year old filly, and champion filly or mare in the handicap division.

Best as 2 Year Old Too

Last year Busher, carrying the silks of Edward R. Bradley, was picked as the best 2 year old filly. Then, during the four month racing blackout, she was sold to Mayer for a reported $50,000. The California movie magnate never made a more profitable investment. By winning $273,735 this season, Busher became the greatest money-winning filly in history. This figure, added to $60,300 earned as a juvenile, boosted her complete earnings to $334,035 and placed her seventh on the list of world money winners.

Busher won such outstanding stakes as the Arlington Handicap, Washington Park Handicap, and the Hollywood Derby, all $50,000 events. She finished second twice and third once.

Beaugay Tops Juveniles

Beaugay, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Maine Chance farm, was selected the champion 2 year old which automatically included first honors among the juvenile fillies. The speedy daughter of Stimulus-Risk, by Campfire, won six of seven starts, five of which were stake events. Purses totaled $105,910.

The Maine Chance farm's Star Pilot, winner of the Hopeful, Belmont and Pimlico Futurities and purses totaling $165,385, took first place in the 2 year old colt class. Murlogg farm's Fighting Step was named the best 3 year old colt and Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie, winner of three $50,000 events, was named the handicap horse of the year.

OREGON QUINTET ENTRAINS FOR DE PAUL MEET

Portland, Ore., Dec. 9 (AP)—The University of Oregon basketball team was eastbound tonight for Chicago to play in the De Paul university tourney starting Wednesday.

Coach Bobby Hobson's veteran five scored its fifth straight victory here last night, 49 to 30, over the University of Portland. Oregon's George Bray, 6 foot 5 inch center, scored 13 points.

HUSKIE COACH LEAVES

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 9 (AP)—Coach Hec Edmundson of the University of Washington basketball team left tonight for Chicago to scout teams Washington may meet in the De Paul tourney. The Huskies will leave tomorrow night to compete in the tourney's second round on Friday.

DEPAUW FIVE TO OPEN N. U.'S SEASON TONIGHT

BY WILFRID SMITH

Northwestern university will open its basketball season tonight at 8 o'clock in the Evanston Township High school gymnasium against De Pauw university of Greencastle, Ind. The Wildcats started last year's campaign against the same quintet with a 56 to 43 victory and tonight Max Morris and Phil Lofgren, letter men from last season, again will be in the Wildcat lineup.

Morris led the conference in scoring last year as a center. He will be shifted to forward tonight, altho it is unlikely his position on floor plays after the center jump will be altered since Morris was one of the best rebound artists in the Big Ten last year. Primary reason for the change is LeRoy King, 6 foot 7 inch center, who transferred to Northwestern after three years competition at Monmouth college.

Carter, Wheeler at Guards

Bud Carter, a squad member last season, has drawn one of the guard assignments. The other guard will be Buzz Wheeler, navy student recently transferred from Gustafus Adolphus who was an all-state high school selection in Minnesota before entering college.

DePauw has played three games to date. The Tigers' handicap is height. Altho Center Joe Boyd is 6 feet 4 inches, King has 3 inches advantage and Morris, at 6 feet 1 inch, helps the overall Northwestern height for control under the backboards.

Reserves Strength Poor

With the exception of Guards Ken Wiltgen and Bob McTaggert, Northwestern's reserves are inexperienced. Morris, however, can move to center in place of King, in which case Don Feeney, a freshman all-state high school player from Gage Park, Chicago, will replace Morris. Another all-state prep, Chuck Lindgren from Rockford, is No. 1 substitute for Lofgren.

HENRY PICARD TAKES MIAMI OPEN WITH 267

Miami, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP)—Henry Picard of Cleveland, O., shooting a 7 under par 63 to smash the course record, won the $10,000 Miami Open golf tournament today. He went out in 32 and came back in 31 for a 72 hole total of 267.

Harold [Jug] McSpaden wound up the tourney with a 5 under par 65 for a total of 272, but it was good enough only for second place. It was the 13th time this year the Sanford, Me., pro has finished in that spot. In third place was Amateur Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., who registered a 69 final round for a 277 total.

Denny Shute of Akron, O., and Dick Metz of Chicago split fourth place honors with 278s and Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., and E. J. [Dutch] Harrison of Little Rock, Ark., were tied in fifth place with 279.

Bunched at 280 were Jim Ferrier of Chicago; Orville White of Winston Salem, N. C.; Chick Rutan of Grosse Point Woods, Mich.; and Jim Foulis of La Grange, Ill.

ST. GEORGE FIVE BEATS ST. MEL SENIORS, 34-32

Ray McHugh's accuracy in making free throws gave St. George's seniors a 34 to 32 victory over St. Mel High school yesterday in Evanston. The St. George forward made nine points, seven of which were on free throws. His last two, in the final seconds of play, broke a 32 to 32 tie. St. Mel's juniors, led by Jack Malone's 14 points, defeated St. George, 41 to 34.

In an overtime contest Joliet Catholic juniors edged Holy Trinity, 38 to 36, on Bob Barney's basket in the closing minute. Gene Sari was high point man with five field goals and four free throws. Joliet also won the senior contest, 40 to 30. The games were played in Joliet. Larry Weinbrod, guard, registered six baskets and seven free throws.

De Paul academy captured a double header from St. Michael's in De Paul gym, the seniors winning, 55 to 25, and the juniors, 51 to 44. Don Hutmacher and Art Hildebrand paced the senior attack with 11 points each, while Marty Gaughun scored the same number in the junior contest. Lineups:

Spartas Rout Hakoahs in Cup Play, 4-1

BY OFFSIDE

The Sparta soccer team yesterday spotted the Hakoah-Centers a goal and then came from behind to win the Illinois state cup match game, 4 to 1, in Sparta stadium. The Kickers removed the Schwabens from the play-offs with an upset 3 to 1 victory in Winnemac park stadium.

Manfred Lehman gave the Hakoah-Centers an early lead which was lost when Henry Bellgambo scored for the Spartas before the half. Emil Sterba's two goals in succession and another one by Lehman accounted for the Sparta triumph.

Tony Eckel, Alfred Gottlieb, and Richard Schieber scored the Kickers' points as the first division team beat the Schwabens to gain a semi-final berth. Kenny Bowman made the Schwabens' lone goal.

In a replay of a tie game a week ago, the Italians defeated the Ragos, 5 to 0, in Sparta stadium. The Vikings defeated the Necaxas, 4 to 1, in an exhibition contest which preceded the Kickers' upset.

The Sparta vs. Hakoah-Center lineup:

NOVEMBER WAR PLANT SALE AT SPEEDIER RATE

U. S. Is Recovering 70 Pct. of Cost

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—Expanding private industry has taken over about 1 billion dollars' worth of surplus war plants and paid the government 70 cents on the dollar.

More than 300 government factories have been sold, leased, or are in an "advanced stage of negotiations" with private operators who can provide peace time jobs, it was learned today.

A report on November's upsurge of disposal activity, soon to be completed, is expected to show a definite break in the long log-jam which held sales to a driblet this summer and fall, a spokesman for the Reconstruction Finance corporation said.

Expects to Offer 1,300 Plants

An intense sales and advertising campaign is continuing, he reported, and preliminary negotiations are under way for sale of more than 250 additional plants.

RFC estimates that 1,300 plants ultimately will have fallen into its hands for disposal. They cost the government about 8 billions under high cost, emergency building conditions, and represent about one-fourth the productive capacity of the country.

The 70 per cent recovery was termed excellent by disposal officials, who figure that 30 per cent must be knocked off the original outlay as the difference between the war time cost of building and the cost of reproducing the plants today.

Best Plants Already Sold

However, this record cannot be sustained for the rest of the plants in RFC's catalog. Those already sold were the most desirable and readily convertible to civilian goods manufacture.

November evidently was the biggest month to date. The tally is expected to show 40 outright sales and 10 or a dozen tentative sales awaiting approval by the surplus property administration and the anti-trust division of the justice department, in addition to several leases.

"Interim," or test period, leases are being arranged for companies which do not wish to buy until they know how much a plant costs to operate. These leases run for 90 or 180 days, with negotiations to resume before they expire.

BIG STEEL USERS SWITCH GRADES TO AID DELIVERY

Cleveland, O., Dec. 9 (AP)—Many steel consumers are substituting grades in attempts to obtain better deliveries, the magazine Steel said today.

Shifting of specifications to material under less delivery pressure is "offering some degree of relief and aiding manufacturers in production of their regular lines," it reported. "One instance is shift by some light forgers from hot-rolled carbon bars to cold-drawn bars," and "even in pig iron substitutions are being made."

It said "Pressure for steel shipment to general manufacturers shows no easing and producers are filled for months ahead."

Lawndale National Bank Boosts Surplus $100,000

Food Retailers Expand Vets' Aid Program

The training and advisory program established by the Food Retailers of Greater Chicago for the benefit of war veterans planning to go into business for themselves has been expanded to include formal instruction on all phases of grocery store and meat market management, the group said yesterday.

The instruction supplements the 16 month on-the-job training provided by the organization and is given every Monday and Tuesday night by experienced grocery and meat men in the Washburne Trade school at Sedgwick and Division sts. Enrollees pay no fees, incur no obligations to the FRGC, and are eligible for educational benefits under the GI bill of rights. Classes run for two hours starting at 7:30.

What Courses Include

John J. Tunzer, field secretary of the FRGC, said the schooling provides complete courses in store management "store arithmetic," buying, selling, handling, quality grading, meat cutting, and training in appraising meat, poultry, and fish.

"We decided to set up the school so that the man we have trained in our stores will have the necessary mathematics, managerial training, and other fundamentals when he is ready to step out on his own and enter business for himself," Tunzer said.

The organization's on-the-job program, established several months ago, provides training or apprenticeship in Chicago area grocery stores and meat markets and is followed up with assistance in choosing a location, buying fixtures, and contacting suppliers.

Available to Downstaters

Chicago area veterans interested in attending the night classes should send their applications to the FRGC office at 176 W. Adams st. Those downstate will be handled thru a Springfield office which will be set up by the Illinois veterans' commission. Tunzer will interview applicants there once a month. Present plans provide for schools in every community where there are 20 or more applicants.

The Chicago classes will run thru June and will be resumed next fall.

W. VA. PULP AND PAPER

Please tell me what were the principal causes of a gradual decline in West Virginia Pulp and Paper company's earnings from $3.70 a common share in 1941 to $1.80 in 1944?—C. W.

A large increase in operating expenses and federal taxes was the chief explanation of the drop in profit despite a gain in sales. Income taxes, which took $2,200,000 in the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1941, amounted to $4,010,000 including $2,800,000 excess profits levy in 1944. Sales rose from $47,520,000 to $59,098,000.

If the new corporation tax rates which take effect next Jan. 1 had been effective in the 1944 fiscal period West Virginia's Pulp's profit would have been about $3.70 a share on the 902,432 common shares instead of $1.80. In the first nine months of the 1945 fiscal period, earnings were about the same as a year earlier.

The 1941 profit was the largest since 1929 and in six years of the 1930s no earnings were shown for the common. Altho the present outlook for the business is excellent, the record of the 1930s creates some doubt regarding the company's earning power under less favorable market and competitive conditions than now prevail.

The company is a leading producer of white paper and also manufactures kraft paper and board and other products. It owns 350,000 acres of timber land. Its pulp hills provide nearly all its requirements.

13 WARNER RADIO MODELS GET OPA PRICE APPROVAL

Retail prices on 13 models of Stewart-Warner home radios, ranging from $29.65 to $189.95, have been approved by the office of price administration, F. A. Hiter, senior vice president, announced yesterday. He also predicted at least 10,000 of the two lowest priced plastic table models will be in dealers' hands by Christmas.

The company expects to be in full or partial production on all models within 60 days and will produce 5,000 sets a day when capacity output is reached. The radios are being produced in a new large plant formerly used for shell fuze manufacturing.

Reich Finance in Chaos; U. S. Foots Big Bill

(By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune)

BERLIN, Dec. 9—An examination of Germany's financial condition shows that despite all talk that "Germany is going to pay for the occupation" actually American taxpayers are bearing the brunt to the tune of billions of dollars.

Germany is more bankrupt than distraught Germans and even some American officials realize—so much so that some leading American occupation economic authorities doubt that under the present four power policy [1] the United States can get any reimbursement beyond goods and services for occupation forces plus a share in German external assets, probably small; [2] that the united nations can exact much in cash reparations or damage claims, and [3] that Germany can even liquidate her big internal debt.

Fiscal Collapse Threatens

The steadily increasing credit and currency inflation is carrying Germany toward the same sort of fiscal collapse that occurred in 1923 altho steps have been taken to arrest this trend.

Meanwhile the occupation cost has been rising at about 100 million dollars monthly in American soldiers' pay alone. In addition are expenses for their maintenance and sundries like the tens of thousands of tons of food and other emergency supplies imported to keep Germany from social chaos.

First in the bankruptcy record stands the huge internal debt piled up before the allies arrived—about 160 billion dollars compared with the 6 billion "norm" in 1933 when Hitler came in. This sum is represented by outstanding bonds and other obligations of the third reich which in turn represent a lot of uneasy German bondholders. These obligations also happen to be the major part of the "assets" on which German banks are operating.

Germans List War Claims

Another 160 billions in war damage claims are listed by Germans on which resuscitation of a large section of German commerce is dependent. Payment, however, is considered virtually out of the question.

The truth is no one has a clear idea of Germany's current assets, expenditures, and tax revenues. Even in the United States zone the figures are quite indefinite pending a compilation of detailed regional reports which probably will be another two months coming in.

Scattered returns show regional budgets generally unbalanced because in addition to ordinary running expenses, many of the costs formerly borne by the national government have devolved upon the localities and tax collections are running only 30 to 35 per cent.

Reopen 7 Foreign Banks in Shanghai; 3 American

SHANGHAI, China, Dec. 10 [Monday]—(AP)—Seven foreign banks reopened here today for limited banking operations. Foreign currency transactions will not be included. Banks reopened include National City Bank of New York, Chase National bank, and Underwriters' Bank for the Far East, all American; Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China, the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking corporation and the Chartered Bank of India, all British, and the Banque Belge pour Letranger, Belgian.

AUTO WORKERS TO SEEK LABOR SECRETARY AID

Schwellenbach in Detroit to Speak

Detroit, Mich, Dec. 9 (AP)—Labor Secretary Schwellenbach will make his first official visit to Detroit tomorrow as the CIO United Auto Workers union renews its drive for a 30 per cent wage increase from the big three of the motor car industry.

Altho emphasizing that he will be here "merely to make a speech," top union leaders plan to meet with him informally in the hope that he may take a hand in labor disputes that have idled 213,000 automotive employes across the country.

As Schwellenbach steps off his train, the powerful UAW-CIO will reiterate its 30 per cent demands on General Motors corporation, the Ford Motor company, and the Chrysler corporation.

Seek to Mend Break

Conferences are scheduled between the UAW-CIO and G. M., pacing themselves ahead of government intervention, and the union and Ford. Federal conciliators will shuttle between union leaders and Chrysler officials in an attempt to renew negotiations.

The heads of the union will enter the latest General Motors negotiations with an almost certain "confidence vote" from 175,000 striking members to back them.

The UAW-CIO's G. M. conference Saturday turned down President Truman's proposal for fact finding legislation, and unanimously backed the international leadership in demands for a wage increase of no less than 30 per cent. Balloting began today on these two resolutions, with the outcome a foregone conclusion.

Following last Friday's meeting between G. M. and the UAW-CIO, both sides admitted little progress toward settlement of the 20-day-old strike. They agreed to renew negotiations during a secret meeting last week in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Drafts Security Guarantee

Altho the General Motors conference holds the spotlight, intense interest will follow a new conference between the UAW-CIO and the Ford Motor company.

The union said today that it has drafted an "unprecedented" company security guarantee. Richard T. Leonard, UAW-CIO Ford director, said the plan, already ratified by the union's international officers, will prove more effective against "wildcatters" than the Ford $5 a day assessment proposal.

Unconfirmed rumors persisted in Detroit over the week-end that Ford is ready to make proposals that will include a guaranteed annual wage.

R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, told a press conference last week that the union has not forgotten the "baby" of the auto industry, newly formed Kaiser-Fraser corporation. He did not indicate when the union will attempt to negotiate with the company.

Another sidelight came from the Foremen's Association of America [independent] which has announced that it will request the Packard Motor Car company to open contract negotiations this week.

PEOPLE AND EVENTS

Donald McDonald

Lt. Col. Donald McDonald, recently returned from Saipan and placed on inactive duty, has joined Ruthrauff & Ryan, the Chicago advertising firm said yesterday. He will be associated with John L. Magro, manager of the Cincinnati office. Before entering service in 1942, he was associated with Allen Heaton & McDonald, and is a former chairman of B. F. Avery & Sons.

Kenneth C. Prince, Chicago lawyer recently returned from 27 months navy service, has been appointed general manager of the Radio Parts and Electronic Equipment Show corporation. He will resume his law practice.

James J. Polizzi, superintendent of flight control in Chicago for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., has been appointed superintendent of flight operations in Ciampino airport, Rome.

Minerals and chemicals for better living will be discussed by Louis Ware, president of International Minerals and Chemicals corporation, at a luncheon Wednesday of the Investment Analysts Club of Chicago in Carson Pirie Scott & Co.'s Georgian room.

Sutton Publishing company, New York trade magazine publisher, has opened a Chicago office at 307 N. Michigan av.

Miss Martha Dunlap, former editor and advertising manager of a storage and moving industry trade magazine, has become executive secretary of the National Truck Leasing System.

Edward T. Ryerson, former art director of W. E. Long company, has joined Steven Gross Studios as artists representative.

Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reelected Edward E. Brown, chairman of the First National Bank of Chicago, a member of the federal advisory council to represent the 7th federal reserve district in 1946.

N. J. Gothard, assistant chief chemist for the Sinclair Refining company, East Chicago, was elected president of the National Association of Insecticide and Disinfectant Manufacturers in New York City.

The election of Wilson H. Moriarty as vice president in charge of sales of National Malleable and Steel Castings company was announced by Charles H. McCrea, president.

INT. MINERALS PLANS BIGGEST PHOSPHATE MINE ON 2,000 ACRES

The International Minerals and Chemical corporation yesterday announced it had completed negotiations for the purchase of a phosphate rock deposit near its Bartow, Fla., operations, which it proposes to develop into the largest and most modern phosphate mining operation in the United States.

Much of the phosphate mined will be in demand for export, said Louis Ware, president.

The new mining property, consisting of approximately 2,000 acres, will be purchased from W. H. Stuart, trustee. The largest dragline excavator ever built will be used in the mine, Ware said. It will have a bucket capacity of 21 cubic yards.

BIG LOW GRADE COPPER DEPOSIT FOUND IN WEST

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP)—A large low grade copper deposit has been located in the San Manuel area of Arizona, the geological survey reported today.

If present indications of its size and grade are substantiated and suitable mining and metallurgical methods developed, the survey said, this may prove to be the most important copper discovery in Arizona in the last decade. Drilling by the bureau of mines was started in November, 1943, but discontinued last February. Further drilling is being carried on by private companies.

Extended Rise in Municipal Tax Forecast

New York, Dec. 9 (AP)—The National Municipal Review, in its December issue, today said "from present indications property [tax] rates in American cities during the next few years have no place to go but up."

The magazine, published by the National Municipal league, a private organization of taxpayers, reported property tax rates in 250 United States cities for 1945 averaged about 22 cents higher per $1,000 of valuation than last year.

"Increased public pay rolls have been the principal factor in increased property taxes this year and last, and will be the principal cause of future tax rises," it said.

Recent Cuts Offset

Drops in taxes during the first two years after Pearl Harbor were "practically offset" by the rises of 1944 and 1945. The magazine reported 48 per cent of the cities increased their rates this year, 39 per cent reduced rates, and 13 per cent showed no change.

"One of the reconversion jobs already under way is reemployment by municipalities to fill positions long vacant," the report said. "A full complement of municipal employes at increased pay scales cannot help but require new tax revenue, a fact that should be recognized now by both public officials and taxpayers, for there is little purpose in either explaining why or complaining about higher taxes after the expenditure has been authorized."

Public Works Planned

Another reason given for rising property taxes is the clamor for public works projects to satisfy a demand accumulated during war years. Many communities have been setting aside money for such projects, only to find "the money thus encumbered will not be adequate to meet more than a small part of the capital budget program," it said.

The article was written by "The Voelker Fellows," a research group connected with the national training school for public service.

YES! Men and women figure things differently. One reason why men with a message for women figure on putting it in the magazine that always sees things woman-wise—

FORMER JUDGE M'DONALD WED FOR 61 YEARS

Don't Be Too Serious Is Advice of Couple

Tomorrow won't be just another day for Judge and Mrs. Charles McDonald. It was 61 years ago Dec. 11 that the handsome then railroad man took pretty, 20 year old Emma F. Krehl from her parents' farm at Rochelle, Ill., as his bride.

The tall, heavily built Irish judge, now a federal master in chancery, also will celebrate his 81st birthday New Year's eve. Both he and his gray haired wife had a bit of advice for the younger generation. Each gave the credit for their successful marriage to the other.

Home Always Happy

"Mrs. Mac never gave me a doubt as to her sincerity, love, and affection—I always had a happy home," the judge said.

"But Charles deserves all the credit — he educated himself, you know," Mrs. McDonald contented.

In their three room apartment in the Knickerbocker hotel, the two related the story of their life, which began at Clinton, Ia., where the judge was a railroad brakeman and fireman for six years. Then both decided to enroll at Valparaiso university, Valparaiso, Ind. Later they came to Chicago, where the judge completed his law course at the Kent College of Law.

Little Things Count

In 1910, 1916, and 1922, the judge was elected to the Superior court. He was chief justice of the Criminal court three times and served on the Appellate court for three years. In 1934 he was appointed master in chancery and now he is treasurer of the Knickerbocker hotel, president of the Lott Hotel corporation, and chairman of the board of the Bismarck Hotel company.

Speaking of married life, the judge said: "It's the little things that actually make a marriage." Love and affection are essential, he said.

Don't Be Too Serious

"Above all, never let the shades of night fall on your wrath—iron an argument out," he advised.

Mrs. McDonald, who does her own housework in the apartment because of the maid shortage, coached:

"Take everything as it comes. And don't quit if there's not a lot of money — that happens too frequently today. Keep your nose to the grindstone and you both will reap your reward."

INJUNCTION SUIT CALLS CITY CODE BAR TO BUILDING

BY LEWIS HUNT

The Chicago building code will go to trial before Superior Judge Donald S. McKinlay Thursday on charges that its out of date provisions have contributed to the critical housing shortage by discouraging private building of homes.

The form of the case is a suit for an injunction to restrain the city from preventing construction of a wood frame addition to a small brick home in a semi-rural community on the far south side. The owner, Elmore Roberts, Negro, who has lived there 20 years, wanted the extra room for his married son, a war veteran.

Roberts' lawyers, Alfred Kamin and Rubin G. Cohn, said yesterday that they intended making use in court of the recent report to Mayor Kelly by the Chicago Association of Commerce terming the code obsolete and recommending its complete revision.

Call Fire Limits Senseless

Particularly, they said they would cite the report's statement that Chicago's widely inclusive fire limits, which were invoked against Roberts, "make little sense from the standpoint of the basic underlying reasons for the establishment of such limits."

Kamin said that a brief to be submitted to Judge McKinlay also would cite other material gathered to support the contention that the code should be ruled invalid because of its adverse influence on building.

"The code contributes to the housing shortage as much as any other factor," Kamin said. "The fire limits, which cover all but 15 per cent of the city's area, and that small part unsuitable for residences, discourage home building. It is fundamental that an ordinance must be related to health, safety or public welfare. The building code is so out of date it has lost that quality. It should be knocked out.

100,000 Families Homeless

"Even if we take the Chicago fire as an example of public catastrophe, we find that, with all its enormity and drama, it affected fewer persons than the present housing crisis. The fire destroyed 17,000 homes and made 90,000 individuals homeless. Chicago's present shortage is 90,000 dwelling units and we are confronted with having to find shelter for the families of 100,000 war veterans."

In its attack on the fire limits, the plaintiff's brief cites reports on Chicago of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. These show, according to the brief, that the limits were extended from an area of 20 per cent of the city in 1905 to 56 per cent in 1922 and that thereafter the insurance companies made no recommendations for further extension.

2 BROTHERS SEIZED WHILE FORCING WAY INTO CLOTHING STORE

Two brothers, John Szelog, 29, and Charles, 27, of 884 N. Paulina st., were seized yesterday morning after a short chase when police surprised them sawing thru the bars protecting a rear door of the Publix Credit Clothing company, 1651 Chicago av.

The pair surrendered when Policemen Edward Mangan and Emil Demko of the Racine av. station fired three shots at them. A hack saw, pliers, and a pair of gloves were found at the door.

Charles, recently discharged from the army after serving in the South Pacific, admitted they were seeking money with which to buy an automobile, police said. He was carrying $560 which he said he had withdrawn from a bank.

UNRRA DEFENSE MADE IN TALK BY REP. DOUGLAS

Rep. Emily Taft Douglas (D., Ill.), member of the house foreign affairs committee, described her recent six weeks trip thru the war stricken countries of Europe yesterday when she addressed representatives from nine midwestern chapters of the National Council of Jewish Juniors, which yesterday closed a two day session in the Congress hotel.

Mrs. Douglas lauded the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration's work for war victims, and urged that public opinion be aroused in order to assure approval of the UNRRA appropriation by congress. She said there have been many derogatory comments on UNRRA's activities, but the administration's work must be judged on what it did "after the liberation of Greece."

Miss Ruth Blossteen was chairman of the meeting. Mrs. Joy Sadin is president of the Chicago section of Jewish Juniors.

NISCHT NOT SURE HIS CONFESSION OF SLAYING WISE

Joseph Nischt, pallid faced prisoner who Saturday broke down in the midst of his trial for the furnace murder of Mrs. Rose Michaelis and asked his attorneys to enter a plea of guilty, said yesterday he was not sure he had acted wisely.

Nischt's indecision, he admitted, was the result of a night long session with "jailhouse lawyers," fellow cellmates, who were in unanimous agreement that he should have fought the case all the way.

Nischt's confession during the hearing terminated abruptly one of the most publicized trials in the history of the Criminal courts.

"My cellmates said I was a chump, but I don't know—I've always paid my financial debts, I think I should pay this one, too. But a life sentence, that's a long time," Nischt said.

TWO TRAPPED IN FLAT BURNED TO DEATH; 4 OTHERS ARE INJURED

John Ellis, 45, a Negro janitor, and his wife, Mazella, 34, were burned to death yesterday when trapped in their basement apartment by a fire which attacked a two story rooming house at 1822 S. Christiana av.

Four other tenants, all Negroes, were injured in leaping from second floor windows. Wilmer Watson, 28, who suffered a possible skull fracture, and his wife, Corretha, 23, suffering shock and exposure, were taken to County hospital. James Richardson, 29, was treated at St. Anthony's hospital for lacerations, and his wife, Dora, 27, treated at County hospital for shock and exposure.

Eleven other persons escaped uninjured. Richardson told police he believed the fire was caused by a boiler explosion. The fire left only the brick walls standing.

PAC TO OPEN '46 CAMPAIGN WITH ICKES AS GUEST

The political action committee will start its Illinois activities for the 1946 congressional campaign at a dinner in the Stevens hotel Thursday night, when Interior Secretary Ickes will be special guest. Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and honorary chairman of the national citizens PAC, also will speak. Others on the program include Chancellor Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago; J. Raymond Walsh, and Orson Welles. Dr. Charles E. Merriam is dinner chairman.

HOLY NAME MAIL TRAY ROBBED

A man about 35 years old, who asked to see a priest at the Holy Name cathedral, 730 N. Wabash av., took a check for $10 from a mail tray in the rectory, Msgr. Patrick J. Hayes told police yesterday.

STEEL WORKERS GIVE PLATFORM FOR CANDIDATES

The United Steel Workers union (CIO) yesterday urged Illinois committees of both major political parties to nominate aggressive and articulate candidates.

In a letter to state and county central committees, Frank Annunzio, state political action director for the union, said the unionists look forward to cooperation so they may vote for candidates sincerely pledged to "the interests of the nation."

"In their opinion, the interests of the nation include enactment of a decent minimum wage law of not less than 65 cents per hour, a genuine full-employment bill without emasculating amendments, establishment of a permanent fair employment practices committee and protection of that right which keeps American labor free — the right to strike," the letter said.

A-BOMB PROJECT IS HONORED FOR SAFETY RECORD

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9 (AP) — The nation's highest war time safety award was made today for an undertaking which could have produced history's most disastrous accident—the atom bomb project.

The national safety council's award for distinguished service to safety was presented to the Manhattan district, the designation of the bomb project, in recognition of the corps of engineers achievement in maintaining "outstandingly low" accident rates in facilities thruout the country.

Maj. Gen. Richard Leslie Groves, the army's top man on the project, gave credit to all the universities and industrial organizations which "coöperated so magnificently," in accepting the award on a radio program.

CIO ALERTS WORKERS FOR POSSIBLE STRIKE IN ELEVEN FACTORIES

Members of the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers of America (CIO) in 11 International Harvester company plants have been alerted for possible strike action to enforce their 30 per cent wage increase demand, Gerald Fielde, director of the union's Harvester council, disclosed yesterday.

Fielde said the decision was reached at a conference of union delegates from plants in Illinois, New York, Indiana, and Wisconsin, who charged the company with "a lack of good faith" in previous negotiations.

The negotiations will be resumed Thursday in Chicago. Fielde said the United States conciliation service had assigned Ronald Haughton to attend as a special representative.

MILD INFLUENZA WIDESPREAD IN DU PAGE COUNTY

Whooping cough, scarlet fever, and a highly communicable upper-respiratory infection which resembles a mild influenza are the three diseases currently most prevalent in Du Page county, Dr. James W. Chapman, director of the county health department, said yesterday.

The flu-like illness is the most widespread, and is communicated thru communities by the fact that many sufferers do not go to bed but continue to mingle with other persons in work and in schools, Dr. Chapman said.

The number of whooping cough cases is unusually high for this season. Since the beginning of the year it has been on the increase thruout the state, and the incidence now is about 25 per cent higher than it was in December, 1944. It is a serious disease among children under four years of age.
